Re: Case Number 14-F-0485 Lighthouse Wind

Dear Ms. Burgess:

Please accept into the record the attached document titled “Environmental Noise Pollution: Has Public Health Become too Utilitarian?” by Alun Evans, published May 12 of this year in the Open Journal of Social Sciences. This document provides further evidence of the harm done to rural populations by industrial wind turbines. Excerpts from this report include:

- Infrasound…...can induce changes in neural activity across several brain regions (including those) involved in auditory processing
- The use of A-weighed thresholds … is not predictive
- It has also been demonstrated that infrasonic noise interferes with the micro-mechanisms of the human ear

The Conclusions section of this report deals with Collateral Damage from industrial wind turbines, and a caution that the Precautionary Principle needs to be applied. A complete review of this report will further demonstrate that industrial wind turbines are incompatible with rural New York State, and Lighthouse Wind specifically cannot be allowed to proceed.

Sincerely,

Steven J. Royce
