Mother's planning vigil at slay trial

BY NANCY DILLON

NEARLY TWO agonizing years after their college football star son was found fatally shot on a picturesque Brooklyn street, Michael and Nancy Fisher are hoping they'll soon get a measure of justice.

Jury selection in the joint murder trial of alleged triggerman Antonio Russo, 19, and alleged slaying plotter John (Shady) Guica, 21, starts today in Brooklyn Supreme Court.

"I'll be there Monday and Tuesday and every day," Nancy Fisher, 52, vowed yesterday from her home in Andover, N.J.

"It will be hard, but we want justice completed," she added. "We need to hear the truth of what happened that night."

The bullet-riddled body of handsome Fairfield University athlete Mark Fisher, 19, was found in a bloodstained yellow blanket in Ditmas Park the morning of Oct. 13, 2003.

Reports placed the popular 6-foot-5 student at a nearby house party the night before. He arrived with a pretty blond, Meredith Denihan, whom he had met in an upper East Side bar.

After the slaying, the partygoers, including young men with rap sheets, erected a wall of silence that thwarted investigators.

For more than a year, the murder went unsolved. But after going through boxes of phone records and interviewing more than 100 college students, authorities arrested the suspects.

The brutal crime followed a $20 robbery of Fisher, authorities charged — but likely stemmed from something much more chilling: a twisted initiation rite for members of Guica's so-called Ghetto Mafia gang.

About two weeks before the slaying, Guica told a fellow Ghetto Mafia member that the gang wasn't being taken "seriously enough," prosecutors said at a pretrial hearing. "From now on, the members of the gang would have to commit a homicide," they quoted Guica as saying.

Cops say Guica, who threw the party, gave the murder weapon to Russo, a high school dropout.

Opening arguments are scheduled to begin Wednesday. Lawyers for Guica and Russo declined comment yesterday.

"We don't know" if it was gang related, Nancy Fisher said. "We want the truth. We would like to hear from [the defendants] what really happened."

Her brown eyes welled with tears as she held the last Mother's Day card Mark made for her. "I love you! And try not to worry so much," the message said.

"We miss him more than ever. We thought it would get easier, but it doesn't," Fisher's dad, Michael Fisher, 52, said, pointing to a teddy bear made from Mark's football jersey. "Mark would be graduating this year. He'd be 21 right now. I never even got the opportunity to share a beer with him."

Con Edison Increases Steam Rates by a Net of $20 Million (4.3 Percent) Beginning October 1, 2005

On September 27, 2004, the New York State Public Service Commission ("PSC") adopted a two-year steam rate plan that provided for a rate increase of $27.4 million in the second rate year commencing October 2005. After accounting for savings from the East River Re-powering Project ("ERRP"), estimated in the plan to be an additional $7.3 million in the second rate year, the net annual increase would be about $20.1 million. On August 25, 2005, Con Edison filed with the PSC changes to its steam tariff implementing such second year rate increase.

The following tables show the effect of the steam rate design changes on selected monthly bills:

Service Classification No. 1 - General Service

The summer billing period includes the months of May to October, and the winter billing period includes the months of November to April.

Steam Service Classification No. ("SC") 2 customers using over 1,000 M. lbs. per month will see decreases in their monthly bills ranging from 1.1% to 2.9% in the summer billing period and increases in their monthly bills ranging from 5.7% to 6.5% in the winter billing period. # Rangers: Hugh not the man yet

BY JOHN DELLAPINA
DAILY NEWS SPORTS WRITER

PERHAPS THE RANGERS really are serious about this long-term thinking stuff after all.

Rather than joining Manny Malhotra, Pavel Brendl and Dan Blackburn on the boulevard of broken Rangers prospects promoted before their time, 2003 first-round pick Hugh Jessiman yesterday joined 18 players on the Merritt Parkway bound for Hartford and the Wolf Pack of the AHL.

Though Rangers brass and head coach Tom Renney have been impressed by the effort Jessiman has displayed the last couple of months working out and skating at the MSG Training Center in Greenburgh, one week of training camp made it clear the strapping center is not yet ready for the speed of the NHL game.

That's neither surprising nor particularly damning for a 21-year-old who missed almost all of last season after ankle surgery. But what is new and noteworthy is that, rather than force-feed one of their marquee prospects onto the NHL roster, the Rangers put him where he belongs developmentally via their first significant set of roster cuts.

Which is to say, GM Glen Sather and assistant GM Don Maloney were true to the declarations of patience and prudence they issued before training camp began.

"I think the mistakes we've made in the past are when we've drafted a player like . . . Pavel Brendl might be a perfect example," Maloney said. "We lobbed him out, signed him immediately to a ton of dough and created an aura about him before he even stepped on the ice — before anybody had even seen him.

"So what we've tried to do is maintain a much lower profile."

Though the Rangers insisted that both Jessiman and 2004 first-rounder Al Montoya sign pro contracts last month and leave Dartmouth and Michigan, respectively, that was in order to get them playing in the AHL. It wasn't to put them on the Rangers' roster to justify claims the team is rebuilding and actually has top-level prospects.

At least, that is what Sather and Maloney said. Yesterday, they began making good on those vows.

"If there's a lesson to be learned, say, from the Devils, it's that we want the stars to emerge on their own and through their play before everybody shows up and says: 'Where's Jessiman? Where's this guy? Where's that guy?' Maloney said. "So in our mind, Hugh is a big, strong, developing player. And who knows?"

"I mean, we expect him to be an NHL player down the road. But with the guys we've brought in on our team — starting with (Jaromir) Jagr and the guys around him — we don't need that right away.

"We can let Hugh play in the minors for three years if that's what it takes. But hopefully, he'll be in New York a lot sooner."

QUICK RETURN: Jagr returned to practice yesterday after missing Saturday night's scrimmage with a minor groin strain. . . D Michal Rozsival (ankle sprain) and C Steve Rucchin (groin strain) remained out with the injuries they suffered in the scrimmage but could play in tomorrow night's preseason opener against the Islanders at Nassau Coliseum. . . The cuts left 38 players in camp. Montoya is one of four goaltenders still around but he and Chris Holt are destined to be the tandem in Hartford while Kevin Weekes and impressive rookie Henrik Lundqvist tend goal in Manhattan. . . Poised and precocious 18-year-old D Marc Staal, this year's first-round pick, also remains in camp.

Con Edison Increases Steam Rates by a Net of $20 Million (4.3 Percent) Beginning October 1, 2005

On September 27, 2004, the New York State Public Service Commission ("PSC") adopted a two-year steam rate plan that provided for a rate increase of $27.4 million in the second rate year commencing October 2005. After accounting for savings from the East River Re-powering Project ("ERRP"); estimated in the plan to be an additional $7.3 million in the second rate year, the net annual increase would be about $20.1 million. On August 25, 2005, Con Edison filed with the PSC changes to its steam tariff implementing such second year rate increase.
