ACROSS THE RIVER

By Beatrice Cicero
Livingston County News

Congratulations to Joe and Kay Koch on their long, enduring and happy marriage. Joe and Kay have been married for 60 years. Joe and Kay are lifelong residents of Leicester, where they operate a dairy farm, which has been in the family for many years. They are communicants of St. Thomas Aquinas Church.

Many thanks to Linda Ellis (her married name escapes me for the moment), for all the time and effort she spent in researching all of the photos she found and for all of her work in transferring the photos to video tapes. It was a great deal of time and effort on her part and she has provided many of us with many interesting and happy memories.

The Leicester United Presbyterian Church will be offering a Chicken Barbecue on Friday, May 4th from 4-7 p.m. Adults are $7.50 and children are $3.50 and under 5 are free. Takeouts are available. Treat yourself to a delicious meal!

The Eggplant Saga: One of my friends recently had a bout with food poisoning. She was very ill and described some of her symptoms to me. I recognized them very well because years ago, before I was married, our whole family had food poisoning. We bought ice cream, which unknown to us, had previously been defrosted, then refrozen. Within an hour after consuming it, we all became violently ill. Since that time, whenever I bought ice cream, I inspected it carefully. If there were many ice crystals on it, when I opened it, I believe that is a sure signal of it having been refrozen, I would then throw it out.

This is a reminder of an incident, which happened a few years ago, and as I recall it, I wince with the unpleasantness of the recollection. My husband and I decided to visit some relatives who lived about 85 miles away. My father came along with us. Our hostess served us a very delicious meal. One of the foods which was served was Eggplant Parmigean. Our hostess served this, then realizing that she had run out of this dish, she took more from the freezer, defrosted and served that, also. The only person who ate some of the second batch of this was my father.

After we had visited, we decided to leave early, as it had started to snow and blow and we feared we might encounter bad driving conditions on our long trip home.

On the way home, we had only gone about 15 miles, when my father became violently ill. We realized that he needed to get to a hospital. We stopped in a little town and asked for assistance. Luckily, they had a Fire Department and an ambulance, and they kindly offered to transport my Dad to the hospital, which was about 17 miles away.

I rode along in the ambulance with my Dad while my husband followed in our car. The ambulance crew was simply wonderful. I was very worried about my father. The doctor, who treated him, told us that my father was experiencing food poisoning. He noted all the foods we had consumed and then he determined that since it appeared that no one else became ill, it was apparent that my Dad had become ill from the second plate of eggplant. They treated him for food poisoning and determined that they would have to admit him for further treatment and that we would have to come back and get him when he was completely better. We were so relieved that he was going to be OK. We had to leave him, of course, and continued on home. The hospital called the next day to say he would be released since he had recovered and was now fine.

The next day came the dilemma. My husband told me he was going to call our relatives to advise them of my father's bout with food poisoning. I should explain that the relatives of whom we are speaking, happened to be my husband's brother and his wife. I should also explain that my brother-in-law's wife (my sister-in-law, of course) and I were a "trifle" competitive in terms of cooking. We were always trying to out do one another. (Of course, this resulted in many fine meals for our families!) My husband and I were always comparing notes on our meals and he assured me that no one could touch my rolls or strawberry pie, which to me was a very comforting and consoling fact.

My husband said, "I am going to call my brother and tell him not to eat any of the rest of that eggplant."

I implored him not to call. "Please do not call," I begged. "You will open up a hornet's nest!"

My husband was adamant. "I have to tell him, I have to call," he said. "Don't you realize that he is not in good health and if he eats this food and gets food poisoning, it could kill him."

As he reached for the phone, I covered my head with a dish towel. "What are you doing?" he asked. "I am a little nervous," I admitted.

"So, does it help to cover your head?" he asked. "Yes", I replied.

As I listened on the extension (with the dish towel still on my head), here's how the conversation went.

My husband said, "Gord, don't eat any more of that eggplant!"

"Ha," I thought. "Nothing like going quick to the kill, is my husband diplomatic or not?"

I pulled the dish towel closer to my head. Gordon appeared to be quite puzzled. "Why?" he asked. My husband explained, Gordon seemed to take it very well. But I knew that the storm was brewing. Soon the phone would be ringing off the hook, as soon as my sister-in-law got the message.

The phone did ring, and as I expected, my sister-in-law was completely outraged. I was perspiring profusely as the dish towel came in handy.

There were many more phone calls, from both my brother-in-law and sister-in-law as they were extremely angry and refused to believe that any of the food served caused food poisoning. My husband was, of course, completely perplexed. He felt that he was doing the right thing and could not comprehend why they were so mad.

One time, as I listened on the extension, my sister-in-law asked to speak to me. I quickly shook my head, a sign to my husband that I had no intention of speaking with anyone. The dish towel slithered to the floor!

My husband was compelled to reply that "I was not at home," which, of course, was a little white lie.

Later, I told my husband

there would have been no reasoning with her, and since he decided to make the call, he would, unfortunately have to bear the consequences.

To say that this incident put a little strain on our relationship, with our relatives, was a real understatement. However, my husband pointed out to Gordon that he had no ulterior or devious motive for advising him, concerning the apparent food poisoning. In fact, he reminded them that why would he have offered to donate a kidney to Gordon (for which he was tested) unless he only had his best interests at heart.

I believe that this last statement was what convinced them. Eventually, they "forgave" my husband and this incident was finally forgotten. I believe that men do not realize that criticizing a woman's cooking (for whatever reason) is the ultimate insult, forgivable only, if the offender is involved in a major catastrophe, such as an earthquake or being hit by a train.

As I think about it, I believe that had things been reversed, that I would have been outraged, also. So that is the Saga of the Eggplant. As I look back on it, now it seems, "sort of" funny but sometimes, I still shudder when I think about it.

REMINISCING

Her name was Belva Lockwood.

Although she was not a born and bred Lima daughter, her career as a lawyer and presidential candidate in 1884 and 1888 was probably triggered by her studies here at Genesee Wesleyan Seminary in 1854 and her graduation from Genesee College, on the same campus, in 1857.

Belva, though, was never the typical 19th century co-ed who majored in home management or water colors.

Born in 1830 in Royalton, New York, a small town near Lockport, she began teaching when she was just 15 years old.

Four years later she married Uriah McNall. When he died in the early years of their marriage, leaving her with a young daughter, Lura, she boarded the child with her Illinois grandparents and enrolled at the Seminary.

It was a difficult choice, since 19th century America looked down its respectable nose at higher education for its ladies, especially a widowed mother.

Lockwood herself said, "I was isolated from family and friends all of whom believed that college courses were for boys and young men, not for women."

Following graduation, Belva was hired as a preceptress at Lockport Union School, where she again stirred the status quo with her feminist ideas. For example, she introduced public speaking and gymnastic courses for girls.

Two other factors influenced her during her students and teaching in New York State: a growing interest in the study of law and an introduction to Susan B. Anthony, who was also a teacher during that period. She also observed the preferential hiring of male teachers and the policy of paying men twice the salary than women earned. Therefore, Lockwood soon developed her speaking skills while lecturing about the evils of the system at the New York State teachers convention.

By 1866, Lockwood was ready to begin the next phase of her career, "in the city where politics, the law and international affairs were the focus of all attention," Washington D.C.

Within a year, she and Lura opened their own private co-educational school. The following year when she was 38 years old, Belva tried to enroll in a law course at Georgetown and Howard Universities. She was denied admission with no explanation. And when she tried at Columbia College, she was told that "it would not be expedient, as it would be likely to distract the attention of the young men!"

Finally, the new National University Law School admitted her and 14 other women. But, they had to reside separately from the men, were denied access to lectures, and were not permitted to participate in the graduation ceremony or receive a diploma. As a result, the new lawyer fought for a year to gain access to the bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia without a diploma.

When nothing worked, she went to the top, the ex-president of National University, President Ulysses S. Grant. She wrote, "Sir: You are, or you are not, President of the National University Law School. If you are its president, I desire to say to you that I have passed through the curriculum of study of this school and am entitled to and demand my diploma. If you are not its president, then I ask that you take your name from its papers and not hold out to the world what you are not."

Belva's diploma was delivered in a short time, duly signed by President Grant. She was then able to argue cases before the District of Columbia Supreme Court. But that was only the beginning of her battle for equal rights in the courtroom. Since she could only practice before the D.C. court, Lockwood still could not argue claims cases, a lucrative practice, before the Federal Court, particularly the United States Court of Claims.

It was a difficult time for the lawyer. Her husband of nine years, Ezekiel Lockwood, died in 1877, and her second child had died during infancy. But Belva persevered as always.

Using her lobbying skills and many friends in Congress, Lockwood pushed the bill "to relieve certain legal disabilities of women" through Congress. It was passed and signed by President Hayes on February 15, 1879. It stated, "No man has the right to put a limit to the exertions or the sphere of women, the enjoyment of liberty, the pursuit of happiness in her own way, is as much a birthright of woman as of a man. It is mere oppression to say to the bread-seeking woman, 'you shall labor in certain narrow ways for your living, we will hedge you by law from profitable enjoyments and monopolize them for ourselves.'"

During the next five years, Lockwood established herself as a respected member of the bar. And her advocacy for universal suffrage and equal pay for equal work made her a well-known figure on the feminist scene. However, when she agreed to run for President in 1884, suffrage leaders like Cady-Stanton and Anthony did not climb on her campaign bandwagon. Both delivered her candidacy would ridicule the women's movement and tap its treasury for a lost cause. They weren't far wrong.

History doesn't record whether Belva thought she was going to decorate the Oval Office but she was angry and frustrated when the Republican national conventions refused to include a suffrage plank in the party's platform.

She vented in a letter to the editor: "W... not nominate women for important places? Is not Victoria Empress of India? Have we not among our country-women persons of as much talent and ability? There is no law against their being voted for, and if elected, filling the highest office in the gift of the people. The Republican party...ing to be the party of progress, has little else but insult for women, when they appear before its 'conventions' and ask for recognition, it is quite time we had our own party, our own platform, and our own nominees. We shall never have equal rights until we take them, nor respect until we command it."

Shortly thereafter, Lockwood learned that she had been nominated for President of the U.S. at the Equal Rights Party Convention. What she didn't know was that the convention consisted of two feminists, Marietta Stowe and Clara Foltz, who were playing a joke on her. The serious Belva accepted the nomination much to the dismay of her nominators. Once her campaign began, the press was as kind to her, then, as it was to Hillary.

For example, when Lockwood referred to her campaign as 'lively', newspapers referred to it as "the most laughable masquerade this city has ever witnessed, men marched in parades dressed in women's clothes and bonnets, and sang in the streets with brooms for sweeping out corruption."

She received over 400 votes but, Belva claimed, that in addition to those, she also received one half of the electoral vote of Oregon and a large number of votes in Pennsylvania, which were thrown away as false votes. She also petitioned Congress to count the votes of Indiana on the grounds that its electoral college had switched votes from Cleveland to her.

Although Belva lost her bid for the presidency then and again in 1888, she continued her law practice and her fight for equal rights while tooling around the capital on her tricycle. And when her daughter died, she raised her grandson almost from infancy. One of her final acts before her death in 1917 was to campaign for Woodrow Wilson in 1916. She was 86 years old.

Belva had been a familiar figure riding her tricycle around Washington's streets in a velvet gown.

Can't you just see her triking to the courthouse to see the Chief Justice? I wish I had known Belva Lockwood. She was quite a lady! PEACE.

NYSEG Electricity Prices

Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.

Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).

Rate Reductions:

- Residential Customers
The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.
- Non-Residential Customers
Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.
- Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

Scouts throughout the Council are selling tickets to the show for a one dollar donation. A kayak, paddle and Personal Floatation Device, provided by the Wooden Ski and Wheel in Plattsburgh, is being offered as a door prize. The winner need not be present to win. Tickets can be purchased from any Scout, at the door of the Show, or at the Adirondack Council Office, 1 Sesame Street in Plattsburgh, between the hours of 10:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

The Adirondack Council is one of over 300 Boy Scout Councils throughout the United States. The Boy Scouts of America is the largest youth serving organization in the Country. Since the events of September 11, 2001, there has been renewed interest in Scouting and the traditional values it teaches. The Adirondack Council serves over 1,400 youth in Clinton, Franklin and northern Essex County with programs designed to teach citizenship, build character and physical fitness.

For more information about Scouting or the Scouting Skills Show, call the Council at 518-561-0360.

Adirondack Council, Boy Scouts Host Scouting Skills Show

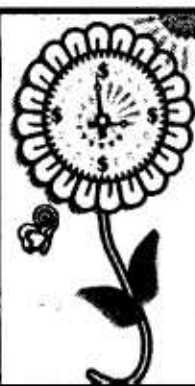

Scouting teaches youth many skills. One of every hundred Scouts will use a skill they learn in Scouting to save someone else's life. Another Scout in those hundred will use those same skills to save their own life. On Saturday, April 13, Boy Scouts from throughout the North Country will gather at the Champlain Centres Mall, for an afternoon of demonstrating these skills, as well as for fellowship and fun.

The public is invited to the former Steinbach store area, starting at noon for what Adirondack Council officials hope will be an annual event. "This is one of many initiatives we are working on to expand Scouting's presence in the North Country," said Greg Morin, Scout Executive.

"The Scout Show gives boys from the Adirondack Council the opportunity to show off to the community some of the skills they've learned in Scouting and to meet other Scouts. And the boys will have fun doing it," continued.

Among the exhibits of interest to boys 12 years of age and older will be first aid, camping, firearms safety and the art of ropemaking.

Another highlight of the show for Cub Scouts ages 7 to 11, will be a Council-wide Pinewood Derby race. Cub Scouts and their adult partners build the cars out of blocks of pine as one of the many activities they participate in throughout the year. Racing begins at 12:30 with Cubs from each unit competing for the honor of representing their area in competition with Cubs from other North Country Dens. The inclined 40-plus foot track features an electronic scoring mechanism that takes the guessing out of what is anticipated to be many close finishes.

NYSEG Electricity Prices

Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.

Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).

Rate Reductions:

Residential Customers

The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.

Non-Residential Customers

Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

New Poison Hotline

(NAPSA)-The American Association of Poison Control Centers (AAPCC) has created a new toll-free hotline which connects callers to nurses, pharmacists and doctors specially trained to handle poison emergencies and provide poison prevention assistance. This free and confidential service is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

For the first time, the country's 65 local poison centers are accessible to callers across the United States via a national toll-free number. By calling the hotline, callers are automatically connected to the closest local poison center. Trained poison experts immediately handle incoming calls. If emergency medical treatment is needed, the poison center will call an ambulance and stay on the line until help arrives.

The hotline also serves as an information resource. Experts at poison centers are ready to answer a range of poison prevention questions such as whether or not a plant is poisonous, how to use a pesticide safely or whether certain drugs can be taken together.

Stickers, magnets and brochures featuring the hotline number and the new Poison HELP logo are available by calling the hotline, which is funded by the Health Resources and Services Administration in collaboration with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

For tips and information on poison prevention, call 1-800-222-1222 or visit www.1-800-222-1222.info.

Champlain Valley Sports Medicine Tips

Warm Up, Proper Technique Help Keep You Golfing

Question: Now that golf season is here, any suggestions about staying healthy? I'm kind of surprised when I hear about all of the injuries the pros have.

Answer: Golf, viewed as a gentle, non-contact game generates many injuries because of the explosive forward motion of the swing, its repetitive nature and improper form. Back problems are quite common because of the twisting motion and movement of the spine. Proper warm up with lots of stretching before teeing off will help you avoid many back, shoulder, hip and leg problems. A brisk, five-minute walk is also advised. Proper technique is important too. A few lessons from a pro can help you avoid wrist, hand and elbow injuries while scoring better and enjoying the sport more.

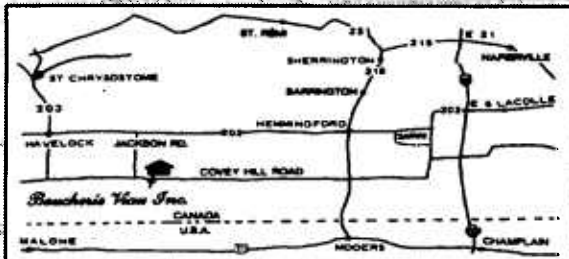

Champlain Valley Sports Medicine provides the serious athlete and the weekend warrior with state-of-the-art approaches to conditioning, rehabilitation, and fitness. Our team of athletic trainers, physical and occupational therapists, a sports nutritionist, and a certified conditioning/strengthening specialist is led by C. Philip Volk, M.D., a board certified sports medicine/orthopedic surgeon.

NYSEG Electricity Prices
Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.
Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).
Rate Reductions:
• Residential Customers
The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.
• Non-Residential Customers
Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.
Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.

Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).

Rate Reductions:

• Residential Customers

The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.

• Non-Residential Customers

Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

NYSEG Electricity Prices
Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002.
In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.
Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).

Opening lead: ??
To start today, look only at the West hand.
What would you lead (a) against four spades after a sequence in which the opponents have bid only that suit, or (b) after one no-trump — three no-trump?
If West had the club ace, he would have cashed it before leading the third diamond. So, the defenders have surely taken all their side-suit tricks. This signposts the tethal defense: a fourth diamond, which promotes a trump trick.

Suspected terrorist known for his combat skills

► Top-ranking al-Qaida official remains in custody of U.S. authorities

JAMAL HALABY
The Associated Press

AMMAN, Jordan — Abu Zubaydah was drawn to Osama bin Laden's organization as a teenager whose religious fervor and radical Islamic ideology brought him to the training camps of Afghanistan.

But Middle East counterterrorism sources say it was his combat skills and organizational talent that pushed him to the top ranks of the network thought to have been behind the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks on the United States. U.S. military and law enforcement officials said that Abu Zubaydah, a 31-year-old Palestinian, was captured in Pakistan four days ago — an arrest touted by White House officials as a "very serious blow" to the al-Qaida network.

Born Zein al-Abideen Mohammad Hassan, his family hails from the Gaza Strip and according to Jordanian court records, he holds an Egyptian travel document. Egypt, which once ruled the Gaza Strip, used to issue travel documents to residents there. But Egyptian Interior Ministry officials said they had no record for Abu Zubaydah and that his Egyptian travel document could be fake.

After Sept. 11, the U.S. Treasury Department ordered frozen any assets found in his name. It's website, lists Abu Zubaydah's birthplace as Riyadh, Saudi Arabia and his birthdate as March 12, 1971.

Last Thursday, Pakistani authorities, in concert with the CIA and FBI, captured Abu Zubaydah in a raid in Faisalabad, far from the Afghan border, according to U.S. officials who spoke on condition of anonymity. Abu Zubaydah was shot three times trying to escape — in the stomach, groin and leg — but was expected to survive, said one official.

He is in U.S. custody, and American officials promised a lengthy interrogation of the man believed to be able to identify names, faces and locations of al-Qaida operatives the world over. U.S. officials would not say

Al-Qaida catch

Abu Zubaydah, al-Qaida's top surviving operational commander, was captured last week by Pakistani authorities in concert with the CIA and FBI. Zubaydah, believed to be trying to reorganize al-Qaida in Pakistan, has been linked to many past terrorist plots.

Attacks on the United States

U.S. officials suspect his involvement in the attacks on the U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania, the attack on the USS Cole and the Sept. 11 attacks.

Millennium plot

Trained Ahmed Ressaam to blow up Los Angeles airport in December 1999. Ressaam is currently serving a 130 year sentence.

Tourist spots in Jordan

In September 2000, a Jordanian military court convicted Zubaydah in absentia for his involvement in a millennium plot to attack tourist sites frequented by Americans and Israelis.

U.S. Embassy in Paris

Worked closely with Djamel Beghal, lead suspect in a plot to bomb the U.S. Embassy in Paris.

U.S. Embassy in Bosnia-Herzegovina

Bosnian authorities recorded telephone conversations between Zubaydah and Bensayah Belkacem, a suspect in a thwarted plan to attack the U.S. Embassy in Sarajevo, Bosnia-Herzegovina where he was being held. But they did say he was not expected in the United States any time soon. He could eventually be held in Afghanistan, aboard a Navy ship, at the U.S. base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, or transferred to a third country.

According to the Middle East sources, who insisted they not be identified further, Abu Zubaydah developed a unique talent in mortars and other heavy weaponry that attracted the attention of bin Laden. He was apparently named bin Laden's second deputy in 1995, responsible for screening recruits and devising terrorist plans. Where bin Laden and deputy Ayman al-Zawahiri would set policy, Abu Zubaydah would implement it. U.S. officials said when the inner circle would order the bombing of an embassy, Abu Zubaydah would select the embassy, cell and method of attack.

Abu Zubaydah's name doesn't appear on the FBI's list of top wanted terrorists but he was wanted nonetheless.

The job description and slot at the top led U.S. officials to worry that Abu Zubaydah may try to re-establish al-Qaida in Pakistan, where many members fled the U.S.-led military campaign in Afghanistan. Financial transfers and intercepted communications suggested he was directing attempts to conduct new terrorist attacks against U.S. interests, American officials have said.

Ahmed Ressaam, convicted April 2001 of smuggling, terrorist conspiracy and other charges in the Los Angeles millennium plot, described Abu Zubaydah's role as a recruiter during court testimony.

Prospective recruits in Pakistan would meet Abu Zubaydah, who would assign them to camps. When they finished training, he placed them in cells overseas.

According to Jordanian military documents, Abu Zubaydah recruited Raed Hijazi, a Jordanian-American who worked as a taxi driver in Boston and used his pay to buy arms for the Jordanian cell. He has also been named as a recruiter of suspects in plots to bomb U.S. Embassies in Paris and Sarajevo.

Intelligence and police officials have linked him to at least five al-Qaida plots, including the attacks on the World Trade Center and Pentagon. The extent of his role, however, has not been fully determined.

He is believed to have been a field commander for the October 2000 bombing of the USS Cole in Yemen, in which 17 U.S. sailors were killed and the foiled millennium plots in Los Angeles and Jordan.

Middle East sources said Abu Zubaydah helped set up the terrorist cell in Jordan charged with carrying out the millennium plot to attack American and Israeli targets, and was in constant touch with Khader Abu-Hosher, a Palestinian recruiter with the cell.

Murder trial begins for Kennedy cousin charged in 1975 death

JOHN CHRISTOFFERSON
The Associated Press

NORWALK, Conn. — Kennedy cousin Michael Skakel went on trial for murder Tuesday, accused of bludgeoning a neighbor girl to death 27 years ago when they were both 15.

Superior Court Judge John Kavanewsky Jr. introduced prospective jurors to Skakel, who stood and gave a slight smile. Later, as he left the courthouse and was asked how the day went, Skakel replied: "It was good."

Two jurors were chosen, but lawyers said it could take over a month to seat all 12 and the four alternates. The rest of the trial may take up to two months.

Skakel, 41, is accused of beating Martha Moxley with a golf club in their wealthy Greenwich neighborhood in 1975. The nephew of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy was arrested in January 2000 after a one-jury grand jury investigated the murder following articles and books about the old case.

He was arraigned as a juvenile because of his age when the crime was committed, but the case was later transferred to adult court. If convicted, Skakel could face life in prison.

There were no Kennedys or Moxleys in the courtroom Tuesday.

Lists of potential witnesses were released Tuesday. Courtney Kennedy, Skakel's cousin and a daughter of the late senator, was on the defense list, as were Skakel's brothers, Steven and Thomas, and his father.

Moxley's body was found on Halloween under a tree in her yard. She had been out the night before with other teens, including Michael and Thomas Skakel. She had been beaten with a golf club that matched a set owned by the Skakels.

Authorities suspected Thomas Skakel for years, but switched their attention to Michael in 1991 after his family hired private investigators in an effort to clear both brothers. Statements he gave them about the night of the murder differed from what he had long told police.

Prosecutors say he confessed to the crime in the late 1970s while attending Elan School, a substance abuse facility in Poland Spring, Maine.

NYSEG Electricity Prices

Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.

Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 116, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyseg.com).

Rate Reductions:

- Residential Customers
The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.
- Non-Residential Customers
Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.
- Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

RFP's/Youth Programs
PUBLIC NOTICE FOR THE CAYUGA-CORTLAND WORKFORCE INVESTMENT BOARD REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS FOR YOUTH PROGRAMS
 The Cayuga-Cortland Workforce Investment Board is soliciting proposals for the Operation of Federally Funded youth programs in compliance with the Workforce Investment Act Title 1-B. Funding will be for the period of July 1, 2002 through June 30, 2003. Awards may be extended through June 30, 2004 at the discretion of the Cayuga-Cortland Workforce Investment Board and based upon the availability of funds. These dates may be subject to change prior to the final award.

PURPOSE
 The Workforce Investment Act of 1998 introduces significant changes for youth programming at the local level. The Workforce Investment Act creates a focus on youth development activities that will reinforce positive social skills on youth. The legislation mandates strong ties with the business community, not only as employers, but also as advisors, funders, trainers, and economic developers. The Workforce Investment Act places an increased emphasis on academic learning as it connects to the work place. In addition to requiring a stronger focus on out-of-school youth, longer-term services are required for all youth in order to assure attachment to and advancement within the labor market.

NYSEG Electricity Prices
 Effective March 1, 2002, NYSEG (New York State Electric & Gas Corporation) has revised its electricity prices under a new rate plan approved by the Public Service Commission (PSC). The five-year plan will reduce electric revenues by $205 million in 2002. In addition, customers will have new electricity supply options in 2003. More information on these options will be available to customers later this year.
 Below is a summary of the changes to NYSEG's electric tariffs (PSC 90, 115, and 118) as approved by the PSC. A copy of NYSEG's filed tariffs is available on the company's Web site (www.nyscg.com).
Rate Reductions:
 • Residential Customers
 The Basic Service Charge for residential customers has increased $4.00, however energy charges have decreased. As a result, residential customers will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same.
 • Non-Residential Customers
 Non-residential customers not taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, a 13.9% reduction in their electricity bills, assuming use stays the same. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has either remained the same or decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills will vary depending on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.
 Non-residential customers taking service under the Industrial/High Load Factor Rate Provision will see, on average, an 11.8% reduction in their electricity bills. Energy charges have decreased, and the demand charge has decreased. The monthly Basic Service Charge has increased. The total effect of these changes on individual customer bills depends on demand, measured in kilowatts, and how much electricity is used.

 Do you agree with this comment by Virginia Woolf? "One cannot think well, love well, sleep well, if one has not dined well."
 I would be inclined to add "play bridge well." Although many feel differently, I cannot play good bridge on an empty stomach.
 At the bridge table, it normally pays not to be greedy; make your contract without worrying about overtricks. (In duplicate pair events, overtricks can be very important. However, when in a slam, usually you should play as safely as possible.) If you were South in this deal, how would you plan the play in either six spades or seven spades?
 South's sequence, bidding hearts first, then spades twice, shows a strong hand with 5-6 in the majors. (With equal length in the majors, open one spade.)
 Seven spades is a good contract, needing the hearts to split 3-2. Win the first trick and cash the two top hearts. Here, disaster strikes and you grumble about bad luck.
 In six spades, though, maybe you thought about establishing dummy's club jack. You could do that, but it would yield only 11 tricks: three spades, two hearts, one diamond, two clubs, and three club ruffs in hand. Instead, you should establish your heart suit, but accommodate a bad split. After winning the trump lead (preferably in the dummy) and taking the heart ace, continue with a low heart.
 Probably East will return his remaining trump, but win in hand, ruff a heart with dummy's spade queen, cash the diamond ace, ruff a diamond in hand, draw the remaining trump, and claim.
