GVCA to receive $20,000 from NEA

GRANTS FOR ARTS: Award supports traditional arts, folklife programs

SPECIAL TO THE LCN
MOUNT MORRIS — The Genesee Valley Council on the Arts has been approved for a $20,000 Grants for Arts Projects award from the National Endowment for the Arts to support the Creative Artists Migrant Program Services, or CAMPS, and GLOW Traditions, our regional traditional arts and folklife program. The project, “Connecting by Design: Farmworkers & Artists Share Talents & Traditions,” will support a series of workshops, events, and an exhibit that promotes arts engagement and creation with Hispanic/Latinx communities in the region.

The GVCA project is among 1,073 projects that were selected to receive NEA funding totaling nearly $25 million in the Grants for Arts Projects funding category.

“GVCA is among the arts organizations across the country that have demonstrated creativity, excellence, and resilience during this very challenging year,” said NEA Arts Endowment Acting Chair Ann Eilers.

GVCA Executive Director Deborah Bump said the arts council was thrilled to be selected by the NEA to continue an important and significant project.

“With all of the changes 2020 brought, Julia and Karen were able to adapt the migrant art classes to an online environment, and their successful collaboration with the New York State Migrant Education Program reached farmworkers all across the state,” Bump said. “We are so excited that they will be able to continue their work with the generous assistance from the NEA, and hope the exhibit will extend the community-building experienced by the participants to our wider Hispanic/Latinx community and the general population.”

The CAMPS program was founded in 1975 by Sylvia Kelly at the Genesee Migrant Center, with a mission to offer free art workshops to migrant farmworkers and families in Western New York, who are currently predominantly Hispanic. The program moved to the GVCA in 2020 under coordinator Julia Stewart-Bittle and continues to bring arts instruction directly to workers who live in geographic and cultural isolation on farms miles away from towns, often with no transportation nor access to arts opportunities.

The “Connecting by Design” project seeks to increase and diversify its roster of artist instructors, reaching out to GVCA members, regional artists, and expanding to farmworkers themselves. As Stewart-Bittle explains, “Drawing on my 20-year teaching experience within CAMPS, I felt it was time to design a real exchange,” said Stewart-Bittle. “Not only will the artists teach workshops for farmworkers, farmworkers with traditional arts skills will have the opportunity to teach GVCA instructors. We will be able to learn from each other.”

Artwork created through the workshops will comprise an exhibit at the end of the year in the GVCA gallery on Murray Hill in Mount Morris, and potentially to other sites and online.

“GVCA artists and farmworkers will have the opportunity to connect on a deep, personal level that moves beyond mere social graces, into a place of real and lasting understanding,” said Stewart-Bittle.

GLOW Traditions has been documenting and presenting traditional arts and artists in Genesee, Livingston, Orleans and Wyoming counties since 1997. Founding director Karen Canning coordinates this collaborative program with arts councils in adjoining counties, including the Arts Council for Wyoming County and the Genesee-Orleans Regional Arts Council. Canning has worked with Latino/a community members to present Mexican Day of the Dead, Christmas Posada, and Puerto Rican Three Kings Day celebrations.

“All of us have traditional knowledge that we carry with us, often reflecting our cultural heritage,” Canning said. “For example, arts like papel picado (paper cutting), embroidery, weaving, pan de muerto (decorative breads) and sand paintings are found in the Día de Muertos celebration, which remembers loved ones who have passed on. Like generations of immigrants before them, many of our newer residents bring beautiful artistic traditions that add value and meaning to their daily lives and have the potential to enrich us all.”

Perry High School wins big with ACWC

SPECIAL TO THE LCN
PERRY — Perry High School art students will be the focus of a spring 2021 exhibition at the Arts Council for Wyoming County Main Gallery, 31 South Main St.

The opportunity for these students is possible due to the cancellation of ACWC’s over-25-year old Annual All County High Schools exhibition because of the COVID-19 pandemic. For most of the students, this will be their first gallery show.

“We’re thrilled to be able to give them the experience and exposure that comes with it! Not to mention honored to be able to feature artists at the beginning of their lifetime of work,” the ACWC said.

The ACWC/Perry High School Art Show will open Friday and end March 26 with a closing awards reception at 6:30 p.m. in the ACWC’s Main Gallery. Those planning to attend should RSVP. The ACWC is limiting attendance due to COVID-19 restrictions. In addition, there will be no refreshments served and all social distancing protocols will be observed.

In addition to being the only Wyoming County high school to exhibit in the Arts Council’s gallery this year, two students from Perry High School were selected to receive the top two ACWC’s youth scholarships:

Youth artist and high school student Lauren West was selected to receive ACWC & Creekside Fabrics Visual Arts Scholarship for young artists. This award gives her the opportunity to spend a year studying with a master artist. The apprenticeship will culminate with a solo exhibition at the ACWC in May 2022. This scholarship is for high school students who wish to further their studies in visual arts: photography, fiber arts, ceramics, carpentry, drawing or painting. Valued at $900, the ACWC & Creekside Fabrics Visual Arts Scholarship for young artists is made possible through a partnership with the ACWC and Creekside Fabrics in Arcade.

Young performing artist and high school student Emma McLaughlin will use her Balus Foundation Young Performance Scholarship to further her interest in musical theatre. This scholarship is made possible through the Balus Foundation and is awarded each year to one or two high school students from Wyoming County who wish to further their studies in the performing arts. The grant (up to $500) may be used to help with summer music camp fees or ongoing lessons from a professional teacher or institution. In addition to other select performances, Emma will perform a solo recital at the ACWC this fall.

“The ACWC congratulates these two Perry Central High School youth artists for their hard work and this new accomplishment,” the ACWC said.

For more than 40 years, the ACWC has created opportunities to bring arts into their rural communities through programming, grants, and art events. Located on Main Street in Perry, the ACWC has produced the Letchworth Arts and Crafts Show, one of the largest and highest-rated shows in the region.

Genesee’s Mary Chanler won first prize in the Dramatic Interpretation at the 2021 Interscholastic Competition in English.

Genesee defends ICE cup title

SPECIAL TO THE LCN
LE ROY — Genesee Central School successfully defend the ICE Cup in 2021. The ICE Cup is the top honor awarded in the annual Interscholastic Competition in English.

The event, a celebration of the English Language Arts, finds students from competing school districts matching their skills in writing, analysis and recitation. Restrictions related to the COVID-19 pandemic required a change in the ICE format, which played out in a digital format completed at home or in school during the course of several weeks instead of with teams meeting in a central location for a one-day event.

Each school had three teams of three students in the ICE, with each team member competing in a different category of English Language Arts skills. The categories were Interpretation of Literature, Dramatic Presentation, and Creative Writing. The scores earned in each category determined individual and team awards, and the school district with the highest overall score wins the grand prize of the ICE Cup.

First place went to Genesee’s White Team, second to Genesee’s Blue Team, third to Wayland-Cohocton Central School’s Alpha Team, fourth to Genesee’s Devil Team, fifth to Wayland-Cohocton’s Gamma Team, and sixth to Wayland-Cohocton’s Beta Team.

Individual awards for the Interpretation of Literature category went to Genesee’s Emily Sullivan, first; Genesee’s Sydney Matthews, second; Wayland-Cohocton’s Elijah Anderson, third; Wayland-Cohocton’s Griffin Abramowski, fourth; and Genesee’s Addy Capel, fifth.

Awards for Dramatic Presentation went to Genesee’s Mary Chanler, first; Genesee’s Joseph DeBell, second; Genesee’s Will Schiener, third; and Wayland-Cohocton’s Trevor Donlon, fourth.

The Creative Writing awards went to Genesee’s Jacob French, first; Wayland-Cohocton’s Cari Stern, second; Wayland-Cohocton’s Kasey Buckley, third; Wayland-Cohocton’s Autumn Ladd, fourth; Genesee’s Finn Roberson, fifth; and Genesee’s Alexander Chiulli, sixth.

The ICE judging panel consisted of distinguished scholars and educators from the region. They were Shawn Adamson, Genesee Community College humanities professor; Katelyn Costello; author; Norm Gayford; Genesee Community College Department of English, retired; Mary Krickmire, Finger Lakes Community College theater professor; Dawn Siragusa, Brockport High School Advanced Placement and American literature teacher; and Shawnda Urie, Roberts Wesleyan College theater professor.

ICE is a program of the Genesee Valley BOCES Enrichment Department and is coordinated by the Enrichment Specialist Julie Judge.

Genesee Valley BOCES operates as a Board of Cooperative Educational Services offering shared programs and services to 22 component school districts located in Genesee, Wyoming, Livingston and Steuben counties in New York state.

Four villages have races; Election Day is March 16

BY MATT LEADER AND BRENDAN MCDONOUGH
news@livingstonnews.com

Village elections are Tuesday, March 16. Polls are open from noon to 9 p.m. There are races in four of Livingston County's nine villages. Below is a breakdown of candidates and the offices they're seeking.

Dansville

Scott Kenney is running unopposed for another term as village justice.

Three people - Charlie Perkins, Norm Zeh and Mike Nagle - are seeking two open village trustee seats.

Perkins is the former, longtime village police chief who retired in 2019 after being placed on administrative leave by the village board for undisclosed reasons.

Mayor Pete Vogt said at the time Perkins' leave was due to "differences of opinion" between Perkins and the village board.

Following Perkins' retirement, the village board hired an accounting firm in Rochester to audit the police department's evidence locker.

While meeting minutes show the village board approved the audit during a special meeting in September 2019, minutes of subsequent meetings contain no further references to the audit or its findings. Vogt said in October 2019 that the results of the audit were delivered verbally to the village and that no written report was prepared.

Perkins is seeking election on the Democratic and Allegiance party lines. He declined to comment on his retirement but said, if elected, he would focus his efforts on maintaining residents' physical and financial health.

"I'm not into sensationalism or drama," he said. "Just straightforward, non-bullying, financially sound government."

Incumbents Zeh and Nagle are seeking re-election on the Republican Party line.

Zeh formerly served under Perkins in the Dansville Police Department, but left to take a patrol deputy position with the Livingston County Sheriff's Office in 2006 "due to a declining working environment inside the department itself, largely due to what I believed to be poor leadership and a difference of moral beliefs."

He ran successfully for a village board seat in 2017 in part, he said, because he "recognized that the Police Department had continued to decline since I had left over a decade earlier, and I knew with my background, training and experience that I was an excellent candidate to help make improvements in that area."

Zeh said he's seeking reelection because he has unfinished business that he wants to see through.

"We currently are in the planning stages of a major water and sewer line upgrade and are actively seeking grants that will limit the financial burden to the taxpayers. Also, we have revamped the rules and regulations at the police department and given them new and better tools to use so that they can protect and serve the community," he said. "But in the ever-changing world of police work, there is always room for growth, and I feel like I am a valuable resource for the police department due to my vast training and experience. My agenda for the next four years would be to continue to improve areas that the taxpayers marked as concerns during a recent survey, such as the condition of parks, sidewalks, parking lots, while working diligently to keep a flat tax rate."

Zeh declined to comment on Perkins' retirement.

In a statement posted to his Facebook page earlier this election season, Nagle said he felt he's done "a good job over the last four years."

Lima

John Skiptunas, a Republican, is running unopposed for mayor. The position was left vacant when former mayor Carl Luft resigned in spring 2020. John Correll was elected to the position in September 2020, but accepted a job in Florida soon after and resigned the following month.

Skiptunas currently serves as deputy mayor and is a trustee on the village board, a position to which he was elected in September 2020.

"Serving as deputy mayor and in leadership with Rotary has given me a positive vision for the future of our community," said Skiptunas in his candidacy materials. "We look forward to a stable infrastructure - water, sewer and emergency services - and expanding local economic development to make Lima a destination for all to enjoy."

Four candidates are seeking two open seats on the village board. Republicans Brian Smith and Carolyn Fleming are seeking office as are Democrats David M. Cabrera and John Wadach.

Cabrera ran unsuccessfully for a village board position in September 2020. Shortly thereafter, he was appointed to the board to fill a vacancy.

"During my time as a trustee, I have had the opportunity to support various projects that have been ongoing in the village as well as initiate my own," said Cabrera.

During his first campaign, Cabrera cited rehabilitation of the village center as one of his priorities. In an email last week, he said two projects he's been focusing on since joining the board fit under such a heading.

We have been able to secure a $60,000 grant to create a public WiFi system that will be deployed in our village core. I have been working with the engineers to set up our best options with the grant money available to us," he said. "In addition to this, I have been working with Empire Access, a local fiber internet provider, to bring high speed fiber internet to Lima. This will provide an alternative to our current offering in the area."

If elected, Cabrera said he'd look forward to continuing to work on the projects and would seek to acquire additional grant funding for them.

Wadach, 62, is currently serving as mayor of Lima, filling the vacancy left when former mayor Correll accepted a job in Florida. He is a past village board member, having served as trustee from 1987 to 1992 and 2017 to 2020.

A village resident since 1984, Wadach is a former professor of engineering science and physics at Monroe Community College.

Wadach said he's seeking reelection because he wants to keep working to bring a handful of ongoing projects through to fruition.

"These include our village-wide community solar program, a fiber optic internet system, water system upgrades, new sidewalks, new LED street lights, and a new dog park," he said in an email. "During the last four years the village of Lima has won $4.5 million dollars in state and federal grants. If re-elected I will use my experience to leverage additional grant money for the benefit of Lima residents."

Smith has been a resident of the village for the past 19 years and is a lifelong resident of Livingston County.

He worked for 30 years at the University of Rochester Medical Center and now works as an assistant center manager for CSL Plasma.

According to his campaign literature, he's served on the Lima Crossroads Committee, the Red Willison Baseball Board of Directors and the Rainbow Lane Neighborhood Association.

He counts his ability to find solutions and compromise and his decades of experience writing successful grant applications among his strengths as a candidate.

Fleming first moved to Lima 37 years ago. An engineer by trade, Fleming said she's adept at solving problems and looking at a situation from all angles.

"I have a lifelong interest in health and safety, having sat on the site safety board for my company, heading the emergency response medical team and hazardous material review board for 30+ years," she said in her campaign literature.

Among the issue that would be important to Fleming if elected are maintaining the village's existing infrastructure while minimizing tax increases and increasing the number of businesses in the village's downtown district.

"After 36 years of enjoying the benefits of living in the village of Lima, I would like to pay it forward by doing my share as a village trustee and keeping our community a vibrant place to live," she said.

Livonia

Incumbents Daniel Coon and Chris Genthner are running unopposed for two open village trustee positions.

"I am very honored to have the opportunity to run again for another term as a village board trustee," said Coons in a statement.

Said Genthner: "I have lived in this community for most of my life and I can't imagine living anywhere else. I have been fortunate to have the opportunity to serve the residents of the village of Livonia for many years as both a trustee and the deputy mayor, and I would be honored to be given the chance to continue that service."

Annette Meade is also running unopposed for an unexpired village trustee term, which she was appointed to fill early last year.

"I look forward to the opportunity to serve out the rest of the term, which will be two years," said Meade. "Recently, the board has worked on projects that include upgrades to the village water system infrastructure, exploring solar lighting opportunities, and adding to the Art Park at the corner of Main and Commercial streets. I expect similar kinds of projects will be the focus of the board in the coming year."

Mount Morris

Incumbent Mayor Frank M. Provo is seeking reelection on the Mt. Morris First party line. He's going up against former mayor and current village trustee Joel Mike, who's running as a Republican.

William Manthey and Timothy D. Bryant are running unopposed for village trustee positions. Both have been cross-endorsed by Democrats and Republicans.

For Manthey, his candidacy is all about doing what is best for the residents of Mount Morris.

"The change in the community is my biggest concern and I want to make sure it is a safe community," said Manthey, who holds a marketing degree in business from Saint Bonaventure University.

For the past 15 years, Manthey has called Mount Morris home. He is married to his wife Janelle and is the father of three children.

"My biggest goal is being a new generation in the community," he said. "I want to make sure that long term success, that my kids are going to grow up here and I plan to be a resident here for a long time."

In addition to his love for his family, Manthey brings with him business experience and is a member of the village's Zoning Board of Appeals.

"Obviously I know there are some challenges with the Village that we need to overcome," he said. "I want to do things and put things in place that will be for the best interest of the taxpayer."

Jeffrey C. Coniglio is running unopposed for an unexpired trustee's term. He has also been cross-endorsed by Republicans and Democrats.

Bryant and Coniglio could not be reached for comment.

TRANSPORTATION INFRASTRUCTURE

Byrnes: Inadequate highway funding more than a bump in the road

SPECIAL TO THE LCN
Assemblywoman Marjorie Byrnes, R-Caledonia, recently joined David LeFeber, chairman of the Livingston County Board of Supervisors and the Town of Avon supervisor, other town supervisors, and numerous town highway superintendents from Livingston and Monroe counties to call for a funding increase in the state budget for the Consolidated Local Street and Highway Improvement Programs, or CHIPS.

Local highway departments maintain 87 percent of the roadways and 50 percent of the bridges in New York State.

CHIPS is the principal funding source municipalities use to maintain local roads, bridges, and culverts. This funding has not seen an increase since 2013.

"Our highway crews are doing their best. Unfortunately, inadequate and stagnant funding from the state has led to deteriorating road conditions throughout the area. It is increasingly difficult for our local officials to address these maintenance issues. Good roads are imperative for our local economy, public safety, transportation, and our quality of life," Byrnes said in a statement.

The governor's 2021-22 Executive Budget proposed $438.1 million in total state-wide funding for CHIPS for the ninth year in a row.

Further, he proposed eliminating the Extreme Winter Recovery program which was created to assist local highway crews in repairing road damage incurred after harsh winter weather.

"I will continue to fight for proper funding, so our roads and bridges are safe for all of us," Byrnes said.

LIVINGSTON COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Lima man accused of providing drugs, alcohol to teen girl

BY THE LCN STAFF
 LIMA - A Lima man is facing a preliminary investigation confirmed that the juvenile had ingested both alcohol and marijuana. Deputies then began an investigation to determine the source of the drugs and alcohol after it was learned that the substances were consumed at a different location, the Sheriff's Office said.

Tye K. Cerone

Tye K. Cerone, 24, was arrested and charged March 4 with second-degree criminal sale of marijuana, a class D felony; two counts of first-degree unlawfully dealing with a child, and endangering the welfare of a child.

The charges stem from an investigation that began Feb. 26, when deputies were dispatched about 6:10 p.m. to a residence on Greene Village Drive in Lima for the report of a 15-year-old female who had possibly overdosed on drugs and alcohol.

When deputies arrived on scene, the preliminary investigation confirmed that the juvenile had ingested both alcohol and marijuana. Deputies then began an investigation to determine the source of the drugs and alcohol after it was learned that the substances were consumed at a different location, the Sheriff's Office said.

The investigation alleged that Cerone had provided both the alcohol and marijuana to the juvenile while at his residence. The juvenile then went to the residence of a nearby friend where she experienced the adverse reaction to the drugs and alcohol, prompting a 911 call. Livonia EMS responded and treated the juvenile at the scene. She was then released to the care of a parent.

Following Cerone's arrest, he was turned over to Central Booking deputies and Livingston County Jail for processing and pre-arraignment detention. The offenses did qualify for pre-arraignment detention under the state Justice Reform Act. The judge may not set bail for the charges, and must release the defendant.

Cerone was later arraigned at Livingston County Centralized Arraignment Part at Livingston County Jail before Town of Mount Morris Justice David Provo, who released Cerone on his own recognizance with a return date to Lima Town Court. An order of protection was also issued for the juvenile victim.

The incident was investigated by members of the Sheriff's Office Patrol Division and Criminal Investigations Division.

nez was released on his own recognizance and was due to appear in Caledonia Town Court March 15.

Michael J. Gray, 51, of West Sparta, was arrested March 8 and charged with unlawful possession of marijuana in the second degree. He was issued an appearance ticket, returnable to West Sparta Town Court March 18.

Dansville man facing felony contempt charge

BY THE LCN STAFF
 GROVELAND - A Dansville man is facing a felony criminal contempt charge following an investigation that began last November by the Livingston County Sheriff's Office.

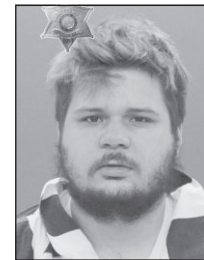

Deputies responded about 9:25 a.m. Nov. 23, 2020, to a business on East State Street in the village of Mount Morris for the report of a violation of an order of protection. The caller advised the responding deputy that on Nov. 21, 2020, while at her residence in the town of Groveland, she received a communication from a male subject that she had obtained an order of protection against.

The investigation alleged that Adam G. Webster, 25, had communicated with the victim via social media after an order of protection was issued by Livingston County Family Court prohibiting Webster from having any contact with her. It is further alleged that Webster had previously been convicted of second-degree criminal contempt on three separate occasions between April 2018 and March 2020.

On March 3, Sheriff's Investigator Josh Monster arrested and charged Webster with first-degree criminal contempt, a class E felony. The charge was a felony due to Webster's previous convictions for criminal contempt.

Adam G. Webster

Webster was turned over to Central Booking deputies at Livingston County Jail for processing and pre-arraignment detention as the offense did qualify for pre-arraignment detention under the state Justice Reform Act. The Livingston County District Attorney's Office requested that Webster be remanded on $5,000 cash bail or $10,000 bond.

Webster was later arraigned at Livingston County Centralized Arraignment Part at Livingston County Jail before Town of Mount Morris Justice David Provo, who remanded Webster to the custody of the Sheriff on $5,000 cash bail or $10,000 bond.

Assisting with the investigation was Deputy Bob Holt of the Patrol Division.

Traffic stop yields drug possession charge

BY THE LCN STAFF
 A Nunda man is facing drug-related charges after the vehicle he was riding in was stopped on Interstate 390 for an alleged violation of state Vehicle and Traffic law, reports the Livingston County Sheriff's Office.

Matthew C. Isham

Deputy Michael Wade was assigned to the Sheriff's Office Operation Safe Interstate initiative when he initiated the stop on Dec. 15, 2020. During the traffic stop, the deputy initiated a roadside drug investigation based upon observations during the stop, the Sheriff's Office said.

The investigation alleged that Matthew C. Isham, 33, a passenger in the vehicle, was in possession of a quantity of suspected cocaine, which he had attempted to conceal from the deputy, the Sheriff's Office said.

Isham was released at the scene, and the suspected cocaine was sent to a forensic lab for testing.

The lab results did return as positive for cocaine, the Sheriff's Office said.

Isham was arrested March 3 by Deputy Michael Wade and charged with seventh-degree criminal possession of a controlled substance and tampering with physical evidence.

Isham was turned over to Central Booking deputies at Livingston County Jail for processing. He was later released on an appearance ticket to return to Avon Town Court at a later date. The offenses did not qualify for arraignment under the state Justice Reform Act.

The operator of the vehicle, who was not named in the Sheriff's Office news release, was identified with proper identification at the scene and issued a traffic ticket for a violation of state Vehicle and Traffic Law.

Deputies discover grow op

BY THE LCN STAFF
 SPARTA - A request to check the welfare of a Sparta man uncovered an alleged marijuana growing operation and drug-related charges for the resident, according to the Livingston County Sheriff's Office.

Douglas L. Stanley

Deputies responded to an address on Groveland Station Road on Sept. 4, 2020, for a general call for service regarding a welfare check, the Sheriff's Office said.

While speaking with the resident, Douglas L. Stanley, 65, Sheriff's Deputy William Clark discovered the alleged growing operation. Inside were 30 marijuana plants in different stages of growth, which yielded 8.3 ounces of marijuana, the Sheriff's Office said.

The evidence was secured and taken to a forensic lab for testing.

Test results showed the suspected marijuana tested positive for THC, the Sheriff's Office said.

THC, or tetrahydrocannabinol, is the main psychoactive compound in marijuana and is what makes people feel high.

Stanley was arrested March 2 and charged with second-degree criminal possession of marijuana, a class D felony; and unlawful growing of cannabis.

Stanley was transported to the Sheriff's Office and turned over to Central Booking Deputies at Livingston County Jail for processing. He was released on an appearance ticket to return to Sparta Town Court at a later date. The offense did not qualify for arraignment under the state Justice Reform Act.

Assisting with the investigation on scene for the Sheriff's Office was Deputy David Richardson of the Patrol Division and Sgt. Caleb Cutting of the Forensic Identification Unit.

Dansville

From A1

Unfortunately, a lot of the trustees have been yes men to him (mayor), is the way I see it. Like I said, Charlie has the knowledge and capability to bring up a lot of those issues. He'll only be one voice, but it's time for a change in Dansville and I think he might show people that people should be questioning things."

Perkins first joined the Dansville Police Department in 1985 and was appointed chief in 1998. He retired in October 2019, a couple months after being placed on administrative leave by the village board.

Mayor Pete Vogt was resistant to divulging information about the circumstances of Perkins' leave and subsequent retirement back in 2019. In an interview last week however, Vogt revealed the board placed Perkins on leave after bringing him up on "several" disciplinary charges.

"The first one was his constantly using work time to socialize with a particular individual. The board got tired of it and told him not to do it several times. He kept doing it, so we finally brought charges against him on that after he had already been given a letter of counsel," Vogt said. "...From what I can say, it was during work hours, there was not a whole lot of work being done. I wouldn't say there was anything inappropriate insofar as intimacy went. Nothing that was obvious, anyways."

After placing Perkins on leave, board members gave Perkins the option of retiring or being fired, Vogt said.

"He could retire or face the music the other way which probably would have messed up his retirement and benefits so he opted to go out more honorably, I guess, to save his own skin," he said.

Vogt also shed new light on the findings of an audit of the police department's evidence locker, which the village board authorized after placing Perkins on leave. Vogt said auditors found the locker was unorganized and in need of cleaning out.

"Charlie's style was... he could find things, but don't expect anybody else to find things," said Vogt. "Administratively, he wasn't very good."

Vogt called attention to what he characterized as Perkins' shortcomings as police chief and encouraged voters to support Zeh and Nagle in a letter mailed to village residents prior to the March 16 election.

In the letter, a copy of which was obtained by the County News, Vogt criticized Perkins in all but name, saying the police department had been "poorly managed" under his leadership and suggesting Perkins ran the department with a low degree of professionalism.

He also noted in the letter that disciplinary records of police officers are open to public review.

"If anyone really cares about transparency and the truth, they might want to look into" officers' disciplinary records, Vogt wrote. "It is very revealing." Vogt said the letters were paid for by "a private individual," though he did not respond to follow up questions of who the private individual was and how many letters were mailed out. He said he sent the letter to make voters aware of what the board had accomplished during Nagle's and Zeh's time as trustees "and, to some extent, sort of hint at why they probably shouldn't have voted for the other individual."

The letter also contained at least one falsehood, Vogt has since acknowledged.

In the letter, Vogt claimed that recordings of board meetings were to the village's website, but that's not true and hasn't been since the village switched the program it uses to host its website a year or so ago.

Vogt stressed Wednesday that the village maintains audio recordings of public sessions of the village board and that if residents have a particular meeting they'd like to listen to, the village can provide the recording on a CD or flash drive.

Dansville resident Amanda Cornelius, who voted for Perkins in last week's election, was "appalled" by Vogt's letter and said it shows the lengths the mayor will go to if he dislikes someone.

"That is what is the most troublesome of it all. I think Charlie had a good chance from the beginning and that is what prompted Pete to resort to that," she said. "The only thing that backfired on him is that he showed who he is and that perhaps being the mayor isn't where he should be because nobody in that position should ever do something that unkind. This village needs change and I wholeheartedly think the mayor is one."

Cornelius praised Perkins' restraint and focus on the issues during his campaign — especially in the face of what she characterized as frequent attacks and "nastiness" from others.

"Perkins chose to stand up against all odds and run, he could've been ugly during the process," she said. "He could've scrutinized all the others running, but he didn't. He chose to put that aside and focus on what really matters in our village."

Laurie Fox, also a Dansville resident, said she felt Vogt's letter was meant to spread "drama and rumors" among voters.

"He is talking about rumors most people have never heard of. They are not talking about issues," said Fox, who felt the letter backfired on Vogt and may have prompted some people to vote for Perkins. "I saw on social media many indicated that they felt it was more important to vote after reading his letter — and for Charlie."

Vogt said he sees nothing wrong with the letter, would do it again in the future if he felt strongly about a certain candidate and pointed out he signed the letter only in his personal capacity, not as mayor.

"If I can't support the candidates of my own party then I guess there's something wrong with that, I would think," he said.

Vogt acknowledged his relationship with Perkins isn't "a real positive one" and that that's likely to carry over into Perkins' new role on the village board. Still, Vogt said he's hopeful all parties involved can put personal differences aside and work in a professional manner to better the village and benefit its residents.

"But there will be some tension I'm sure and differences of opinion, which is not bad," he said. "That in and of itself isn't the issue."

In his statement, Perkins too hinted at a hope of working productively with Vogt and his fellow trustees.

"Determination to serve and succeed is what I did for 34 years of policing and what my time on the board will reflect years from now," he said. "The election is like a stone tossed in the water. There will be ripples. But the election is over and I'm over that step."

VILLAGE ELECTIONS

New mayor in Mount Morris; Dansville, Lima see new trustees

BY BEN BEAGLE
ben@livingstonnews.com

Mount Morris will have a new mayor, and new trustees will take office on the village boards of Dansville and Lima following village elections on Tuesday.

Former Mount Morris Mayor Joel Mike will be returning to the office after he was decisively elected by voters in village elections on Tuesday. Mike received nearly three-quarters of the ballots cast in the mayor's race.

In Dansville, former police chief Charlie Perkins outpolled two incumbents to receive one of two seats on the village board, based on unofficial results from the Livingston County Board of Elections.

And in Lima, two incumbent village board members were voted out by Brian Smith and Carolyn Fleming.

Elections took place in four Livingston County villages — Livonia saw several uncontested races — on Tuesday.

Joel Mike, who had been the village's mayor from 2013 to 2017, received 224 votes, compared to incumbent Mayor Frank M. Provo, who received 72 votes, or 23.86%, according to unofficial results. Mike, who had returned to the village board in 2019, ran as a Republican. Provo ran on the Mount Morris First party line.

In Dansville, Perkins was challenging two incumbents, Republicans Mike Nagle and Norm Zeh, for one of two seats on the Dansville village board. Perkins, who was running on the Democrat and Allegiance party lines, received 326 votes, or 34.83%. Mike Nagle, a Republican, was second with 312 votes, or 33.33%, while Norm Zeh, a Republican, received 297 votes, or 31.73%, according to unofficial results.

Perkins had retired as police chief in 2019 after being placed on administrative leave by the village board for undisclosed reasons.

Perkins said, if elected, he would focus his efforts on maintaining residents' physical and financial health.

"I'm not into sensationalism or drama," he said. "Just straightforward, non-bullying, financially sound government."

In Lima, Republicans Brian Smith and Carolyn Fleming earned the two open seats on the village board, defeating incumbent Democrats John Wadach and David M. Cabrera. Smith received 151 votes, or 27.36%, and Fleming tallied 145 votes, or 26.27%. Wadach received 136 votes, or 24.64%, while Cabrera received 120 votes, or 21.74%, according to unofficial results.

Wadach, 62, a village trustee, is currently serving as mayor of Lima, filling the vacancy left when former mayor John Correll, who was elected to the position in September 2020, accepted a job in Florida. Wadach had served as a village board member from 1987 to 1992 and 2017 to 2020.

Cabrera ran unsuccessfully for a village board position in September 2020. Shortly thereafter, he was appointed to the board to fill a vacancy.

Smith has been a resident of the village for the past 19 years and is a lifelong resident of Livingston County. He worked for 30 years at the University of Rochester Medical Center and now works as an assistant center manager for CSL Plasma.

Fleming first moved to Lima 37 years ago. An engineer by trade, Fleming said she's adept at solving problems and looking at a situation from all angles.

Among uncontested races:

Dansville

Village Justice: Scott Kenney, Rep., 428 votes, 99.77%.

Lima

Mayor (to fill unexpired term): John Skip-tunas, Rep., 211 votes, 98.14%.

Livonia

Trustee (vote for 2): Daniel Coon, Rep., 51 votes, 52.04%; Christopher Genter, 45 votes, 45.2%.

cut a hole in the side of the house to get the victim out. Once Ross was extricated, emergency medical personnel attempted lifesaving measures, but ultimately those measures were unsuccessful.

A Sheriff's sergeant and deputy were treated on scene for minor cuts, bruises and smoke inhalation, but were not transported to the hospital, said Dougherty.

The lead fire agency on scene was the Caledonia

Fire Department. It was assisted by members of the East Avon, Livonia, Le Roy, Lakeville, York, Rush, Mumford, Lima, Geneseo and Scottsville fire departments. Emergency medical personnel from Livingston County, York, Lima, Honeoye Falls and CHS Mobile Integrated Healthcare also responded to the scene.

Also on scene was the Livingston County Coroner's Office and Livingston County Office of Emergency Management.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

and kind of building those bridges. Obviously this is going to require trust on their part because they have had 10 years with Amy, there is certainly a level of comfort there and I want them to have that same level of comfort with me," said Teeters.

In addition to his new role at Noyes, Teeters will devote a half-day each week providing patient care at Finger Lakes Cardiology Group in Geneseo. While based in Dansville, he also will continue to serve providers as AHP's executive medical director.

"The nice thing about coming into this position is with what Amy and the team have built, now I think it is building that reputation, building that physician practice presence to be able to deliver that expanded health care model to the community," said Teeters, who's looking forward to working with Pollard to better acquaint himself with Noyes over the next few weeks. "Right now I think it is learning my way around the hospital and understanding kind of the current state of the union. I am going to be spending more time with Amy over the next several weeks, absorbing as much as I can, so that I will hit the ground running on May 1."

Teeters' wife is a primary care physician with the Department of Veterans Affairs. Together, they have two daughters ages eight and 13.

"We have been here for about 20 years. We came here for training and just never left," he said. "We are very happy here and love the area."

Library

ing a new children's room is something that Emerson said the library has wanted to do for the past 24 years.

"The library addition was built in 1996 and the idea when that part of the building was built is that it would have two floors," she explained. "The upper floor would be the children's area. At the time there was not sufficient money in the budget to do that. So the addition was built with the infrastructure in place to add a second floor but the second floor was not built at that time."

Prior to the new children's area being built, Emerson there was not enough space to serve the increasing number of children who were using the library.

"We needed more space. The children's library had sort of become crammed into a corner on the main floor and it had really outgrown it's space," she said.

In an odd way, Emerson

“The children’s library ... had really outgrown it’s space.”

DEBBY EMERSON

said the timing of the project starting at the same time as the pandemic actually worked to the library's benefit.

"It worked out really well for us because since we had already planned the construction, we knew that we were going to have to cut back on our activities over the summer," she said. "We did have to shut down construction for about a month because at the beginning of the pandemic everything was shut down. The contractors were allowed to go back to work, we were not open and that actually worked out well."

Emerson said it's her hope local kids will be able to take advantage of the additional opportunities and offerings the new space will allow the library to host.

"Of course the purpose was to have a wonderful interactive area where there is more space for children's activities, for children's books and materials and also for children's programming," she said.

A grand opening celebration is being planned for some-times in the near future. In the meantime, Emerson said kids are welcome to come in and enjoy all that the library has to offer.

"One of the things we noticed now is with so many children going to school remotely is that people are really tapped out with all of those online resources," she said. "People want to get their hands on books. They want to come in and sit down and hold books in their hand and touch things. They want to play, so there is a huge need for this."

The library is open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 1:30 to 6 p.m. on Friday and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.
