That defendant auctioneer engaged by assignee for benefit of creditors to conduct an auction sale, had allegedly, to knowledge of the assignee, entered into an arrangement with an office associate whereby the defendant was merely to act as the auctioneer on the day of the sale for $50, although the commissions would amount to about $600, held not to relieve defendant of his obligation to account for and pay over the moneys realized on the auction sale, since duty of auctioneer to receive proceeds of property sold at auction and his obligation to account therefor are non-assignable (Admin. Code §§ B32-138.0, B32-140.0, B32-141.0, B32-142.0, B32-151.0).-In re John C. Creveling & Son Corp., 259 App. Div. 351, 19 N.Y.S. 2d 378 [1940], aff'd. without opinion, 283 N.Y. 760, 28 N.E. 2d 975 [1940].

¶ 3. An auctioneer is subject to the summary jurisdiction of the court for which he acts in respect of his conduct in relation to an estate which has been made the subject of a general assignment and a public sale, since such an estate is in custodia legis. Hence, auctioneer who failed to account for proceeds of property which he sold at an auction and failed to pay over a balance of the proceeds, was properly directed to turn over such sums to the assignee and on failure to do so was properly adjudged in contempt.-Id. ¶ 4. Petitioners were informed by the Department of Licenses that the establishments with which they were connected were conducting fraudulent auctions. They were directed to cease operating or continuing their connections with such establishments, under penalty of forfeiting their license. They refused. The Commissioner's action in revoking their auctioneer licenses, under the circumstances, was neither arbitrary, capricious, nor contrary to law.-Matter of Friedman, 18 Misc. 2d 975, 190 N.Y.S. 2d 439 [1959].

Whenever used in this subchapter the word "laundry" shall mean and include:

1. Any place, which is used for the purpose of washing, drying, starching or ironing, for the general public, wearing apparel, household linens, or other washable fabrics, or a place used or maintained for the storage, collection or delivery of such articles for such service, or

2. Any place maintained by a person dealing in a laundry service either as an independent contractor or jobber, or any private laundry maintained or operated in connection with any hotel, restaurant or public institution, whether for the tenants, customers or inmates of the same or otherwise, except a hospital or charitable institution where no charge is made for laundry services.

3. Any place, whether self-service or otherwise maintained for the general public for the purpose of washing clothing apparel, or other fabrics, whether by automatic or coin operated laundry machinery.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. After a license to operate a laundromat had been revoked because the licensee corporation had represented that none of its officers had been arrested whereas the secretary had been convicted five times for bookmaking, a new application filed by the wife of the secretary after his resignation from the corporation should not have been denied but a hearing should have been conducted to determine the ability of the wife to run the business, the amount of time she would spend in the business and the amount of help she would enlist in the operation thereof.-Clamae v. O'Connell, 135 (24) N.Y.L.J. (2-3-56) 13, Col. 7 M.

¶ 2. A license to operate a laundromat granted to the petitioner corporation could be revoked without a hearing where the secretary of the corporation had been five times convicted of bookmaking and in the application it was stated that none of the officers had ever been arrested or summoned to court. Inasmuch as a license could have been denied if the true facts had been revealed in the application, it could be thereafter revoked without a hearing.-Clamae v. O'Connell, 135 (24) N.Y.L.J. (2-3-56) 13, Col. 7 M.

¶ 3. Defendant which, in connection with its business of furnishing restaurants, night clubs and bars with a complete laundered linen service consisting of tablecloths, napkins, aprons, coats and pants, maintained a fully equipped laundry to launder the linens which at all times remained defendant's exclusive property and was supplied to customers on a rental basis, held not to be engaged in the business of laundering "for the general public" within meaning of Admin. Code § B32-167.0, subd. 1, and was not required to procure a laundry license. Since defendant laundered only its own property the purpose of the licensing statute to protect the public against conversion and loss or damage to its property did not exist. Furthermore, sanitation requirements were prescribed by the Sanitary Code and the licensing statute added nothing in that regard.-People v. Jacobs, 301 N.Y. 456, 95 N.E. 2d 702 [1950].

¶ 4. Maintenance of a coin-operated automatic Bendix Home Laundry machine in basement of 64 family apartment house for use of occupants of the building for domestic laundry work, held not to constitute the operation of a laundry within the meaning of Administrative Code §§ B32-167.0, B32-168.0 and B32-175.0, and hence no license was required for maintenance of such laundry machine.-People v. Benc, 288 N.Y. 318, 43 N.E. 2d 61 [1942].

¶ 5. A self-service automatic laundry was not a "laundry" within the meaning of this section and hence, no license was required. No employees or attendants were necessary to the operation of the automatic machines.-Thrift Wash, Inc. v. O'Connell, 11 Misc. 2d 318, 174 N.Y.S. 2d 70 [1958].

¶ 6. The provision of local law regulating coin-operated laundries which requires presentation to the Board of Estimate before presentation to the Mayor does not violate the City Charter since the law gives new powers to the Licensing Commissioner.-Joan Enterprises Inc. v. City of New York, 30 Misc. 2d 77, 219 N.Y.S. 2d 53 [1961], mod, 14 App. Div. 2d 526, 217 N.Y.S. 2d 278 [1962].

¶ 1. A self-service automatic laundry was not a "laundry" within the meaning of § B32-167.0. But even if plaintiff's business were within the licensing powers of the Commissioner, he exceeded his authority in issuing a regulation which provided that all licensed laundries must be adequately attended at all times, including plaintiff's self-service automatic laundry. There was no existing legislative policy on having self-service laundromats unattended and the Commissioner of Licenses had no power to declare such a policy or create such a legislative standard.-Thrift Wash, Inc. v. O'Connell, 11 Misc. 2d 318, 174 N.Y.S. 2d 70 [1958].

¶ 2. ¶ 1. Legislation (Adm. Code B32-173.0) enacted in 1961 requiring all coin-operated or automatic laundries to close Sundays, close every day between midnight and 6 A.M., and to have an attendant between 6 P.M. and closing, held valid exercise of City's police power and in the public interest. However the provision for Sunday closing is an invasion of the field which the State has pre-empted and that portion, being severable from the other provisions, is invalid.-Joan Enterprises, Inc. v. City of New York, 145 (111) N.Y.L.J. (6-9-61) 15, Col. 5 M.

¶ 2. An order which declared unconstitutional, illegal and void L.L. 1961 No. 14 in its application to the closing of all laundry operations on Sunday was a final determination that could be made only after trial or on a motion for judgment on the pleadings or for summary judgment and was not within the scope of relief sought on a motion for injunctive relief.-Schacht v. City of New York, 14 A.D. 2d 488, 217 N.Y.S. 2d 279 [1961].

¶ 3. Requirements of the Code with respect to the closing of coin-operated laundries and the requirements as to attendants on duty were valid exercises of the City's police power.-Joan Enterprises Inc. v. City of New York, 30 Misc. 2d 77, 219 N.Y.S. 2d 53 [1961], mod, 14 A.D. 2d 526, 217 N.Y.S. 2d 278 [1962].

¶ 5. The provisions of the Code which required automatic or coin-operated laundries to be closed on Sundays was invalid but such invalidity did not affect other provisions of the law.-Joan Enterprises Inc. v. City of New York, 30 Misc. 2d 77, 219 N.Y.S. 2d 53 [1961], mod, 14 A.D. 2d 526, 217 N.Y.S. 2d 278 [1962].

¶ 6. Local Law 14 of 1961 requires all laundromats to close on Sundays and between the hours of midnight and six in the morning on other days. It also requires that an attendant be present from six in the evening until closing. The provision requiring closing on Sunday is invalid because the State Legislature has pre-empted these Sabbath subjects. The other provisions are reasonable, constitutional and valid.-Schacht v. City of New York, 40 Misc. 2d 303, 243 N.Y.S. 2d 272 [1963].

Whenever used in this subchapter, the following terms shall mean and include:

1. "Sale." A sale or an offer to sell to the public goods, wares, and merchandise of any and all kinds and descriptions on hand and in stock in connection with a declared purpose, as set forth by advertising on the part of the seller that such sale is:

a. Anticipatory to the termination, closing, liquidation, wind-up, discontinuance, removal, conclusion, or abandonment of the business, and advertised in the following phrases and in any other phrase or phrases of like or similar language which reasonably convey to the public that the sale is being conducted for such purpose: "going out of business sale," "trustee's sale," "liquidation sale," "executor's sale," "administrator's sale," "insolvent sale," "mortgage sale," "adjustor's sale," "receiver's sale," "loss of lease sale," "forced out of business sale," "branch store discontinuance sale," "removal sale," "warehouse removal sale."

b. Pursuant to the execution of a legal right by a party other than the original owner or owners of the goods, wares and merchandise, without court order, and advertised in the following phrases and in any other phrase or phrases of like or similar language which reasonably convey to the public that the sale is of such a nature: "adjustment sale," "reorganization sale," "creditors' committee sale," "assignee's sale."

c. Pursuant to an intention to renovate, restore, rebuild or alter the premises in which the sale is taking place, and advertised in the following phrases and in any other phrase or phrases of like or similar language which reasonably convey to the public that the sale is conducted for such purposes: "alteration sale," "remodeling sale," "renovation sale."

d. A result of damage or alteration to the goods, wares and merchandise being offered for sale by reason of a disaster or other fortuitous occurrence, and advertised in the following phrases and in any other phrase or phrases of like or similar language which reasonably convey to the public that the sale is being conducted as a result of such occurrence: "fire sale," "insurance salvage sale," "damaged goods sale," "smoke sale," "water damage sale."

2. "Publish," "publishing," "advertisement," "advertising." Any and all means of conveying to the public notice of sale or notice of intention to conduct a sale, whether by word of mouth, by newspaper advertisement, by magazine advertisement, by handbill, by written notice, by printed notice, by printed display, by billboard display, by poster, by radio announcement, by television announcement, and any and all means including oral, written or printed.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. The refusal of the Commissioner of Licenses to grant petitioner a "going out of business" sale license was not arbitrary, where petitioner had applied for a similar license on an earlier occasion, conducted a sale, but did not go out of business, and on the occasion in issue, petitioner did not wait for the issuance of a license but displayed signs appropriate to a closing out sale.-Matter of Windsor Madison Corp., 9 Misc. 2d 1087, 172 N.Y.S. 2d 198 [1958].

¶ 2. The provisions of this article requiring a license to conduct a "going out of business" sale neither deprived a merchant of property without due process of law nor interfered with his right of free speech and hence, the article was not unconstitutional.-Matter of Windsor Madison Corp., 9 Misc. 2d 1087, 172 N.Y.S. 2d 198 [1958].

¶ 3. The statute regulating closing-out sales is a reasonable exercise of the police power in the protection of the public against fraud, and a license fee of $25 is a reasonable charge for the cost of investigation of the applicant. Where defendant, upon refusal of the Commissioner to issue a license, nevertheless displayed large sale signs upon its premises, it was convicted and separately fined upon eight counts.-People v. Windsor Madison Corp., 12 Misc. 2d 446, 173 N.Y.S. 2d 964 [1958].

¶ 4. Where, after defendant was refused a license to conduct a "closing out" sale because of prior violations, it nevertheless persisted in posting placards and advertising in newspapers, its conduct was enjoined.-City of New York v. Windsor Madison Corp., 14 Misc. 2d 674, 173 N.Y.S. 2d 964 [1958].

¶ 5. Rule 11 of the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Licenses, which provided that an auctioneer be held responsible for full compliance by his principal with the law and rules of the department, was inconsistent with § B32-216.0 which exempts licensed auctioneers selling at auction from obtaining a license for such sale. Accordingly, it was error to find a licensed auctioneer guilty of violating Rule 11 where he conducted an auction sale for a creditors committee which had failed to obtain a license.-Matter of Kasper v. O'Connell, 38 Misc. 2d 3, 237 N.Y.S. 2d 722 [1963].

¶ 6. Newspaper advertisement which read "After 36 years of Value-Giving . . . Last 5 Days of the Greatest Clothing Sale in Our History" did not reasonably convey to the public that the store was going out of business. Neither did window advertisement which read: "Choice of the House Last 7 Days".-People v. Litt-Chinitz, Inc., 38 Misc. 2d 864, 239 N.Y.S. 2d 58 [1963].

¶ 2. The provisions of § B32-250.0 et seq were designed to alleviate abuses which were prevalent prior to the enactment of Local Law No. 61 of 1947 and hence had a substantial relation to the welfare of the inhabitants of the City and constituted a valid exercise of the police powers.-Id.

¶ 3. Refusal of Commissioner of Licenses to issue to petitioner a parking lot license for premises situated on a business use district and as to which the Department of Housing and Buildings had issued a certificate of occupancy for parking of motor vehicles, held to have been arbitrary, where the character and qualifications of the applicant and its officials were not questioned. Objections of neighbors based on noises which would emanate from the operation of the lot, traffic hazards and congestion, lack of need for additional parking lot facilities and the residential character of the neighborhood, should have been addressed to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment which recently changed the zone to business. Charter § 773-a and Admin. Code B32-251.0 granting discretion to the Commissioner, did not permit withholding of the permit for the reasons advanced.-B'klyn Parking Corp. v. Cannella, 193 Misc. 811, 85 N.Y.S. 2d 389 [1948].

¶ 4. Denial to petitioner corporation of license to operate garage, on ground that petitioner's secretary-treasurer had falsely stated in the application that the officers had never been arrested whereas in fact petitioner's president had been arrested in 1943, and because a certain notorious criminal had been associated with them theretofore in the operation of a small garage, held to have been arbitrary, where the president's arrest grew out of a marital dispute as result of which, with advice of counsel, the president had removed his property from his apartment, the secretary-treasurer who made the application for the license never knew of such arrest, the association with the "notorious criminal" had been innocent and lasted but a short time when he was killed, and the officers had fully cooperated with the authorities in their investigation of his murder.-Hall Service Stations, Inc. v. McCaffrey, 97 N.Y.S. 2d 626 [1950].

¶ 5. Determination of Commissioner of Licenses revoking petitioner's license to operate a parking lot for failure of petitioner to observe the Commissioner's regulation requiring the premises of parking lots to be adequately attended at all times during operation, with result that, allegedly without petitioner's knowledge, a shack on the premises had been used for at least one week for bookmaking operations by a renter, held not clearly unreasonable and would not be disturbed. The parking lot was enclosed by a fence with a locked door, to which each customer had a key, and the Commissioner's finding that two or three visits a day by the licensee did not constitute compliance with the regulation, was not unreasonable.-In re Schachne (McCaffrey), 104 N.Y.S. 2d 1017 [1951].

¶ 6. The Commissioner refused to issue petitioner a license to operate a parking lot on certain premises because the premises were within the boundaries of a proposed slum clearance project and the Federal government had objected to the continued use of the area for parking. Held: the Commissioner was wrong. He could not deny the application by reason of conditions other than those specified in the applicable legislation. Further, petitioner was willing to stipulate that he would vacate the premises upon the demand of his landlord and surrender the license to the Commissioner.-Matter of McDonald Parking Lot, Inc., 9 Misc. 2d 516, 170 N.Y.S. 2d 574 [1957].

¶ 7. The determination of the Commissioner of Licenses which denied a parking lot license for premises owned by a corporation whose sole stockholders were husband and wife was not arbitrary and capricious where the denial was based on the character of the husband and was supported by the record.-Benson Parking Corp. v. O'Connell, 31 Misc. 2d 1037, 220 N.Y.S. 2d 1010 [1961].

¶ 8. The Commissioner of Licenses did not act arbitrarily in suspending petitioner's parking lot license where the ordinance showed petitioner accepted a car for parking on a public street.-358 West 52nd St. Corp. v. O'Connell, 147 (20) N.Y.L.J. (1-29-62) 14, Col. 4 T.

¶ 9. Although defendant's application for a license to operate a parking lot was rejected by the Department of Licenses on the ground that the property had been leased to defendant by the Port of New York Authority and the city had no license and jurisdiction over Port Authority tenants, he could properly be found guilty of violating this section.-People v. Anderson, 45 Misc. 2d 1005, 258 N.Y.S. 2d 603 [1965].

¶ 10. Refusal of Department of Consumer Affairs to issue petitioner who had obtained a temporary certificate of occupancy from the Department of Buildings for garage facilities a license to operate a public garage in leased premises located in a multiple dwelling on the ground that the rate structure proposed by petitioner and the nature and length of the tenancies sought to be attracted violated the zoning law was arbitrary as that Department is not authorized to enforce the zoning law.-In re Continental 10 West Garage, Inc. (Grant), 163 (66) N.Y.L.J. (4-7-70) 16, Col. 3 F.

¶ 11. Since Administrative Code § C26-121.2 and City Charter § 1804 do not preclude the licensing power of the City over garages and parking lots the defendant must obtain a license to operate a garage and parking lot in addition to a valid certificate of occupancy.-People v. Kadin, 172 (87) N.Y.L.J. (11-1-74) 19, Col. 3 F.

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. The Supreme Court has held that the portion of the statute which requires licensees to be of "good character" is unconstitutionally vague. The statute failed to provide adequate notice of the required conduct, or adequate standards to be used by the persons responsible for enforcing the law. The court said that it was at a loss to determine what conduct the applicant had to exhibit in order to be of "good character." 164 Bronx Parking, LLC v. City of NY 2008 NY Misc. Legislative findings. The legislative findings heretofore made in relation to the business of sight-seeing buses and horse drawn cabs in the city of New York and set forth in local law number ten of nineteen hundred sixty-four continue to be valid; such businesses are vested with a public interest and their regulation and control continue to be necessary and essential in order to cope with certain evils and hazards which existed in the absence of governmental supervision. The supervision formerly was reposed in the police commissioner, but recent experience and study indicate that jurisdiction over such businesses should be transferred to the commissioner. It is further found that the present number of horse drawn cabs licensed in the city of New York is adequate to meet the public need and demand and should be preserved, unless the commissioner finds that additional licenses are necessary and advisable.

SUBCHAPTER 21 SIGHT-SEEING BUSES, HORSE-DRAWN CABS AND DRIVERS*95

a. Any person, firm, partnership, corporation or association, owning or operating a sight-seeing bus, or buses, or horse-drawn cab, or cabs engaging in the business of transporting passengers in, about, over and upon any of the streets, avenues, bridges, highways, boulevards or public places within the limits of the city of New York, shall be issued a license for each bus or cab so operating, provided, however any such person, firm, partnership, corporation or association owning or operating a sight-seeing bus or buses, shall first have obtained a license or licenses, as he or she shall be entitled to receive from the commissioner of motor vehicles of the state of New York as made and provided by law.

b. It shall be unlawful for a license, after being issued by the commissioner, to be transferred to any person, firm, partnership, corporation or association for any cause whatsoever, except that licenses for horse-drawn cabs may be transferred with the approval of the commissioner. Upon voluntary sale or transfer of a licensed horse-drawn cab by the holder of a license or his or her legal representative, the licensee shall immediately notify the commissioner of his or her intention to replace such horse-drawn cab, or shall surrender his or her license. If the license is surrendered, the vendee or transferee may make application to the commissioner for the licensing of the horsedrawn cab so purchased. A new license shall then be issued by the commissioner in place of the license so surrendered, provided the applicant has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner that he or she is qualified to assume the duties and obligations of a horse-drawn cab license.

c. The commissioner shall issue additional licenses only after conducting a public hearing to determine whether the public convenience, welfare and necessity require the operation of additional horse-drawn cabs. The public hearing shall be called upon his or her own motion or upon written request by any applicant. Notice of such public hearing shall be published in the City Record once a week for two consecutive weeks and shall be mailed to all current licensees. If the commissioner shall determine that additional horse-drawn cabs are necessary and advisable, he or she shall certify the number of new licenses to be granted. Not more than one such public hearing shall be held during any calendar year and the commissioner may refuse to consider any request if it appears that a recent public hearing has adequately considered the question. In making his or her determination, the commissioner shall consider among other things, the income of the driver, the income of the owner, the effect upon traffic, and the public demand. The new licenses which are granted shall be allocated to the then existent licensees in the ratio of the number of licenses held by the licensee to the total number of licenses issued and in effect. If a licensee does not accept his or her allotted number within sixty days, his or her additional licenses shall be allocated in the same manner among the remaining licensees. If the number of additional licenses authorized is insufficient to permit such allocation, then the distribution among those licensees entitled to the smallest number of additional licenses shall be made so that priority shall be given to those who have been uninterruptedly licensed for the longest period. New applicants for such additional licenses shall be considered only when the present licensees refuse to accept their allocation of licenses in the manner provided above. The distribution of such additional licenses to new applicants shall be in the order of their filing, provided however that each new applicant shall not be entitled to more than one such additional license until each new applicant who has filed at the time of distribution and who is otherwise eligible has received one license.

The license plate issued to the licensee may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be a plate of a permanent nature with a replaceable date tag attached thereto, indicating the expiration date of the plate during each license year and the issuance of such a plate with such date tag to a person possessing such a plate, shall be deemed issuance of a license plate. Such license plate and the replaceable date tag to be issued from year to year to be attached thereto, shall be of such material, form, design and dimension and set forth such distinguishing number or other identification marks as the commissioner shall prescribe. The commissioner upon renewal of the license hereunder, may continue the use of the license plate for as many additional license years as he or she in his or her discretion may determine, in which event he or she shall issue and deliver to the licensee a replaceable date tag as evidence of renewal of the license, which shall be attached or affixed in such manner as he or she may prescribe by rule. The failure to affix or display such date tag in a manner prescribed by the commissioner shall constitute a violation of this section. In the event of the loss, mutilation or destruction of any license plate or date tag issued hereunder, the owner may file such statement and proof of facts as the commissioner shall require, with a fee of twenty-five dollars, at the department, and the department shall issue a duplicate or substitute license plate or date tag.

Provisions of L.L. 89/1989.

Section one. Legislative Findings. The horse drawn carriage has been a constant feature of New York City's past and continues to be an integral part of the tourist industry. The horse drawn carriage ride offers New Yorkers and tourists alike a unique transportation experience. The continued regulation of the horse drawn carriage industry is necessary to protect the public from the traffic hazards caused by horse drawn carriages. The operation of horse drawn carriages by drivers and owners who have not demonstrated a basic knowledge of the proper care, handling and maintenance of the horse and of the laws and regulations relating to the operation of horse drawn carriages increases the risk that horses will be overworked and treated inhumanely. The presence of horse drawn carriages in areas where there is traffic congestion jeopardizes the safety of the horses and increases the possibility of accidents. It is therefore reasonable and necessary to impose additional regulations on the operation of horse drawn carriages to insure the proper care and handling of the horses and to further safeguard the horses and the public from the hazards of traffic. Additionally, effective and meaningful enforcement of certain regulations requires that owners of horse drawn carriages be legally liable for certain conduct of drivers of horse drawn carriages. Therefore, the Council finds that in order to minimize traffic congestion and to assure the health and safety of motorists and pedestrians, this local law is necessary.

§ 11. Severability. If any clause, sentence, subdivision, paragraph, section or part of this local law be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair or invalidate the remainder thereof, but shall be confined in its operations to the clause, sentence, subdivision, paragraph, section or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which judgment shall have been rendered.

§ 12. This local law shall take effect immediately, except that section eight hereof shall take effect ninety days after enactment, and this local law shall expire four years from the date of enactment.

The City of New York, Office of the City Clerk, s.s.:

I hereby certify the foregoing is a true copy of local law of The City of New York passed by the Council on September 7, 1989, disapproved by the Mayor on October 6, 1989 and repassed by two-third of the Councilmembers on November 21, 1989 and said law is adopted notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. Where defendant contracted with plaintiff's architect to make structural repairs on plaintiff's cooperative apartment, and plaintiff sued defendant for breach of contract and defendant counterclaimed for the balance due on the contract and for the reasonable value of extra work and services performed for plaintiff, the counterclaim would be dismissed where defendant did not possess license required under this section, since this section applies to a subcontractor.-Zimmett v. Professional Acoustics, Ltd., 103 Misc. 2d 971, 431 N.Y.S. 2d 243 [1980].

¶ 2. A licensed sales finance company which purchased a retail installment obligation secured by a mortgage arising out of home improvement work performed in New York City by an unlicensed home improvement contractor can not recover against the home owner.-Dartmouth Plan, Inc. v. Valle, 117 Misc. 2d 534 [1983].

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. Where an unlicensed contractor demands arbitration pursuant to the terms of a home improvement contract, the court has the power to stay arbitration. The issue of compliance with the home improvement license statute is for the court rather than for the arbitrator. Matter of Heller (Clark Construction Corp.), 178 A.D.2d 195, 577 N.Y.S.2d 263 (1st Dept. 1991).

¶ 2. Blake Electric Contracting Co., Inc. v. Paschall, 635 N.Y.S.2d 205 (App.Div. 1st Dept. 1995). The owners engaged a contractor to combine two cooperative apartments into one apartment. The court held that a subcontractor who did not have a license was unable to recover against the owners for this work, either under the contract or in quantum meruit. The purpose of the license law was to safeguard and protect the homeowner against abuses and fraudulent practices. Moreover, a contractor would be barred from enforcing the contract if the license was not issued until after the work was completed.

¶ 3. An unlicensed "construction manager" cannot recover on a home improvement contract. Even though the contractor claimed to have merely coordinated and supervised the work done by other contractors, its activities were still within the purview of the statute. The plaintiff also unsuccessfully contended that the defendant did not reside in the apartment and therefore was not covered by the statute. Although the defendant spent more than half her time abroad, this was her only New York residence and she had not subleased the apartment to anyone else. Thus, defendant could be said to have had a proprietary interest in the apartment and therefore was covered by the statute. The court distinguished the case from Ayres v. Dunhill Interiors, Ltd. 138 A.D.2d 303, 526 N.Y.S.2d 440 (1st Dept. 1988).

¶ 4. A building contract called for a rooftop addition and alteration, which included linking an existing apartment with a renovated tank room on the roof by a new stairway, and the addition of a greenhouse next to the tank room. The court held that this was not a contract for a new building but was considered a "home improvement." Thus, a contractor who did not have the necessary home improvement license could not recover on the contract. Chosen Construction Corp. v. Sun System Prefabricated Solar Greenhouses, Inc., 138A.D.2d 284, 525 N.Y.S.2d 848 (1st Dept. 1988).

¶ 5. In one case, a cooperative shareholder contracted for the performance of work to the apartment. When the contractor demanded payment, the shareholder raised as a defense the fact that the contractor was not licensed. The contractor alleged that the licensing statute did not apply because the building contained more than four units. The court, however, held that where a shareholder contracts for work to be performed in an apartment, the licensing law applies regardless of the number of units in the cooperative building. Anchor Construction, Inc. v. Katz, N.Y.L.J., Apr. 21, 1998, page 26, col. 2 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 6. An entity which claims that its role on a home improvement project was solely to supervise, coordinate and monitor the project was nevertheless required to possess a home improvement contractor license. Since an unlicensed home improvement contractor is unable to enforce a home improvement contract, an owner is entitled to stay of arbitration in a breach of contract arbitration proceeding brought by the contractor. JMT Brothers Realty, LLC v. First Realty Builders, 51 AD3d 453, 856 NYS2d 616 (App. Div. 1st Dept.).

"Home improvement" means the construction, repair, replacement, remodeling, alteration, conversion, rehabilitation, renovation, modernization, improvement, or addition to any land or building, or that portion thereof which is used or designed to be used as a residence or dwelling place and shall include but not be limited to the construction, erection, replacement, or improvement of driveways, swimming pools, terraces, patios, landscaping, fences, porches, garages, fallout shelters, basements, and other improvements to structures or upon land which is adjacent to a dwelling house. "Home improvement" shall not include (i) the construction of a new home or building or work done by a contractor in compliance with a guarantee of completion of a new building project, (ii) the sale of goods or materials by a seller who neither arranges to perform nor performs directly or indirectly any work or labor in connection with the installation of or application of the goods or materials, (iii) residences owned by or controlled by the state or any municipal subdivision thereof, or (iv) painting or decorating of a building, residence, home or apartment, when not incidental or related to home improvement work as herein defined. Without regard to the extent of affixation, "home improvement" shall also include the installation of central heating or air conditioning systems, central vacuum cleaning systems, storm windows, awnings or communication systems.

3. "Building" means any structure containing no more than four residences or dwelling units.

4. "Owner" means any homeowner, cooperative shareholder, condominium unit owner, tenant, or any other person who orders, contracts for or purchases the home improvement services of a contractor or the person entitled to the performance of the work of a contractor pursuant to a home improvement contract.

5. "Contractor" means any person or salesperson, other than a bona fide employee of the owner, who owns, operates, maintains, conducts, controls or transacts a home improvement business and who undertakes or offers to undertake or agrees to perform any home improvement or solicits any contract therefor, whether or not such person is licensed or subject to the licensing requirements of this subchapter, and whether or not such person is a prime contractor or subcontractor with respect to the owner.

6. "Home improvement contract" means an agreement, whether oral or written, or contained in one or more documents, between a contractor and an owner , or contractor and a tenant, regardless of the number of residences or dwelling units contained in the building in which the tenant resides, provided said work is to be performed in, to or upon the residence or dwelling unit of such tenant, for the performance of a home improvement and includes all labor, services and materials to be furnished and performed thereunder.

7. "Licensee" means a person permitted to engage in the home improvement business under the provisions of this subchapter.

8. "Home improvement establishment" means any shop, establishment, place or premises where the home improvement business is transacted or carried on.

9. "Salesperson" means any individual who negotiates or offers to negotiate a home improvement contract with an owner, or solicits or otherwise endeavors to procure in person a home improvement contract from an owner on behalf of a contractor, or for himself or herself should the salesperson be also the contractor, whether or not such person is licensed or subject to the licensing requirements of this subchapter.

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. Home improvement contract between contractor and owner of cooperative apartment was unenforceable when contractor was unlicensed at time of making the contract and contract could not be enforced in arbitration.-Anton Sattler, Inc. v. Cummings, 103 Misc. 2d 4 [1980].

¶ 2. Although this section does not in express terms cover the owner of a cooperative apartment such a person is deemed a tenant for the purposes of the statute.-Id.

¶ 3. Since the work done by plaintiff fell within the scope of this section, and because of the legislative intent to protect against fraudulent practices in the home improvement business, plaintiff's lack of a license barred recovery on the agreements.-Mortise v. 55 Liberty Owners Corp., 102 A.D. 2d, 719, aff'd 63 N.Y. 2d 743, [1984].

¶ 4. The language of the statute must be strictly construed and since a large portion of the work fell within the definition of "home improvement" and not just interior decorating and even though defendants knew when contracting with plaintiff that plaintiff was not licensed, plaintiff is not entitled to any recovery.-Aragona Designs, Inc. v. Cuevas, 193 (11) N.Y.L.J. (1-16-85), Col. 5 B.

¶ 5. Ayres sought to break a home improvement contract with Dunhill Interiors because of shoddy workmanship and the fact that Dunhill was not licensed with city. However, no license is required for building with more than four units and work is not for tenant's residence, § 20-386. Phone book had Ayres living elsewhere. Matter remanded to determine proper residence. Ayres v. Dunhill Interiors, 138 A.D. 2d 303 [1988].

¶ 6. In an action where consumer refused to pay the balance due under a home improvement contract, the contractor who was not licensed, pursuant to Ad Code § 20-386, when the agreement was signed nor when the work was performed (Ad Code § 20-387), was not allowed to amend the complaint to allege the particulars of an after-acquired license because this fact can not be used to validate a contract that was prohibited when performed. B & F Building Corp. v. Liebig, 76 N.Y. 2d 689.

¶ 7. Provisions of the Administrative Code governing licensing of home improvement contractors, §20-385 et seq, do not apply to an agreement between two nonresident contractors for subcontracted work. Contractual agreement between contractors does not constitute a home improvement contract, §20-386(6) within the meaning of the administrative code. Corcoran Marble v. Clark Corp, 155 Misc. 2d 49, 597 N.Y.S.2d 259 [1993].

¶ 8. Blake Electric Contracting Co., Inc. v. Paschall, 635 N.Y.S.2d 205, 222 A.D.2d 264 (App.Div. 1st Dept. 1995). The combining of two cooperative apartments into one constitutes a home improvement within the meaning of the licensing statute. A subcontractor here unsuccessfully argued that the work fell under a "new home" exception to the statute. Despite the extensive work involved, the work nevertheless constituted the renovation of an existing home, not the erection of a new one.

¶ 9. A cooperative housing corporation, which contracts for repairs for a swimming pool, is not a "homeowner" entitled to statutory protection against unlicensed contractors. The court noted that the pool had a commercial aspect to it, since membership fees were charged to both dwelling unit owners and members of the public who sought to use the pool. Todd Harris Co., Inc. v. 601 Kappock Owners Corp., 567 N.Y.S.2d 342, 149 Misc.2d 649 (Civ.Ct. Bronx Co. 1991).

¶ 10. See Routier v. Waldeck, 184 Misc.2d 487, 708 N.Y.S.2d 270 (Dist.Ct. Nassau Co. 2000), discussed under § 26-387.

¶ 12. The failure of a contractor to have a home improvement license precludes the contractor from enforcing the contract, even if part of the property is residential and part is leased to a commercial tenant. The court rejected the contractor's argument that the law did not apply at all where any portion of the premises was commercial. The contractor than argued that the commercial portion of the work should be severed from the residential portion, so that the commercial portion of the contract could be enforced separately, but the court said that this was not permitted under the law. Smith v Waner, N.Y.L.J., Oct. 23, 2003, at 18, col. 1 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 13. The installation of room air conditioners is not in itself a home improvement for purposes of the statute. Power Cooling, Inc. v. Wassong, 5 Misc.3d 22, 783 N.Y.S.2d 741 (1st Dept. 2004).

¶ 14. Where the premises are part residential and part commercial, a home improvement contractor must be licensed, or will be subject to the forfeiture provisions of the statute. Young's L & M Construction, Inc. v. Kelley, 13 Misc.3d 307, 822 N.Y.S.2d 409 (Sup.Ct. New York Co. 2006).

§ 20-387 License required.

(a) No person shall solicit, canvass, sell, perform or obtain a home improvement contract as a contractor or salesperson from an owner without a license therefor.

(b) A license issued pursuant to this subchapter may not be construed to authorize the licensee to perform any particular type of work or engage in any kind of business which is reserved to qualified licensees under separate provisions of state or local law, nor shall any license or authority other than that which is issued or permitted pursuant to this subchapter authorize engaging in the home improvement business.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. Where owner of property hired an appraisal corporation to submit a report on damages to a fire insurance company and to repair the building and corporation had not been licensed it could not recover the contract price for the work done but could recover in quantum meruit for the services rendered and materials supplied.-Lindner Appraisal Corp. v. H. Mabel Freuisl Corp., 72 Misc. 2d 1041, 340 N.Y.S. 2d 242 [1973].

¶ 2. Where plaintiff was not licensed by this section he could not recover for work, labor and services performed under a home improvement contract.-Vegliack v. Mazzella, 73 Misc. 2d 90, 341 N.Y.S. 2d 564 [1973].

¶ 3. Plaintiff who failed to obtain a license to engage in the home improvement, remodeling and repair business could not obtain a judgment on his claim for labor and materials supplied in connection with a renovation either in contract or quantum meruit.-Buffoleno v. Denning, 82 Misc. 2d 472, 369 N.Y.S. 2d 600 [1975].

¶ 4. Where a contractor cannot prove that he was licensed the contract for home improvements will not be enforced and his recovery is "limited to the lesser of plaintiff's costs of performance, its reasonable value or the contract price so that no profit may be derived from the statute."-Gargano v. Smith, 97 Misc. 2d 555 [1978].

¶ 5. Plaintiff was not a licensed home improvement contractor, performed work and filed mechanic lien. Complaint should be dismissed since lack of license bars recovery in either contract or quantum meruit, even though defendant owner knew that plaintiff was unlicensed when contract was made and planned to take advantage of its absence.-Sidney Millington v. John D. Rapoport, 98 A.D. 2d 765, [1983].

¶ 6. A plumber's license does not permit the holder to do the work of a home improvement contractor without a license for that trade and thus plaintiff is not entitled to any payment for renovations.-All City Plumbing and Contracting Corp. v. Glaser, 193 (98) N.Y.L.J. (5-22-85) 7, Col. 3B.

¶ 1. Defendants contracted to build a rooftop extension of their apartment including a greenhouse. The alterations did qualify as a "home improvement" pursuant to § 20-386(2). Defendant refused to pay when work was not completed on contract date. Further, the contractors were not licensed pursuant to § 20-387. Recovery by contractors is barred regardless that they possessed a valid building permit or whether the work done was satisfactory or whether homeowner's knew and took advantage of non-licensure. Chosen Construction Corp. v. Syz, 138 AD2d 284 [1988].

¶ 2. Strict compliance with licensing requirement, § 20-387, is mandatory. Where the contractor was not licensed when the work was done, it cannot recover, even if it subsequently obtained renewal of its license. Hanjo v. Wick, 155 AD2d 304 [1989].

¶ 3. Plaintiff's oral contract to provide labor and materials provided for defendant's cooperative apartment was void and unenforceable due to plaintiff's admitted failure to obtain a home improvement license as required by Ad Code § 20-387(a), even if the work was performed satisfactorily or the failure to obtain the license was willful. Papadopulos v. Santini, 159 AD2d 335.

¶ 4. An unlicensed home improvement contractor sought arbitration of a contract it had entered into. It is clear in §20-387(a) that "no person shall . . . perform or obtain a home improvement contract . . . without a license therefor." The act of obtaining a license is not ministerial or a mere technicality. Court affirms stay of arbitration. Heller v. Clark Constr. Corp., 178 AD2d 195, 178 A.D.2d 195, 577 N.Y.S.2d 263 [1991].

¶ 5. Mechanic's liens were discharged because renovation contract which was entered into between defendant and proprietary lessee was unenforceable because defendant did not possess home improvement license required by Ad Code §20-387. East 70th St. Corp. v. Argus Constr. Corp., 193 AD2d 563, 598 N.Y.S.2d 209 [1993].

¶ 6. Plaintiff, which was not a licensed home improvement contractor, performed repairs on fire damaged house.

When payment was not forthcoming a mechanic's lien was filed. The purpose of the regulatory scheme in Ad Code §§20-385 and 20-387 is to protect landowners against abuse and fraud. It is well settled that a lack of license bars recovery in either contract or quantum meruit. Lien dismissed. Hughes Contr. Corp. v. Coughlan, 202 AD2d 476, 609 N.Y.S.2d 43 [1994].

¶ 8. A subcontractor is not deemed an "owner" under protections of the statute. Therefore, where a subcontractor sues a contractor for breach of contract, the contractor cannot invoke the forfeiture provisions of the license law. Jack A. Corcoran Marble Co. v. Clark Construction Corp., 155 Misc.2d 49, 597 N.Y.S.2d 259 (Sup.Ct. New York Co. 1993).

¶ 9. In order to seek enforcement of the contract, the contractor must have a valid license at the time of commencement of the litigation and a valid license at the time of execution of the contract and performance of the work. B & F Building Corp. v. Liebig, 155 A.D.2d 377, 548 N.Y.S.2d 880 (1989), aff'd 76 N.Y.2d 689, 563 N.Y.S.2d 40 (1990).

¶ 10. CPLR 3015(e) allows a contractor who does not possess the required license at the commencement of the action to amend the complaint to allege that he thereafter acquired a license. However, this section will not permit a contractor to recover where he was not licensed at the time of execution of the contract or the work was performed. In other words, the CPLR provision will help only those contractors who had valid licenses when the work was performed but whose licenses lapsed thereafter. B & F Building Corp. v. Liebig, 76 N.Y.2d 689, 563 N.Y.S.2d 40 (1990).

¶ 11. The licensing law applies to a apartment improvement contract made by an individual cooperative shareholder, even though the building contains more than four residences. Matilda Construction, Inc. v. 420 East 72nd Street Tenants Corp., 259 A.D.2d 374, 687 N.Y.S.2d 120 (App.Div. 1st Dept. 1999).

¶ 12. Where a prime contractor does not have the required license, a subcontractor cannot maintain a mechanic's lien against the premises even though the subcontractor does have a license. Ratner v. Skyline Windows, 180 Misc.2d 480, 689 N.Y.S.2d 625 (Sup.Ct. New York Co. 1999); Moonstar Contractors, Inc. v. Katsir 2001 WL 1649230 (Civ.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 13. In one case, the court had to determine who is an "owner," in terms of persons entitled to invoke the forfeiture provisions of Section 20-386 and 20-387. The court stated that the term "owner" includes people who reside in the building or who intend to reside in the building once the contractor's work is completed, but does not include real estate investors who do not intend to reside in the building. Routier v. Waldeck, 184 Misc.2d 487, 708 N.Y.S.2d 270 (Dist.Ct. Nassau Co. 2000).

¶ 14. The protections against unlicenced contractors extend not only to cooperative shareholders but also to condominium unit owners. The contractor sought to bring the case within the statutory exemption governing renovation work on buildings having more than four units (the condominium had about 100 units; see Admin. Code Sec. 20-386(3) regarding exemption). However, the court held that since Admin. Code Sec. 20-386(4) includes condominium unit owners within the definition of "owner," the exemption applies only if a unit owner owns four or more units, which was not the case here. Ellenhorn v. Campanella Construction Co., N.Y.L.J., Sept. 6, 2000, page 22, col. 3 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 15. Where a contractor has a valid home improvement contractors' license, the failure of the contracting corporation or the corporate principal to have a home improvement salespersons' license will not defeat recovery under the home improvement contract. Tri-State General Remodeling v. Baijnauth, 194 Misc.2d 135, 753 N.Y.S.2d 327 (Civ.Ct. Bronx Co. 2002).

¶ 16. The owner of a townhouse brought a petition to vacate an arbitration award requiring her to pay an architect a sum of money due on a contract to make and install a conservatory atop the owner's townhouse. Petitioner argued that the arbitrator had shown "manifest disregard" for the law. Manifest disregard occurs where a governing legal principle is well defined, explicit and clearly applicable to the case, and where the arbitrator ignored it after it was brought to the arbitrator's attention in a way that assures the arbitrator knew its controlling nature. Goldman v. Architectural Iron Co., 306 F.3d 1214 (2d Cir. 2002).

¶ 17. The installation of audio and video systems in an apartment did not constitute a home improvement within the meaning of the statute. Innovative Audio Video v. Freedman, 7 Misc.3d 383, 789 N.Y.S.2d 417 (Sup.Ct. New York Co. 2005).

¶ 18. A "home improvement" contract involves a residence. It does not have to be the primary residence of the owner. Isogon Interim, Inc. v. Crnkovic, N.Y.L.J., Aug. 24, 2005, at 18, col. 1 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 19. A corporate contractor does not satisfy the requirements of the law by being licensed in Westchester and having its principal licensed in New York City. Isogon Interim, Inc. v. Crnkovic, N.Y.L.J., Aug. 24, 2005, at 18, col. 1 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 20. In Intrepid Electrical Contractor, Inc. v. Serure, 34 A.D.3d 430, 824 N.Y.S.2d 351 (2d Dept. 2006), the court said that licensing statutes were strictly construed, so that, under Admin. Code. § 20-387, an unlicensed home improvement contractor could not recover for services rendered either on the contract or quantum meruit, pursuant to Admin. Code of § 20-387. However, under Admin. Code § 20-397(2), a duly licensed electrical contractor need not obtain a separate home improvement contractor's license if he or she performs work which is within the scope of his or her license. Where there is a triable issue as to whether the work actually constituted electrical work or work ancillary to electrical work, rather than a non-electrical related home improvement, a homeowner is not entitled to summary judgment dismissing the electrical contractor's suit on the contract.

¶ 21. Courts strictly construe the licensing requirements for home improvement contractors , and public policy prohibits an unlicensed contractor from recovering for breach of contract or in quantum meruit. However, whre the contract provides for arbitration, the homeowner who wishes to preserve the defense must move to stay arbitration. In one case, the owner failed to move for a stay and actively participated in the arbitration. Where the arbitrator issued an award in favor of the contractor and rejected the statutory defense, finding that the work was for commercial rather than residential purposes, the court declined to vacate the arbitration award. In re Metrobuild Assoc. Inc. v. Nahoum, 51 AD3d 555, 875 N.Y.S.2d 564, leave to appeal denied, 11 NY3d 704, 864 N.Y.S.2d 808 (2008).

¶ 22. In one case, plaintiffs retained a contractor to perform substantial renovations which included, among other things, plumbing and electrical work. After defendant walked off the job due to payment disputes, plaintiffs sued to recover amounts previously paid to defendant. It was alleged that plaintiffs had to retain a new contractor and that a significant amount of the installations done by defendant had to be removed and replaced. Defendant not only was an unlicensed home improvement contractor, in violation of Sec. 20-387, but it also unlawfully performed plumbing work and electrical work without supervision of a licensed master or special plumber's or electrician's license, respectively (Secs. 26-142 and 27-3017). Defendant contended that some of the work was properly performed and that even if there were violations of the licensing statutes, plaintiffs could not recover amounts previously paid to the defendant. The court, however, held that since it was undisputed that the amounts expended to replace the defective work exceeded the amount previously paid to the defendant, plaintiffs could recover the amounts paid to the defendant. Recovery for damages caused by an unlicensed contractor's defective work is within the protection afforded to consumers by the licensing laws. The vague nature of the testimony of the principal of the corporate defendant was an added reason to hold for the plaintiff. The defendant's corporation is a shell dominated by the individual principal; it had no identifiable assets; expenses were paid in cash and no payroll was maintained for the plaintiff's job and workers were not hired by the corporation but by an outside entity. Therefore, the court pierced the corporate veil and plaintiffs were able to recover against the individual shareholder. Maltese v. New England Contractors et al. 2007 NY Slip Op. 52259U, 17

¶ 1. A home improvement contract was completed, and the homeowner had accepted the benefits without objection. Five months later, the owner sought to cancel the contract due to the contractor's failure to provide a written home improvement contract. The court held that the statute did not give the owner the right to rescission of the contract after it had been performed, where there was no claim that the owner was induced to cotract in reliance upon any fraudulent misrepresentations or other misconduct on the contractor's part. In other words, a licensed contractor can recover on a fully performed oral contract. Rasmus Construction Corp. v. Nagel, 646 N.Y.S.2d 926, 168 Misc.2d 520 (App.Term 1st Dept. 1996).

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. Section which makes abandonment or wilful failure to perform without justification a home improvement contract a misdemeanor is unconstitutional as violative of the Thirteenth Amendment and the federal statutes in support thereof.-People v. Lavender, 48 N.Y. 2d 334 [1979].

¶ 1. In Harmon v. Ivy Walk Inc. 2008 NY Slip. Op. 1632, 48 AD3d 344, 853 N.Y.S.2d 289 (1st Dept. 2008), a residential owner (Harmon) and a contractor (Ivy Walk) entered into a contract which provided that disputes would be subject to arbitration. When a dispute arose, Harmon sought to stay arbitration on the ground that Ivy Walk had violated the contractor licensing laws. Ivy Walk originally was incorporated under the name, and changed its name to "Ivy Walk, Inc." by a certificate of amendment. Ivy Walk renewed its license after changing its name. Although the renewal application had the correct tax identification number, address, telephone number and ownership information, it did not inform the Dept. of Consumer Affairs (DCA) about the name change. Over a year later, during the pendency of this proceeding, the DCA issued a new home improvement license, under a different number, to Ivy Walk, Inc. In seeking a stay of arbitration, Harmon pointed out that at the time of the making of the contract, Ivy Walk's license was in its former name, and contended that Ivy Walk's failure to inform DCA of its name change rendered the construction contract unenforceable. The court began its analysis by noting that the Home Improvement Bus. Law (Admin. Code of the City of NY Chap. 2) is a consumer protectioin statute whose intent was to safeguard and protect consumers against fraudulent practices and inferior work products by persons and businesses claiming to be home improvement contractors (§ 20-385). The code provides that those who conduct home improvement businesses must be licensed (§ 20-387(a)) and strict compliance with this licensing requirement is mandatory. Here, it is undisputed that Ivy Walk

Company had a licensed issued by DCA, and retained the same corporate structure. Thus, the issue becomes whether their failure to notify DCA of its name change, as required by § 20-393(7) voided its license, and consequently, the contract established between the parties.

Section 20-393 applies only to licensed contractors. By finding a violation of this section, the court essentially acknowledged that Ivy Walk was a licensed contractor. There is a difference between violations by licensed contractors under § 20-392 from violations by unlicensed contractors § 20-401. Notice and due process requirements under § 20-399 must be provided to a licensee before a penalty is imposed. Only after the penalty is imposed, do the courts engage in a judicial review process as defined under § 20-400.

The court said that even though the name change had not been reported to DCA, it it has long been held that a corporation may be known by several names in transacting its business, and it may enforce and be bound by contracts entered into in an adopted name other than the regular name under which it was incorporated. This is particularly the case where there is no confusion as to the parties involved in the contract. There is no issue here that the parties did not know with whom they were dealing. Ivy Walk had the same officers and contact information as those on file with DCA. While it was true that Ivy Walk did not comply with the name change requirements as defined under the Admin. Code, that issue should be addressed according to the regulations set forth under the code, and not as a means to prevent mediation or arbitration. Accordingly, the court denied the petition to stay arbitration.

A licensee shall furnish a notice to the owner that, in addition to any other right to revoke an offer, the owner may cancel a home improvement contract until midnight of the third business day after the day on which the owner has signed an agreement or offer to purchase relating to such contract or until midnight of the third business day after the day on which the owner receives the notice of his or her right to cancel, whichever occurs later. Cancellation occurs when written notice of cancellation is given to the home improvement contractor. Notice of cancellation, if given by mail, shall be deemed given when deposited in a mailbox properly addressed and postage prepaid. Notice of cancellation shall be sufficient if it indicates the intention of the owner not to be bound by such home improvement contract or offer to purchase relating to such contract. Notwithstanding the foregoing, this paragraph shall not apply to a transaction in which the owner has initiated the contact and the home improvement is needed to meet a bona fide emergency of the owner, and the owner furnishes the home improvement contractor with a separate dated and signed personal statement in the owner's handwriting describing the situation requiring immediate remedy and expressly acknowledging and waiving the right to cancel the home improvement contract within three business days.

Any vehicle seized pursuant to this subdivision shall be delivered into the custody of the department or other appropriate agency. The commissioner shall hold a hearing to adjudicate the violation underlying the seizure within five business days after the date of seizure and shall render his or her determination within three business days after the conclusion of the hearing. In addition to any other fine, penalty or sanction provided for in section 20-401 of this code, a vehicle seized pursuant to subdivision b of this section, and all rights, title and interest therein shall be subject to forfeiture to the city upon notice and judicial determination thereof if the owner of such vehicle has been found liable at least two times within a five-year period for engaging in unlicensed activity, and each of those determinations have included findings that a vehicle was used in connection with such violations.

2. A forfeiture action pursuant to this subdivision shall be commenced by the filing of a summons with a notice or a summons and complaint in accordance with the civil practice law and rules. Such summons with notice or a summons and complaint shall be served in accordance with the civil practice law and rules on all owners of the subject vehicle listed in the records maintained by the department of motor vehicles, or for vehicles not registered in the state of New York, in the records maintained by the state of registration. A vehicle which is the subject of such action shall remain in the custody of the department or other appropriate agency pending the final determination of the forfeiture action.

3. Notice of the institution of the forfeiture action shall be given by first-class mail to all persons holding a security interest in such vehicle, if such security interest has been filed with the department of motor vehicles pursuant to the provisions of title ten of the vehicle and traffic law, at the address set forth in the records of such department, or for vehicles not registered in the state of New York, all persons holding a security interest in such vehicle if such security interest has been filed with the state of registration and which persons are made known by such state to the department, at the address provided by such state of registration.

4. Any owner who receives notice of the institution of a forfeiture action who claims an interest in the vehicle subject to forfeiture may assert a claim in such action for the recovery of the vehicle or satisfaction of the owner's interest in such vehicle. Any person with a security interest in such vehicle who receives notice of the institution of the forfeiture action who claims an interest in such vehicle subject to forfeiture may assert a claim in such action for satisfaction of such person's security interest in such vehicle.

5. Forfeiture pursuant to this subdivision shall be made subject to the interest of a person who claims an interest in the vehicle pursuant to paragraph four of this subdivision, where such person establishes that: (i) the use of the vehicle for the conduct that was the basis for the seizure of the vehicle occurred without the knowledge of such person, or if such person had knowledge of such use, that such person did not consent to such use by doing all that could reasonably have been done to prevent such use, and that such person did not knowingly obtain such interest in the vehicle in order to avoid the forfeiture of such vehicle, or (ii) that the conduct that was the basis for such seizure was committed by any person other than such person claiming an interest in the vehicle, while such vehicle was unlawfully in the possession of a person who acquired possession thereof in violation of the criminal laws of the United States or any state.

6. The department or agency having custody of the vehicle, after judicial determination of forfeiture, shall, at its discretion, either (i) retain such vehicle for the official use of the city; or (ii) by public notice of at least five days, sell such forfeited vehicle at public sale. CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. This statute covers not only process servers but a process serving agency.-A.B.C. Process Serving Bureau v. City of N.Y., 63 Misc. 2d 33, 310 N.Y.S. 2d 859 [1970].

¶ 2. Service of process was valid although made by person not licensed as a process server as required by this section.-Novick v. Benjamin, 167 (57) N.Y.L.J. (3-23-72) 16, Col. 5 F.

¶ 3. Valid service of process is not rendered invalid by fact that it was made by a person who had served more than five persons within the past year and was not a licensed process server.-Wellington Associates v. Vendee Enterprise Corp., 75 Misc. 2d 330, 347 N.Y.S. 2d 788 [1973].

¶ 4. Petitioner, proprietor of a process serving business in White Plains, had no standing to bring an Article 78 proceeding seeking to direct the Commissioner of the Department of Consumer Affairs to enforce the licensing requirement for process servers as to various unlicensed businesses based in Westchester, since the ordinance was not adopted to benefit process servers but to protect the public against abuses in the field of process serving.-Matter of Nolen (Ratner) 180 (114) N.Y.L.J. (12-25-78) 6, Col. 2T.

¶ 5. Service process in holdover summary proceeding which was proper in all other respects, shall not be void merely because process service was unlicensed pursuant to Art. 43 (§ B32-450.0 et seq.). Enforcement provisions of licensing requirements are contained in Title A, chap. 32 (§ 773-1.0 et seq.) and also do not make such service void.-Feierstein v. Mullan, 120 Misc. 2d 574 [1983].

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. A routine check of records of a licensed process server showed that petitioner, a process server, on several occasions, had prepared affidavits of service and logbook entries which indicated service was made on two different persons at two different addresses at exactly the same time or within a ten minute period, when in fact the addresses were a considerable distance apart and such timing would be physically impossible. The court held that the violation was sufficiently severe as to warrant revocation of the process server's license, although it reduced the fine imposed on petitioner, in light of his age (62) and that fact that he had only been working part-time. Hecker v. Department of Consumer Affairs of the City of New York, 131 Misc.2d 280, 499 N.Y.S.2d 828 (Sup.Ct. New York Co. 1986).

¶ 2. Otherwise valid service of process will not be invalidated by reason of non-compliance with Ad Code provisions regarding the licensing of process servers. Timur on Fifth Ave. v Jim, Jack & Joe Realty Corp., N.Y.L.J., Oct. 19, 2000, page 29, col. 2 (App.Term 1st Dept.).

¶ 3. Where a process server does not have the required license, he or she may be subject to sanctions for non-compliance. However, if service is otherwise valid, the lack of a license will not invalidate service. New York City Housing Auth. Taylor-Wythe Houses v. Spitzer, 12 Misc.3d 1166(A), 820 N.Y.S.2d 844, 2006 WL 1559606 (Civ.Ct. Kings Co.).

The council hereby declares that the raising of funds for the promotion of bona fide charitable, educational, scientific, health, religious, and patriotic causes and undertakings, where the beneficiaries are undetermined, is in the public interest. It hereby finds that, as conducted prior to the enactment of this subchapter, games of chance were the subject of exploitation by professional gamblers, promoters and commercial interests. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the council that all phases of supervision, licensing and regulation of games of chance and the conduct of games of chance should be closely controlled and that the local laws and regulations pertaining thereto should be strictly construed and rigidly enforced; that the conduct of the games and all attendant activities should be so regulated and adequate controls so instituted as to discourage commercialization in all its forms, including the rental of commercial premises for games of chance, and to ensure a maximum availability of the net proceeds of games of chance exclusively for application to the worthy causes and undertakings specified herein; that the only justification for this subchapter is to foster and support such worthy causes and undertakings, and that the mandate of section nine of article one of the state constitution, as amended, and of article nine-A of the general municipal law, should be carried out by rigid regulations to prevent commercialized gambling, prevent participation by criminal and other undesirable elements and prevent the diversion of funds from the purposes herein authorized.

1. "Board" shall mean New York state racing and wagering board.

2. "Games of chance" shall mean and include specific games of chance, in which prizes are awarded on the basis of a designated winning number or numbers, color or colors, symbol or symbols determined by chance, but not including games commonly known as "bingo or lotto" which are controlled under article fourteen-H of the general muncipal law and also not including "slot machines", "bookmaking", and "policy or numbers games" as defined in section 225.00 of the penal law. No game of chance shall involve wagering of money by one player against another player.

3. "Authorized organization" shall mean and include any bona fide religious or charitable organization or bona fide educational or service organization or bona fide organization of veterans or volunteer firefighters, which by its charter, certificate of incorporation, constitution, or act of the legislature, shall have among its dominant purposes one or more of the lawful purposes as defined in this subchapter, provided that each shall operate without profit to its members, and provided that each such organization has engaged in serving one or more of the lawful purposes as defined in this subchapter for a period of three years immediately prior to applying for a license under this subchapter.

No organization shall be deemed an authorized organization which is formed primarily for the purpose of conducting games of chance and the distribution of the proceeds thereof to itself or any other organization and which does not devote at least seventy-five percent of its activities to other purposes set forth in this subdivision. No political party shall be deemed an authorized organization.

4. "Lawful purposes" shall mean one or more of the following causes, deeds or activities:

(a) Those which shall benefit needy or deserving persons indefinite in number by enhancing their opportunity for religious or educational advancement, by relieving them from disease, suffering or distress, or by contributing to their physical well-being, by assisting them in establishing themselves in life as worthy and useful citizens, or by increasing their comprehension of a devotion to the principles upon which this nation was founded and enhancing their loyalty to their governments.

(b) Those which shall initiate, perform or foster worthy public works or shall enable or further the erection or maintenance of public structures;

(c) Those which shall otherwise lessen the burdens borne by government or which are voluntarily undertaken by an authorized organization to augment or supplement services which government would normally render to the people.

5. "Net proceeds" shall mean (a) in relation to the gross receipts from one or more occasions of games of chance, the amount that shall remain after deducting the reasonable sums necessarily and actually expended for supplies and equipment, prizes, stated rental if any, bookkeeping or accounting services according to a schedule of compensation prescribed by the board, janitorial services and utility supplies if any, license fees, and the cost of bus transportation, if authorized by the board and (b) in relation to the gross rent received by an organization licensed to conduct such games for the use of its premises by another licensee, the amount that shall remain after deducting the reasonable sums necessarily and actually expended for janitorial services and utility supplies directly attributable thereto if any.

9. "Authorized supplier of games of chance equipment" shall mean any person, firm, partnership or organization licensed by the board to sell or lease games of chance equipment or paraphernalia which meets the specifications and regulations established by the board. Nothing herein shall prevent an authorized organization from purchasing common articles, such as cards and dice, from normal sources of supply of such articles or from constructing equipment and paraphernalia for games of chance for its own use. SUBCHAPTER 27 GENERAL VENDORS*2

For the purposes of this subchapter, the following words and terms shall have the following meaning:

a. "Food". Any raw, cooked, or processed edible substances, beverages, ingredients, ice or water used or intended for use or for sale in whole or in part for human consumption.

b. "General vendor." A person who hawks, peddles, sells, leases or offers to sell or lease, at retail, goods or services, including newspapers, periodicals, books, pamphlets or other similar written matter in a public space. This definition shall not include a food vendor as defined in subdivision c of section 17-306 of chapter three of title seventeen of this code, or a person required to be licensed under section 20-229 of subchapter seven of chapter two of this title of this code. This definition also shall not include persons who use stands or booths in a public space for the shining of shoes. This definition shall not include a pedicab driver licensed in accordance with subchapter nine of this chapter, who is operating a pedicab registered pursuant to subchapter nine and shall not include a pedicab owner licensed pursuant to such subchapter.

c. "General vending business" or "vending business". The business of selling, leasing or offering to sell or lease, at retail, goods or services other than food, engaged in by a general vendor in a public space.

d. "Public space". All publicly owned property between the property lines on a street as such property lines are shown on the City Record including but not limited to a park, plaza, roadway, shoulder, tree space, sidewalk or parking space between such property lines. It shall also include, but not be limited to, publicly owned or leased land, buildings, piers, wharfs, stadiums and terminals.

e. "Pushcart". Any wheeled vehicle or device used by a general vendor in a public space, other than a motor vehicle or trailer, which may be moved with or without the assistance of a motor and which does not require registration by the department of motor vehicles.

f. "Stand". A movable, portable or collapsible structure, framework, device, container or other contrivance, other than a vehicle or pushcart, used by a general vendor in a public space for the purpose of displaying, keeping or storing any merchandise or article required by him or her while acting as such vendor.

g. "Vehicle". A motor vehicle or trailer, as defined in the vehicle and traffic law.

h. "Vend". To hawk, peddle, sell, lease, offer to sell or lease, at retail, goods or services other than food in a public space.

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. Street performer charging $5 to take photographs of people in front of a backdrop cloth on a city street is not a "general vendor" within the meaning of Ad Cd §20-452, nor does his product, a memorialization of his performance, fit the statutory language of "goods" or "services". People v. Bissinger, 163 Misc. 2d 667 [1994].

¶ 3. Plaintiff challenged the City's regulation of his so-called "street photography." He uses a digital camera to photograph passers-by and produces prints for them right on the spot. In order to avoid arrest for obstructing traffic, plaintiff applied for permits from the Mayor's Office of Film, Theatre and Broadcasting. The City, however, took the position that plaintiff was a general vendor under Administrative Code §20-452, and that his business did not fall under the jurisdiction of the Mayor's film office. The court upheld the City's position that plaintiff was a general vendor. Although the photography was protected by the First Amendment, the City's regulations were content-neutral. Plaintiff alleged that his photography was no different from the work which falls under the Mayor's film office, but the court disagreed. The court distinguished between an application to conduct filming for a limited time frame and plaintiff's attempt to interact with pedestrians every day in the most congested areas of the City. The government had a legitimate interest in keeping the streets safe and free of congestion, and the restrictions were narrowly tailored to achieve this goal, the court said. Under the City's regulations, plaintiff was permitted to take and sell photographs to tourists in such spots as St. Patrick's Cathedral or Rockefeller Center, so long as he did not set up a table, cart or similar device. The court noted that it was physically possible for plaintiff to carry his equipment without setting up a table. Although he did need his printer cart, the court said that it was possible for plaintiff to set up his cart on another street away from the congested area, leave his patrons on the street and come back when the pictures are done. Moreover, the court rejected plaintiff's contention that the statute was unconstitutionally vague. Baker v. City of New York, 2002 WL 31132880 (U.S. Dist.Ct. S.D.N.Y.).

§ 20-453 License required.

It shall be unlawful for any individual to act as a general vendor without having first obtained a license in accordance with the provisions of this subchapter, except that it shall be lawful for a general vendor who hawks, peddles, sells or offers to sell, at retail, only newspapers, periodicals, books, pamphlets or other similar written matter, but no other items required to be licensed by any other provision of this code, to vend such without obtaining a license therefor.

HISTORICAL NOTE

Section added chap 907/1985 § 1

DERIVATION

Formerly § B32-491.0 added LL 77/1977 § 3

Amended LL 33/1982 § 3

¶ 1. Calendars and datebooks are not exempted from the licensing requirements as "newspapers, periodicals, books, pamphlets or other similar written matter". These items were exempted in amendment by Local Law 33 of 1982 because they are used in the exchange of ideas and enjoy First Amendment protection. Further, the NYC Environmental Control Board erred in City of NY v. Hogan (appeal No. 0127, decided June 24, 1987) by equating "other similar written matter" with "printed material". People v. Shapiro, 139 Misc. 2d 344 [1988].

¶ 2. Artwork is not included in the exemption from licensing requirement of this section. Licensing sidewalk vendors serves a compelling purpose, the regulation of pedestrian traffic. People v. Milbry, 140 Misc. 2d 476 [1988].

¶ 3. A physically disabled veteran, who held a New York State veteran's license to "hawk, peddle and vend" merchandise, was still required to acquire the vendor's license required under the City law. People v. Miller, 150 Misc.2d 614, 569 N.Y.S.2d 1005 (Crim. Ct. New York Co. 1991).

¶ 4. §20-453 does not require that there be a completed sale or that there be customers for the items. Rather, it prohibits an individual from selling or offering to sell items without the appropriate licenses. Spreading out for display on a public street and showing the merchandise establishes the defendants were seeking to sell the items. People v. Diouf, 153 Misc.2d 887, 583 N.Y.S.2d 746 [1992].

¶ 5. Defendants were observed at mid-day at a location in Manhattan standing behind brief cases in which costume watches were spread out for sale to passersby. This is sufficient to establish they were engaged in vending and coupled with other factors such as the nature and number of the goods, the time, location and manner of display places them in violation of §20-453. People v. Sylla, 154 Misc. 2d 112 [1992].

¶ 6. A complaint charging that defendant acted as a general vendor without a license in violation of §20-453 is sufficient because merchandise was spread out for display on a public street, defendant was standing behind the display, items displayed were such that an individual would not generally have more than one of (watches), and the items were displayed in midtown Manhattan at 2:00 p.m., a busy place at a busy time. Complaint was sufficient even though defendant did not call out to any passerby or use any actual words of sale or mention any price. People v. Abdul, 157 Misc. 2d 511 [1993].

¶ 7. The unlicensed vending regulation, Ad Cd §20-453, requiring vendors to annually obtain a license to sell goods or services on the street is unconstitutional as applied to a street performer who charges $5 to take person's picture in front of a backdrop on a city street because the regulation is not limited as to the time, place and manner of defendant's expression. People v. Bissinger, 163 Misc. 2d 667, 163 Misc.2d 667, 625 N.Y.S.2d 823 [1994].

¶ 8. A person who, for a fee, took photographs of persons in public places was awarded an injunction prohibiting the city from enforcing the statutory provision which would have prohibited him from this activity unless he obtained a non-food vendor's license. The statute unconstituionally interfered with the right of free speech. See Bery v. City of New York, 97 F.3d 689 (2nd Cir. 1996) discussed in the annotations to § 20-452.

¶ 9. A misdemeanor complaint alleging unlicensed general vending was insufficient where it merely alleged that defendant was showing clothing to others. The complaint did not indicate how long and how often the showing was, and how many persons were shown the item. Moreover, it did not clearly indicate that this activity took place in a public place. Thus, the court dismissed the complaint with leave to file a second, properly drawn, complaint. People v. Montenez, 177 Misc.2d 506, 676 N.Y.S.2d 785 (Crim.Ct. New York Co. 1998).

¶ 10. An offer to sell even a single item is enough to constitute an offense under the statute. However, an accusatory instrument that alleges merely that defendant showed sunglasses he was holding to numerous people, was not sufficient. Instead, the information should have contained a description of defendant's behavior in showing goods to others, and should have indicated whether he manifested any interest in a sale of any kind, or should have alleged any other acts suggestive of a sale or intent to sell. Defendant here was not alleged to have said anything or have conveyed a message in any way. In other words, there was nothing that supported an inference that he intended to engage in commercial activity. In addition, the instrument was defective because although it contained an address where the activity took place, it did not indicate whether the attempted sale took place inside the building or outside the building in a public place. Accordingly, the charges were dismissed. People v. Sene, N.Y.L.J., Aug. 25, 1998, page 27, col. 1 (Crim.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 12. An accusatory instrument charging defendant with selling merchandise on the street without a general vendor's license, together with the accompanying supporting deposition from the police officer, were sufficient, where they alleged that defendant was observed standing behind a display of objects spread out on a public sidewalk, holding out such items to people passing on the street and indicating the price for such items, and that defendant was also observed exchanging a pack of batteries with a passerby for an unknown amount of money. It was not necessary to have a supporting deposition from the Department of Consumer Affairs; the fact that the defendant failed to exhibit on demand a general vendor's license was considered presumptive evidence that this general vendor was not licensed. People v. Vega, N.Y.L.J., Nov. 20, 2000, page 30, col. 2 (Crim.Ct. Bronx Co.)

¶ 13. In one case the defendant was charged with selling playing cards on the street without a general vendor's license. The court upheld as sufficient a complaint alleging that defendant was engaged in offering for sale more than ten decks of cards on a table, that defendant was standing behind the table for at least five minutes, and that defendant took money from a customer in exchange for a deck of cards.

The cards in question depicted military and political figures associated with the war in Iraq. As a result, the defendant claimed that the sale of the cards was an exercise of First Amendment rights and therefore exempt from the licensing requirement. The court, however, held that the sale of the cards was not protected by the First Amendment, in that they were neither a written expression nor art. Although the cards had the pictures, names and titles of the people, they did not express a point of view either for or against the war, nor did they contain words either praising or condemning any of the people. The words used had no substance and merely served to identify the persons depicted. The cards were designed either to be used for playing card games for to serve as collectibles. According to the court, collectibles were distinguishable from art and did not differ from ordinary merchandise. The court likened the sale of cards to the sale of Statue of Liberty miniatures to tourists. Although the Statute of Liberty symbolizes the freedom and opportunity provided in this country, the miniatures, like the cards, were sold as personal memorabilia and not as political items. The court gave a further analogy-if one were to sell sweaters having an American flag design, the sweater would still be primarily a fashion item rather than a political item, even though the flag is viewed as a symbol of American freedom.

It is difficult to formulate rule that would clearly distinguish political expression from political items. It is arguable that if the cards had said, for example, "support our troops in Iraq" or "U.S. imperialists should get out of Iraq, " their sale would have been protected by the First Amendment. People v. Saul, 3 Misc.3d 260, 776 N.Y.S.2d 189 (Crim.Ct. 2004).

¶ 14. An information, comprising a misdemeanor complaint and a police officer's supporting deposition, alleged that at a specific time and location, defendant, lacking the requisite license, displayed and offered for sale more than 10 assorted compact discs for sale while standing immediately behind a shopping cart in which the merchandise was offered for sale; that defendant was the only person who was continuously in immediate proximity to the merchandise, and that defendant showed the merchandise to numerous people. The court held that these factual allegations, given a fair and not overly restrictive or technical reading, were sufficient for pleading purposes to establish reasonable cause to believe and a prima facie case that defendant violated the general vending ordinance. It was not necessary for the accusatory instrument to describe the precise manner in which the merchandise was offered for sale or the precise number of people to whom it was offered for sale. People v. Yu, 2004 WL 1462510 (App.Term 1st Dept.).

¶ 15. A person who sells films in DVD format is deemed to be a "visual artist." Thus Admin. Code §20-453 is unconstitutional as applied to him, because the law violates the First Amendment. Accordingly, the film seller was not required to have a general vendor's license. People v. Fucile 5/13/04 NYLJ Pg. 19 col 1 (Crim.Ct. New York Co.).

¶ 16. Where the evidence showed that defendant, who was standing immediately behind a shopping cart, positioned a cardboard box on the top of a cart containing DVD's, which defendant showed to numerous pedestrians, and it appeared that defendant did not have the required license, the evidence was sufficient to establish the elements of a violation of the licensing laws governing general vendors. People v. Fong Chen, 2008 NY Slip Op. 51381U, 2008 N.Y. Misc. Lexis 4099 (App. Term 1st Dept.).

§ 20-465 Restrictions on the placement of vehicles, pushcarts and stands; vending in certain areas prohibited.

a. No general vendor shall engage in any vending business on any sidewalk unless such sidewalk has at least a twelve-foot wide clear pedestrian path to be measured from the boundary of any private property to any obstructions in or on the sidewalk, or if there are no obstructions, to the curb. In no event shall any pushcart or stand be placed on any part of a sidewalk other than that which abuts the curb.

b. No general vendor shall occupy more than eight linear feet of public space parallel to the curb in the operation of a vending business and, in addition, no general vendor operating any vending business on any sidewalk shall occupy more than three linear feet to be measured from the curb toward the property line.

c. No vending vehicle, pushcart, stand, goods or any other item related to the operation of a vending business shall touch, lean against or be affixed permanently or temporarily to any building or structure including, but not limited to lamp posts, parking meters, mail boxes, traffic signal stanchions, fire hydrants, tree boxes, benches, bus shelters, refuse baskets or traffic barriers.

d. No vending pushcart, stand or goods shall be located against display windows of fixed location businesses, nor shall they be within twenty feet from an entranceway to any building, store, theatre, movie house, sports arena or other place of public assembly.

e. No general vendor shall vend within any bus stop or taxi stand, or within ten feet of any driveway, any subway entrance or exit, or any corner. For purposes of this subdivision, ten feet from any corner shall be measured from a point where the property line on the nearest intersecting block face, when extended, meets the curb.

f. Each general vendor who vends from a pushcart or stand in the roadway shall obey all traffic and parking laws, rules and regulations as now exist or as may be promulgated, but in no case shall a general vendor vend so as to restrict the continued maintenance of a clear passageway for vehicles.

g. (1) No general vendor shall vend on any street which is in a C4, C5, or C6 zoning district, or in the area bounded on the east by Second Avenue, on the south by Thirtieth Street, on the west by Ninth Avenue and Columbus Avenue and on the north by Sixty-fifth Street, except that as chairperson of the street vendor review panel established pursuant to section 20-465.1 of this subchapter, the commissioner of the department of small business services or his or her designee may receive applications from any person, group, organization or other entity to permit general vendors on any street within said area or said zones, or to prohibit general vendors on any other street. Such applications shall be considered by the street vendor review panel in accordance with the procedures enumerated in section 20-465.1 of this subchapter.

(2) No general vendor shall vend on any street which is in the area including and bounded on the east by the easterly side of Broadway, on the south by the southerly side of Liberty Street, on the west by the westerly side of West Street and on the north by the northerly side of Vesey Street.

(3) Upon issuance of a new general vendor license or a renewal of an existing license, the commissioner shall provide a copy of subchapter twenty-seven of chapter two of this title and of the rules of the city of New York implementing such subchapter to such new or renewal licensee.

h. Reserved.

i. No general vendor shall vend on the median strip of a divided roadway unless such strip is intended for use as a pedestrian mall or plaza.

j. No general vendor shall vend within the geographical areas under the jurisdiction of the department of parks and recreation unless written authorization therefor has been obtained from the commissioner of such department, but nothing therein contained shall exempt any general vendor from obtaining a license in accordance with this subchapter.

k. Where exigent circumstances exist and a police officer or other authorized officer or employee of any city agency gives notice to a general vendor to temporarily move from any location such general vendor shall not vend from such location. For the purposes of this subdivision, exigent circumstances shall include, but not be limited to, unusually heavy pedestrian or vehicular traffic, existence of any obstructions in the public space, an accident, fire or other emergency situation, a parade, demonstration or other such event or occurrence at or near such location.

m. No general vendor shall vend over any ventilation grill, cellar door, manhole, transformer vault, or subway access grating.

n. No general vendor shall vend using the surface of the sidewalk, or a blanket or board placed immediately on the sidewalk or on top of a trash receptacle or cardboard boxes to display merchandise. No general vendor display may exceed five feet in height from ground level. The display may not be less than twenty-four inches above the sidewalk where the display surface is parallel to the sidewalk, and may not be less than twelve inches above the sidewalk where the display surface is vertical. Where a rack or other display structure is placed on top of or above a table or other base, the size of the base shall not be less than the size of the display structure placed thereon. p. No general vendor shall use electricity, electrical generating equipment or oil or gasoline powered equipment, devices or machinery of any kind.

q. No general vendor shall vend:

Provisions of L.L. 112/1989

Section one. Legislative findings and declaration. The Council hereby finds and declares that existing regulations on location and spacing of general vendors are inadequate to maintain a clear path for pedestrians, especially near entrances, corners, and sidewalk fixtures such as bus shelters and public telephones. The Council also finds that the maximum size of each vendor's display must be reduced and its maximum and minimum height delimited, to avoid hazards to pedestrians and blockage of access from the street to the sidewalk. The Council also finds and declares that enforcement of these provisions will be best achieved by providing criminal sanctions for their violation.

¶ 1. See Lederman v. Giuliani, 2001 WL 902591 (U.S. Dist. Ct. S.D.N.Y.), discussed in 20-473.

Defendant Big Apple Wrecking and Construction Corp. (Big Apple) contended that the salvage contract on which plaintiff relied was unenforceable because plaintiff was not a licensed dealer in second-hand articles. The court, however, held that the defense was not viable. Even if there were a violation of the law, the violation would be malum prohibitum rather than malum in se. The violation was punishable by means of prescribed regulatory sanctions. The Code may not be used as a sword for private gain in litigation, particularly where forfeiture would result. Stardial Communications, Inc. v. § 20-465.1 Street vendor review panel.

a. There is hereby established a street vendor review panel consisting of four members. Such panel shall include the commissioner of the department of small business services, the director of the department of city planning and the commissioner of the department of transportation, or their respective designees. Such panel shall also include a member appointed by the mayor upon nomination by the speaker of the council. The commissioner of the department of small business services or his or her designee shall serve as chairperson. The departments of small business services, city planning and transportation shall provide such assistance as the street vendor review panel deems necessary and appropriate to enable such panel to carry out its responsibilities. In the same manner as provided in section 1043 of the city charter, the street vendor review panel shall promulgate, and may from time to time amend, rules prohibiting the operation of any general vending business or food vending business, as defined in chapter three of title seventeen of this code, or both, on any street, at any time, after making a determination that such vending business would constitute a serious and immediate threat to the health, safety and well-being of the public on the ground that such street at such time is regularly too congested by pedestrian or vehicular traffic to permit the operation of such business. No general vendor or food vendor, as defined in chapter three of title seventeen of the code, shall vend on any such streets at any such times.

b. Requests for the adoption or amendment of rules prohibiting the operation of any general vending business or food vending business, as defined in chapter three of title seventeen of this code, or both, on any street, at any time, may be submitted to the commissioner of the department of small business services or his or her designee. Within sixty days after the submission of such request, the street vendor review panel shall convene to determine either to deny such request in writing, stating the reasons for denial, or to state its intention to initiate rulemaking, by a specified date, concerning the subject of such request. In initiating a rulemaking, the panel shall not be bound by the streets or times requested, and may modify such streets and such times at its discretion. If the panel has stated the intention to initiate rulemaking, it shall publish such proposed rule for comment and public hearing in the same manner as provided in subdivisions b and d of section 1043 of the city charter. After consideration of the relevant comments presented, the panel may adopt a final rule relating to such streets and such times pursuant to subdivisions d and e of section 1043 of the city charter.

c. Copies of any rules promulgated pursuant to this section shall be mailed to each licensed general vendor or licensed food vendor, by the department or the department of health and mental hygiene, respectively, by regular mail at the last home address provided by the vendor to the department or the department of health and mental hygiene and shall be annexed to each license or renewal issued to any general vendor or food vendor.

d. Nothing herein contained shall exempt any general vendor from the provisions of subdivision g of section 20-465 of this subchapter.

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. Big Apple Food Vendors Association v. Street Vendor Review Panel, 637 N.Y.S.2d 397 (App.Div. 1st Dept. 1996). The statute requires a street-by-street analysis, rather than City-wide restrictions on street vending. The Panel can place new restrictions on street vending or eliminate or modify restrictions, based on a finding that the operation of vending businesses at certain times and places would create a threat to health and safety because the street is too congested to permit the operation of the business. Here, where petitioner challenged the Panel's rules prohibiting street vending on 26 new streets which had not been previously regulated, the court granted the Article 78 petition to the extent of remanding the case to the Panel and directing the Panel to establish objective criteria for determining whether a street was "too congested" at particular times to permit street food vending.

¶ 2. Big Apple Food Vendors Association v. Street Vendor Review Panel, 90 N.Y.2d 402, 660 N.Y.S.2d 846 (1997), reverses the Appellate Division decision previously reported. The court held that the Street Vendor Review Panel promulgated a sufficiently clear rule- the panel determines whether street vending operations at a given street location would endanger public safety because "such street at such time is regularly too congested by pedestrian or vehicular traffic to permit the operation of such business."

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. In proceeding to review determination of Commissioner of Department of Consumer Affairs which revoked petitioners' general vendor's license, revocation was upheld where Environmental Control Board printout showed the issuance of 27 summonses issued to petitioner and petitioner's default on them, and petitioner did not contest either the issuance of the tickets or his own default and hence there was adequate evidence to support conclusion that petitioner had four or more violations of the General Vendor Law in a two year period.-Barnes v. d. If a general vendor operates any general vending business in violation of the provisions of section 20-465.1 of this subchapter and any rules promulgated pursuant thereto on any such street and at any such time as the street vendor review panel has determined to be regularly too congested by pedestrian or vehicular traffic to permit the operation of any general vending business thereat without there being a serious and immediate threat to the health, safety and well-being of the public, or if a general vendor operates any such business in the area designated in paragraph two of subdivision g of section 20-465 of this subchapter, any authorized officer or employee of the department or member of the police department is authorized to provide for the removal of such general vendor's goods, vehicle, pushcart or stand to any garage, automobile pound or other place of safety, and such goods, vehicle, pushcart or stand may be subject to forfeiture upon notice and judicial determination. e. Any police officer may seize any vehicle, pushcart, stand or goods of a vendor operating any general vending business in violation of the following subdivisions of section 20-465: subdivisions b, e, i, or the provisions of subdivision m relating to obstruction of ventilation grilles. The owner or other person lawfully entitled to the possession of such vehicle, pushcart, stand, or goods may be charged with reasonable costs for removal and storage payable prior to the release of such vehicle, pushcart, stand or goods, unless the violation has been dismissed.

Section one. Legislative findings and intent. The Council of the city of New York hereby finds that the violation of certain laws pertaining to placement of general vendors on city streets creates unsafe conditions which must be ameliorated as soon as they are discovered. Illegal intrusion into pedestrian areas near crosswalks and bus stops and on median strips creates conditions which are likely to force pedestrians into the street and dangerously alter traffic patterns. Vendors who illegally vend close to subway exits present a hazard of blockage of the egress, which must remain clear for the periods of extremely heavy traffic immediately following the discharge of a train. Vendors who illegally occupy a greater space on the sidewalk than allowed by law interfere with established safe levels of pedestrian flow. Vendors who place goods covering ventilation grates are preventing needed air circulation. All of these conditions must be corrected as soon as they are discovered, to remove the hazard to public safety, and thus enforcement personnel must be given the power to seize the goods of such illegally operating vendors. In addition, where vendors are illegally selling on streets for which vending has been prohibited by law or regulation because such streets have been found to be regularly too congested to permit safe vending, the goods seized from such illegal vendors must be subject to forfeiture, to deter such persistent illegal and unsafe activity. Therefore the Council finds that it is necessary to enhance the statutory authority given to enforcement personnel to seize vendors' goods where placement creates unsafe conditions and to seek forfeiture of goods seized from vendors illegally selling on prohibited streets.

Section 1. Legislative findings. The council hereby finds and declares that a threat to the public health, safety and welfare exists due to the practice of permitting general vendors who exclusively vend written matter to vend on sidewalks without subjecting them to certain placement and location restrictions which have been found to be necessary to protect the health, safety and welfare of the public. The council further finds that this threat to the public health, safety and welfare is exacerbated by the placement of vending tables and similar devices on sidewalks along major commercial thoroughfares, blocking the access of emergency services, including fire and police personnel, to the entrances of buildings and to fire hydrants; impeding pedestrian movement and causing pedestrian congestion at major tourist points and transportation facilities; and, impeding the movement of police foot patrols along the sidewalks.

In 1982 the council exempted general vendors who exclusively vend written matter from otherwise applicable placement and location requirements. At that time there were so few of these vendors that their exclusion from these requirements did not have a significant adverse impact on public health, safety and welfare. Subsequently, when the council prohibited all general vendors from displaying and vending from the surface of sidewalks, vendors of written material were included in this prohibition. However, the council finds that since that time, the enormous proliferation of these vendors necessitates that certain of the restrictions applicable to other vendors, such as those prohibiting them from operating near subway and building entrances and exits and those which restrict vending on certain congested streets, now be made applicable to vendors who exclusively vend written matter.

The council further finds that in keeping with its original intention in enacting these exemptions to balance the safety needs of the public with the constitutional rights of vendors of written materials, vending from tables, carts, stands or other such devices should be prohibited at such times and on such blocks that have been previously found, or that are found in the future, after a hearing, to be regularly too congested to permit any other vending. Thus, the council further declares that the policy of the city of New York shall be that vending written matter without a vehicle, table, stand, cart or other similar device shall be lawful on sidewalks, in accordance with existing limitations, unless exigent circumstances exist, and that vending with the use of a vehicle, table, cart, stand or other similar device shall be lawful on blocks and at times where either food vending or general vending is permitted, provided the table, stand, cart or other similar device used by the vendor of written materials occupies no greater sidewalk space than that permitted for other general vendors.

Note provisions of L.L. 40/1988.

Section one. Legislative declaration of intent.-The Council hereby finds and declares that the public health, safety and welfare are threatened by the unfettered use of city streets for commercial activity by unlicensed, and therefore illegal, general vendors. Such illicit operations have a pernicious effect on both the tax base and economic viability of the City. Unlicensed general vendors do not pay taxes, often sell stolen, defective or counterfeit merchandise and siphon off business from reputable, tax-paying commercial establishments. The practice of selling their wares on the most congested streets of the City impedes the flow of pedestrian traffic, causing the overflow of traffic and, at worst, it creates the potential for tragedy. In recognition of the judgment that licensed and regulated general vendors are a legitimate part of the municipal economy, the council has in the past adopted legislation to limit the number of permitted vendors and to permit the seizure of goods, vehicles, pushcarts or stands used by unlicensed vendors. It is the intent of the council, through this local law, to make more effective the weapons in the city's enforcement arsenal by making clear that the existing law with respect to the seizure of vehicles, pushcarts or other devices used by unlicensed general vendors was intended to permit the seizure of vehicles, pushcarts or other devices used to transport goods which are sold, given or otherwise transferred to an unlicensed general vendor.

§ 5. Within ninety days of the effective date of this local law, the commissioner of consumer affairs and the police commissioner shall submit to the council a joint written report on their program to enforce section 20-453 of the administrative code of the city of New York.

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. The New York City Department of Parks and Recreation Regulations, 56 RCNY Sec. 1-05(b), and 1-03(c)(1) are not enforceable against general vendors who exclusively trade in written matter. The Parks Dept. permit system directly contravenes the provisions of 20-473, which explicitly and unambiguously exempts general vendors who exclusively vend written matter from compliance with the written authorization or permit requirements contained elsewhere in the Administrative Code. While Sec. 20-473 confers upon the Department the authority to "regulate the vending of written matter in a manner consistent with the purpose of the parks and the declared legislative intent of this sub-chapter," that grant of authority may not be read so broadly as to allow the Department to criminalize through administrative fiat that which the City Council has expressly authorized. An administrative agency cannot by its regulations effect its vision of societal public choices and may adopt only rules and regulations which are in harmony with the statutory responsibilities it has been given to administer. In other words, the agency cannot make unlawful that which the legislature still has on its books as lawful. People v. Balmuth, 178 Misc.2d 958, 681 N.Y.S.2d 439 (Crim.Ct. New York Co. 1998), aff'd 189 Misc.2d 243, 731 N.Y.S.2d 314 (App.Term 1st Dept.), leave to appeal denied, 97 N.Y.2d 678, 738 N.Y.S.2d 293 (2001).

¶ 2. A group of visual artists, who displayed and sold their artwork on the streets of New York City, including the area in front of the Metropolitan Museum of Art (the "Met"), challenged 56 RCNY Sec. 1-05, which prohibited them from selling art either within the parks or on territory which was under the jurisdiction of the Parks Department. The court first analyzed the statutory scheme. Admin. Code Sec. 20-453 requires all vendors in New York City to obtain a license, but exempts book vendors. Admin. Code 20-465 prohibits general vendors from vending within the geographical area under the jurisdiction of the Department of Parks and Recreation except within a permit, but this permit requirement is also subject to an exemption for vendors of written material, as described in Section 26-473. 56 RCNY is valid as enforced against most vendors, who deal in neither books nor art (see Bery v. City of New York, discussed in note, regarding art). However, the court held, the enforcement of 56 RCNY 1-05(b) against art vendors contravenes Admin. Code 20-473. Lederman v. Giuliani, 2001 WL 902591 (U.S. Dist. Ct. S.D.N.Y.)

a. It shall be unlawful for any individual to transport goods by means of a motor vehicle, as defined in the vehicle and traffic law, to a public space for sale or other transfer to a general vendor, without having first obtained a distributor's license in accordance with the provisions of this subchapter. For the purpose of this section, "distributor" shall be defined as any person or organization engaged in the sale, consignment, or distribution of goods for sale or resale by a general vendor. This shall not include an owner of goods who personally operates a motor vehicle to transport such goods exclusively to and from a location from which the owner will personally sell such goods in compliance with all applicable laws. For the purpose of this section, "public space" shall be defined as all publicly owned property between the property lines on a street as such property lines are shown on the City map including but not limited to a park, plaza, roadway, shoulder, tree space, sidewalk or parking space between such property lines. It shall also include, but not be limited to, publicly owned or leased land, buildings, piers, wharfs, stadiums, and terminals.

b. Where the distributor does not personally drive the vehicle, he or she shall cause the driver to carry proof of the distributor's license, which the driver shall furnish upon demand to any officer or agent empowered to enforce the law. No distributor shall permit any driver he or she employs to engage in, on the distributor's behalf, any of the activities for which a license is required unless such driver complies with all regulations promulgated pursuant to this subchapter.

c. Each person applying for a distributor's license, or renewal thereof, shall file an application in such form and detail as the commissioner may prescribe and shall pay such license fee as shall be established by the commissioner by regulation. In addition to any other information required, the commissioner shall require the following information:

1. The name and home and business address of the applicant;

2. The name and home and business address of the owner, if other than the applicant, of the goods to be delivered;

The Council finds that at a time of great variety and complexity in consumer goods, as well as new developments in electronic, audio and video equipment available for sale, the public is frequently at a distinct disadvantage when seeking to purchase this equipment. Certain retail dealers engaged in the sale of this equipment have used their knowledge to exploit consumers. The Council finds that it is necessary to safeguard and protect both the public against abuses practiced by certain dealers and preserve public confidence in reputable dealers. To accomplish this the Council finds it desirable to expand the limited midtown licensing of retail deales in audio, video, computer and photographic equipment to citywide licensing.

The council hereby finds the presence of consumer related problems with respect to the practices of debt collection agencies whose sole concern is the collection of debts owed to their clients. While the majority of those engaged in this business are honest and ethical in their dealings, there is a minority of unscrupulous collection agencies in operation that practice abusive tactics such as threatening delinquent debtors, or calling such people at outrageous times of the night. These actions constitute tactics which would shock the conscience of ordinary people. Due to the sensitive nature of the information used in the course of such agency's everyday business, and the vulnerable position consumers find themselves in when dealing with these agencies, it is incumbent upon this council to protect the interests, reputations and fiscal well-being of the citizens of this city against those agencies who would abuse their privilege of operation. It is herein declared that the city should license debt collection agencies.

3. charge interest or otherwise impose a charge or fee for a current payment of child support.

8. designate a current payment of child support as arrears.

9. prohibit the termination of a contract for the collection of child support payments until arrears are paid.

10. include any terms in a contract for the collection of child support that conflict or are inconsistent with the terms set out in this subchapter.

e. Any debt collection agency that collects child support payments shall provide to a potential client a written disclosure form at the same time as such agency first furnishes such potential client with any informational or promotional materials, application or contract for services, regardless of the manner in which such materials are provided including, but not limited to, in-person contact, fax, regular mail, internet or other electronic means, containing, but not limited to, the following information prominently disclosed in a meaningful sequence:

1. No obligation. A potential client shall be advised that such client is under no obligation to hire a debt collection agency to collect child support payments on behalf of such client and that:

(i) New York city's office of child support enforcement (OCSE) provides child support enforcement services at no cost to families regardless of income and

(ii) OCSE's powers include, but are not limited to, garnishments against wages, liens on bank accounts and property, tax refund intercepts and the initiation of incarceration proceedings.

(i) Application fees. A potential client shall be advised that child support debt collection agencies are prohibited by law from charging a fee for the costs of an application.

(ii) Prohibition against collection fees for child support payments that are not in arrears. A potential client shall be advised that debt collection agencies are prohibited by law from collecting fees for child support payments that are not in arrears and that it is unlawful for such an agency to designate a current payment of child support as arrears.

A potential client shall also be advised that any fees must bear a reasonable relationship to the amount of child support actually collected.

(vi) A potential client shall be advised that child support debt collection agencies are prohibited by law from imposing any contract terms that conflict or are inconsistent with the provisions specified in the required disclosure form required under section 20-494.1(e).

3. Contract terms and renewals.

(iii) A potential client shall be provided a summary of all contract termination provisions, including, but not limited to, the specific date on which such contract shall terminate. If no specific date is provided in the contract, the debt collection agency shall describe how and when such contract will terminate.

(iv) A potential client shall be advised that, by law, a contract cannot be renewed if, upon the renewal date, there has been no collection activity for the immediately preceding six consecutive months.

g. As a condition to the issuance of a license to provide child support payment debt collection services, each applicant shall furnish to the commissioner a surety bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, payable to the city of New York, executed by such applicant and a surety approved by the commissioner. Such bond shall be conditioned upon the applicant's compliance with the provisions of this subchapter and any rules or regulations promulgated hereunder, and upon the further condition that such applicant will pay to the city any fine, penalty or other obligation within thirty days of its imposition, or any final judgment recovered by any person who received child support payment debt collection services from a licensee thereunder and was damaged thereby. The commissioner may, by rule, increase the amount of the surety bond required by this section to an amount not to exceed twenty-five thousand dollars. The commissioner may by rule authorize an applicant to, in lieu of a bond, deposit cash to satisfy the requirements of this section in an amount equal to the sum of the surety bond required by this section.

h. The commissioner may by rule establish a fund to be administered by the comptroller and authorize an applicant for a license to provide child support payment debt collection services to, in lieu of a bond or cash equivalent, make contributions to such fund to satisfy the requirements of subdivision g of this section. The commissioner may promulgate such rules or regulations as are necessary for the administration of such fund including, but not limited to, rules setting forth the conditions for participation in the fund, the contributions required to be made to the fund and the circumstances under which disbursements will be made from the fund.

i. The commissioner may promulgate such rules as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

Section added L.L. 70/2003 § 6, eff. Feb. 24, 2004. [See Note 1]

1. Provisions of L.L. 70/2003:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. Existing federal, state and local consumer protection laws do not generally regulate private child support collection agencies. Furthermore, current industry practices, as reflected in consumer complaints and litigation, raise significant questions about the implications of the lack of such regulation. Specifically, the Council finds that alleged practices, including, but not limited to, charging exorbitant and excessive fees, threats and abusive telephone calls directed at both custodial and non-custodial parents, signing custodial parents to contracts with unclear terms, collecting fees for payments of child support collected primarily by a government agency, and utilizing unclear accounting practices that lead to the designation of current payments of child support as arrears in order to prevent parents from ever satisfying their obligations to such agencies, necessitate the creation of basic consumer protections for consumer-parents interacting with these agencies. The Council also finds that current, timely and/or on-going payments of orders of child support are part of a family's income needed to meet basic needs. Therefore, the Council finds that private child support collection agencies should be regulated by New York City's consumer protection laws, and that the fees collected by such agencies should be reasonably related to the work and services provided.

§7. Effect of invalidity; severability. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, phrase or other portion of this local law is, for any reason, declared unconstitutional or invalid, in whole or in part, by any court of competent jurisdiction, such portion shall be deemed severable, and such unconstitutionality or invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this local law, which remaining portions shall continue in full force and effect.
§8. Effective date. This local law shall take effect ninety days after its enactment into law, and shall apply to contracts entered into on or after such date.

For purposes of this subchapter, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

a. "Disabled vehicle" shall mean any vehicle for which towing is necessary because of a vehicular accident or for which towing is necessary because of the vehicle's inability to proceed under its own motive power due to reasons other than a vehicular accident.

b. "Evidence vehicle" shall mean any vehicle which is suspected of having been used as a means of committing a crime or employed in aid or furtherance of a crime or held, used or sold in violation of law or which may be required to be held or produced as evidence in a criminal investigation or proceeding.

¶ 1. Federal law (49 USC § 14501(c)) does not pre-empt New York City from enacting laws regulating how towing companies are dispatched to particular accident sites and regulating charges which may be made. Ace Auto Body & Towing, Ltd., N.Y.L.J., May 3, 1999, page 33, col. 6 (2d Cir. Ct. of Appeals).

¶ 2. The City's restrictions against out-of-City tow operators are pre-empted by federal law, 49 USC § 14501(c)(1). A group of tow truck operators challenged the City's restrictions, which had been designed to prevent tow truck drivers from monitoring police radios and racing each other to reach car accident sites first. The City law prohibited tow truck operators from working without a license, and authorized seizure of trucks operating without a license. The law applied regardless of whether the tow truck operator was actively soliciting business within City limits or was merely passing through the City while towing a vehicle from Point A, outside the City, to Point B, also outside the City (e.g., passing through the City while towing a vehicle from Westchester County to Nassau County). Had the statute been held to be enforceable, tow truck operators would have been forced to go many miles out of their way to skirt around the City, with no discernible benefit to anyone. The federal law prohibited the City from creating restrictions on prices or services of truck operators. In an attempt to save the statute, the City argued that Section 14501 did not prohibit the City from enacting safety regulations, and contended that § 20-495 was a safety provision. The court, however, rejected the City's argument. First, if the tow truck operators were merely passing through the City and not attempting to solicit business there, why did the City need an anti-racing provision with respect to those trucks. Second, the City did not take into account that certain geographic areas are more crowded than others, so that safety restrictions that conceivably might be needed in some areas might not be necessary in other areas. Automobile Club of New York v. Dykstra, 520 F.3d 210 (2d Cir 2008).

Section 1. Declaration of legislative intent and findings. The council finds that the licensing and regulation of the towing industry continues to serve the purpose of protecting the public from over-reaching by certain members of the towing industry and from reckless conduct of certain such members which can threaten life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

Any towing car license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set

Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

a. Except as otherwise provided in section 20-524 of this subchapter, no person shall engage in towing without having first obtained a license for such towing business issued pursuant to section 20-498 of this subchapter. Such license shall be referred to as a license to engage in towing. No person shall engage in towing without having obtained a license plate for each tow truck issued pursuant to section 20-503 of this subchapter.

b. Except as otherwise provided in section 20-524 of this subchapter, no person shall drive or otherwise operate a tow truck or assist in any activity for which a license is required under this subchapter unless such person shall have first obtained a tow truck operator's license issued pursuant to section 20-498 of this chapter.

c. No person who is required to obtain a license under subdivision a of this section shall permit or authorize the driving or other operation of a tow truck by a person who does not possess a current, valid tow truck operator's license or whose tow truck operator's license has been suspended or revoked where such license is required under this subchapter. In any prosecution for violation of this subdivision, it shall not be necessary to prove that such person knew or should have known that the operator was unlicensed, and there shall be a rebuttable presumption that such tow truck was driven or otherwise operated with the permission or authorization of such person. In any such prosecution, it shall be an affirmative defense that prior to being cited for such violation, such person registered such tow truck operator with the department in accordance with the procedures prescribed by rule of the commissioner and the department did not send notification to such person that such tow truck operator lacked a current, valid tow truck operator's license or that such operator's license had been suspended or revoked.

Section added L.L. 28/1987 § 10.

¶ 1. Licensing and regulatory scheme of car towing industry as formulated in this section was upheld as being reasonably related to protecting the public in their dealing with that industry but no basis exists for restricting transfer of existing licenses for car towing held by individuals and partnerships where the transferee meets the existing standards for such license.-Matter of Love Towing v. Beame, 93 Misc. 2d 1064 [1978].

¶ 2. This section requiring tow car operators to obtain a license from N.Y.C. Police Department and to set forth rate schedule is not applicable to operator that towed parked cars on streets of a private residential community through public streets to garage because it is applicable only to the moving of a vehicle that requires towing because of accident, or because it is unable to proceed under its own motive power.-Forest Hills Gardens Corp. v. Kowler, 80 AD2d 630 [1981], aff'd 55 N.Y. 2d 768 [1981].

¶ 3. To justify a tow truck stop without a warrant under the power of the city to regulate and supervise the tow truck industry the stop and inspection must be conducted expeditiously, posing only a minimal intrusion upon the expectation of privacy, the stop must continue to be a crucial part of the regulatory scheme designed to protect the public in dealing with the tow truck industry and the stop must be limited to operations which take place away from an operational base or fixed place of business.-People v. Velez, 109 Misc. 2d 853 [1981].

¶ 4. This section is intended to regulate and license the operation of tow trucks whether the fee is directly or indirectly charged for towing. Defendant is the employee of a motor club whose membership agreement states that members are covered for towing expense to a maximum of $25.00. Thus defendant is engaged in the operation of towing vehicles for a fee, even though indirectly collected, and therefore comes within the ambit of this section.-People v. Osorio, 135 Misc 2d 262, [1987].

¶ 1. A vehicle used for repossessing cars used as loan collateral will not be exempt from the requirement that tow trucks be licensed. The court rejected a contention that stealth is necessary in the repossession business. Despite petitioner's claim of hardship, the language of the statute is clear. L.A.M. Recovery v. Dept. of Consumer Affairs, 193 Misc.2d 754, 749 N.Y.S.2d 862 (Sup.Ct. Kings Co. 2002).

life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. [Footnote 3]: * Subchapter added L.L. 28/1987 § 10. Note further provisions of such local law:

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

expiration of this local law the provisions of subdivisions (s), (t) and (u) of section 436-7.0 of Title A of chapter eighteen of the administrative code of the city of New York as they were in force and effect on the date immediately preceding the repeal of such subdivisions by section two of this local law shall be deemed to be reenacted and shall thereafter be in full force and effect as if this local law had not been enacted.]

§ 11. Any towing car license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

a. No license to engage in towing shall be issued pursuant to this subchapter unless the commissioner determines that every tow truck to be used by the applicant under such license is fit for operation as a towing vehicle and is otherwise in compliance with the provisions of the vehicle and traffic law and any regulations promulgated thereunder.

b. The commissioner may require by regulation that every tow truck used by a licensee be inspected periodically by the department, and after finding such truck to be fit for operation, may issue a replaceable inspection sticker of such material, form, design and dimension to be affixed to such truck in such manner as he or she shall prescribe. Any towing car license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of the provisions of this local law and may take any other actions necessary for the administration of this local law.

§ 20-503 Issuance of license plate.

Upon approval of an application to engage in towing, the commissioner shall issue to the licensee a license plate for each tow truck to be used under such license. Such license plate shall be securely affixed to a conspicuous and indispensable part of such truck, and shall clearly set forth the license number assigned to the licensee. The license plate issued to the licensee may, in the discretion of the commissioner, be a plate of a permanent nature with a replaceable date tag attached thereto, indicating the expiration date of the plate. Such license and replaceable date tag shall be of such material, form, design and dimension as the commissioner shall prescribe. The commissioner, upon renewal of a license to engage in towing, may continue the use of the license plate for as many additional license terms as he or she may determine, in which event he or she shall issue and deliver to the licensee a replaceable date tag as evidence of renewal of license, which shall be attached or affixed in such manner as he or she may prescribe. The failure to affix or display such date tag in a manner prescribed by the commissioner shall constitute a violation of this section. In the event of the loss, mutilation or destruction of any license plate or date tag issued hereunder, the licensee may file such statement and proof of facts as the commissioner shall require, with a fee of twenty-five dollars per plate or date tag, at the department, and the department shall issue a duplicate or substitute license plate or date tag.

administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. § 12. Any towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

f. the person holding a tow truck operator's license, or the person holding a license to engage in towing has failed to maintain any of the conditions for issuance of such license as provided under this subchapter or any rule or regulation promulgated hereunder.

provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

§ 15. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

§ 20-505 Tow truck operator's license suspension or revocation; special circumstances.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, where the commissioner has reason to believe that a tow truck operator has committed an act which should provide a basis for suspension or revocation under section 20-504 or 20-504.1 of this subchapter, and the continued possession by such person of a tow truck operator's license would pose a serious danger to the safety of the public, the commissioner may immediately suspend his or her tow truck operator's license. Nothwithstanding any other provision of law, upon the suspension or revocation pursuant to the vehicle and traffic law of a license to operate a motor vehicle that is held by a person who also holds a tow truck operator's license pursuant to this subchapter, the commissioner shall immediately suspend his or her tow truck operator's license. Notice of the suspension of a tow truck operator's licence pursuant to this section shall be served on the operator and on the person who employs such operator to operate a tow truck. The commissioner shall provide the operator with the opportunity for a hearing within five days after the notification of suspension, after which the commissioner shall forthwith make a determination as to whether such suspension should continue and in addition may impose any penalty or sanction provided for under this subchapter, provided, however, that where the license to operate a motor vehicle held by a tow truck operator has been revoked pursuant to the vehicle and traffic law, the commissioner shall revoke such person's tow truck operator's license issued pursuant to this subchapter.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

Section 1. Declaration of legislative intent and findings. § 2. Section four of local law number seventy-five for the year nineteen hundred eighty-five is amended to read as follows:

This local law shall take effect ninety days after its enactment into law and shall expire and be of no further effect two years after its effective date, except with respect to any rights, duties, liabilities, violations, penalties or other obligations arising or occurring thereunder during such period of effectiveness. [After the expiration of this local law the provisions of subdivisions (s), (t) and (u) of section 436-7.0 of Title A of chapter eighteen of the administrative code of the city of New York as they were in force and effect on the date immediately preceding the repeal of such subdivisions by section two of this local law shall be deemed to be reenacted and shall thereafter be in full force and effect as if this local law had not been enacted.]

such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

be continued notwithstanding that certain functions, powers and duties of the police department or any officer thereof have by this local law been assigned or transferred to the department of consumer affairs; and such actions and proceedings may be prosecuted or defended by the commissioner of consumer affairs or the officer to which such functions, powers and duties have been assigned or transferred by this local law.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

actions necessary for the administration of this local law.

¶ 1. A licensed private towing company violated this section by imposing unauthorized charges for illegal parking and storage fees in excess of the maximum statutory rate. The court held that since this violated the standards of honesty, integrity and fair dealing required of all tow truck licensees, the city agency's imposition of a one-month suspension of the towing license, a $5,000 fine and a $3,639 restitution payment was appropriate. Application of V & A Towing, Inc. v. City of New York, 197 A.D.2d 386, 602 N.Y.S.2d 355 (1st Dept. 1993).

¶ 2. The stated statutory limits upon towing fees do not apply to towing of vehicles by City marshals. Burgos v. Airday, 2001 WL 995342 (U.S. Dist. Ct., S.D.N.Y.).

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 12. Any towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

certain members of the towing industry and from reckless conduct of certain such members which can threaten life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

that the department of consumer affairs may promulgate on or after the date of enactment of this local law any rules or regulations necessary for the implementation of the provisions of this local law and may take any other actions necessary for the administration of this local law.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

abated by the adoption of this local law or by anything contained herein; but all such actions or proceedings may be continued notwithstanding that certain functions, powers and duties of the police department or any officer thereof have by this local law been assigned or transferred to the department of consumer affairs; and such actions and proceedings may be prosecuted or defended by the commissioner of consumer affairs or the officer to which such functions, powers and duties have been assigned or transferred by this local law.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 12. Any towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 20-518 Removal of vehicles involved in an accident.

a. 1. The commissioner shall establish and administer a program to be known as the "directed accident response program" for the purpose of removing vehicles that have been involved in a vehicular accident and which cannot be safely driven under their own power. The commissioner may by rule prescribe which vehicles involved in vehicular accidents cannot be safely driven under this own power.

2. The commissioner, after consultation with the police commissioner, shall divide the city into zones and shall create for each zone a list in random order of persons licensed to engage in towing who have been approved by the commissioner for participation in the directed accident response program. At any time subsequent to the initial establishment of zones and lists, the commissioner may, after consultation with the police commissioner, modify the zones and reformulate the lists to ensure sufficient towing services throughout the city. Where more than one towing company has been placed on a list of towing companies authorized to remove vehicles in a particular zone, the police department shall summon towing companies from such list on a rotating basis. Any towing company approved for participation in such program after such lists are initially established shall be placed on any such list at the point immediately preceding the last towing company summoned by the police department pursuant to this section. Such lists shall be available at the department for public inspection.

3. The commissioner shall set forth by rules such criteria for participation in the program as he or she deems necessary to effectuate the purposes of this section. Such criteria shall include but not be limited to, possession of a valid, current license to engage in towing and compliance with this subchapter and any rules promulgated thereunder, ability to respond within a specified period of time to police department calls for towing, ability to make service available on a twenty-four hour basis or on such limited basis as the commissioner shall prescribe, maintenance of specified business hours for redemption of vehicles and maintenance of a specified minimum number of tow trucks and other equipment appropriate for towing, including at least one flat-bed truck suitable for removing accident vehicles. All participants in the program shall maintain a business premises that is under the exclusive control of the participant, is not used by any other towing company and is the premises listed on such participant's license to engage in towing. Such premises shall consist of a location that is open to the public, where towing company personnel are employed, calls requesting towing service are received and towers are dispatched, and where all records required by this subchapter or any rules promulgated thereunder are maintained.

4. All persons approved by the commissioner for participation in the directed accident response program, in addition to meeting the requirements of paragraph three of this subdivision and any rule promulgated pursuant to this section, shall (i) have been licensed pursuant to this subchapter for a period of not less than one year; (ii) have not had such license revoked after due notice and opportunity to be heard at any time during the preceding two year period; and (iii) possess a satisfactory record with regard to the operation of a towing business as determined by the commissioner, provided that a determination that such record with regard to the operation of a towing business is unsatisfactory shall be based upon violations of this subchapter.

5. The commissioner may impose a biennial fee for participation in the program in order to defray expenses incurred in its administration.

b.1. Any vehicle that has been involved in a vehicular accident and which cannot be safely driven under its own power which has not been removed or caused to be removed from the scene of an accident shall be removed by a tow truck of the towing company participating in the directed accident response program when such company has been directed to do so by the police department. No such vehicle, other than a vehicle that has a maximum gross vehicle weight of at least fifteen thousand pounds, may be removed by a tow operator chosen by the person in charge of such vehicle.

2. No tow truck operator shall travel en route to, or respond to, the scene or the reported scene of a vehicular accident, or remove a vehicle therefrom, unless a specific request for the services of such tow truck operator has been received by such operator or the towing company which employs such operator from a person in charge of a vehicle that has a maximum gross vehicle weight of at least fifteen thousand pounds, or unless such tow truck operator has been directed to do so by the police department.

3. No tow truck of the towing company participating in the directed accident response program shall fail to or refuse to remove a vehicle that has been involved in a vehicular accident and which cannot be safely driven under its own power when such company has been directed to do so by the police department. Such vehicle shall be towed to the storage facility of such responding company which meets such specifications as the commissioner shall establish by rule, or to a location within the city designated by the person in charge of such vehicle, provided, however, that placement of such vehicle in such location is not in violation of any other law. A vehicle towed to a storage facility shall at all times be stored within such storage facility while the vehicle is in the custody of the towing company. Such storage facility shall be the premises listed on the license of the towing company responding to the police department's direction to remove a vehicle or the premises approved by the commissioner for use by such towing company. Such premises shall be owned, operated or controlled by such towing company and shall not be used by any other towing company. Nothing in this section shall be construed to preclude a person in charge of a vehicle that has a maximum gross vehicle weight of at least fifteen thousand pounds from arranging for the removal of such vehicle by a tow operator of such person's choice.

4. Notwithstanding any other provision of this subchapter, a towing company that removes an accident vehicle to its storage facility at the place of business which qualifies such company for participation in the directed accident response program or to its auxiliary storage facilities approved by the commissioner, shall not charge for the towing of a vehicle registered at a weight of ten thousand pounds or less and the first day of storage for such vehicle a fee exceeding eighty dollars. A towing company participating in the directed accident response program shall not charge for the towing of an accident vehicle registered at a weight of more than ten thousand pounds and the first day of storage for such vehicle a fee exceeding one hundred and twenty-five dollars. Such fees shall be inclusive of all charges for the removing and towing of such vehicle to such storage facility and for the first day of storage.

5. If a person in charge of the vehicle, other than a police officer, requests that an accident vehicle be towed to any location other than the storage facilities at the place of business which qualified the towing company removing the vehicle for participation in the directed accident response program or to its auxiliary storage facilities approved by the commissioner, the towing company may also, in addition to the charges authorized under paragraph four of this subdivision, charge the mileage fee for additional mileage that is authorized under section 20-509 of this subchapter, for the distance traveled from the accident scene to the location where the vehicle is towed; provided, however, that such distance shall be measured on a route available for commercial vehicles from the accident scene to the location to which such vehicle is towed.

c. The police department shall maintain a record of the number of times each towing company participating in the directed accident response program is summoned to remove vehicles and the number of times each such company responds thereto and such other information as the commissioner may prescribe.

c-1. Every towing company approved to participate in the directed accident response program shall:

(1) have on its premises, and accessible to the public, a telephone and bathroom facilities;

(2) provide reasonable access to an accident vehicle during the hours the towing company is required to be open for the redemption of vehicles, at no charge, to the owner or other person in charge of such vehicle, to any insurance agent or insurance adjuster representing the owner of such vehicle, or to any insurance agent or insurance adjuster who furnishes sufficient written proof confirming that he or she is in fact representing any other person having a claim or defense arising from an accident involving such vehicle;

(3) (a) impose no storage charge exceeding the amount permitted pursuant to section 20-509 of this subchapter during any period before the owner or other person in charge of an accident vehicle has signed an authorization for the repair of such accident vehicle with the repair shop that the towing company has registered pursuant to article twelve-A of the vehicle and traffic law, and (b) where such towing company is registered as a repair shop pursuant to article twelve-A of the vehicle and traffic law, impose no storage charge during the period from which the owner or other person in charge of the accident vehicle has authorized repairs by such registered repair shop to one business day after such registered repair shop has notified such owner or other such person in charge of such vehicle to pick up the repaired vehicle. For purposes of determining whether a towing company has violated subparagraphs (a) or (b) of this paragraph, such towing company shall be deemed to have committed the violation of another entity if such towing company and such other entity share a common officer, director, partner, member, manager, principal or shareholder owning five or more percent of the outstanding stock, such towing company has any direct or indirect interest in such other entity, or such towing company and such other entity share any facilities, equipment, or employees.

(4) provide to each owner or other person in charge of the accident vehicle an informational flyer entitled the "consumer bill of rights regarding towing of accident vehicles and repair shops" setting forth the information that the commissioner deems appropriate about the laws relating to the consumer's rights with respect to the towing and repairing of vehicles. Such bill of rights shall be provided to the owner or other person in charge of the accident vehicle before such vehicle is towed from the accident scene; provided, however, that if the owner or other person in charge of such vehicle is injured and is to be removed to a hospital, such bill of rights shall be furnished by the towing company at the time such owner or such other person in charge of such vehicle first appears at the premises of such towing company.

d. In addition to the obligation to make records available for inspection by the commissioner pursuant to section 20-516 of this subchapter, every towing company participating in the directed accident response program shall, at the request of the police department and for the purpose of the enforcement of any regulations promulgated pursuant to this section, make available for inspection by the police department, during reasonable business hours, any records required to be maintained under this subchapter.

e. After due notice and opportunity to be heard, the commissioner may disqualify any towing company participating in the directed accident response program from continued participation in such program for violation of any of the provisions of this section or any rule promulgated hereunder or upon the occurrence of any one or more of the conditions set forth in this subchapter which constitute grounds for suspension or revocation of any license issued under this subchapter; provided, however, that the commissioner, for good cause, may, prior to giving notice and an opportunity to be heard, temporarily suspend a towing company from participation in the directed accident response program for up to ten days. Notice of such suspension shall be served on the towing company. The commissioner shall provide the towing company with the opportunity for a hearing within ten days after the notification of suspension, after which the commissioner shall forthwith make a determination as to whether such suspension should continue and the length of such suspension and in addition may impose any penalty or sanction authorized by this subchapter.

f. Any person participating in the directed accident response program who violates the provisions of section 20-496 of this subchapter regarding engaging in towing without having first obtained a license for such towing business and a license plate for each tow truck, driving or otherwise operating a tow truck or assisting in any activity for which a license is required under this subchapter without having first obtained a tow truck operator's license, or permitting or authorizing the driving or other operation of a tow truck by a person who does not possess a current, valid tow truck operator's license in violation of subdivision c of section 20-496 of this subchapter shall be removed from the list of approved towing companies and shall be ineligible for participation in the directed accident response program for a period of six months. Any such person who has been found guilty of two such violations within the preceding twenty-four month period shall be removed from the list of approved towing companies and shall be ineligible for participation in the directed accident response program for a period of one year.

g. The commissioner may promulgate such additional rules and regulations as he or she deems necessary to effectuate the purposes of this section.

g-1. 1. After due notice and opportunity to be heard, the commissioner may remove or suspend, for a period not to exceed one year, from continued participation in the directed accident response program any towing company participating in such program which: (a) was unavailable to respond to a police dispatch or has failed to respond to a police dispatch for removing a vehicle from the scene of an accident on at least three occasions within any six month period;

(b) failed to provide to any person the informational flyer entitled "consumer bill of rights regarding towing of accident vehicles and repair shops" as required pursuant to paragraph four of subdivision c-1 of this section; or

(c) failed to or refused to release any accident vehicle after presentation of sufficient proof of ownership or owner's written authorization, and upon tender of payment of authorized charges in cash or by major credit card as such credit card payment is provided for in section 20-520.1 of this subchapter and any rules promulgated thereunder.

2. The grounds for suspension or removal of a towing company from continued participation in the directed accident response program specified in paragraph one of this subdivision shall be in addition to, and shall not in any way limit, the commissioner's authority to revoke, suspend, or refuse to renew a license issued pursuant to this subchapter or to suspend or remove from participation any towing company from the directed accident response program pursuant to any other provisions of this subchapter and any rules promulgated thereunder.

i. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the removal of a vehicle at any location for which the authorization of the commissioner of transportation or the police commissioner is required to remove a disabled vehicle therefrom.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

This local law shall take effect ninety days after its enactment into law and shall expire and be of no further effect two years after its effective date, except with respect to any rights, duties, liabilities, violations, penalties or other obligations arising or occurring thereunder during such period of effectiveness. [After the expiration of this local law the provisions of subdivisions (s), (t) and (u) of section 436-7.0 of Title A of chapter eighteen of the administrative code of the city of New York as they were in force and effect on the date immediately preceding the repeal of such subdivisions by section two of this local law shall be deemed to be reenacted and shall thereafter be in full force and effect as if this local law had not been enacted.]

§ 11. Any towing car license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

actions and proceedings may be prosecuted or defended by the commissioner of consumer affairs or the officer to which such functions, powers and duties have been assigned or transferred by this local law.

substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 12. Any towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

A forfeiture action which is commenced pursuant to this subdivision shall be commenced by the filing of a summons with notice or a summons and complaint in accordance with the civil practice law and rules. [Footnote 3]: * Subchapter added L.L. 28/1987 § 10. Note further provisions of such local law:

Section 1. Declaration of legislative intent and findings. The council finds that the licensing and regulation of the towing industry continues to serve the purpose of protecting the public from over-reaching by certain members of the towing industry and from reckless conduct of certain such members which can threaten life and property. The council reaffirms the declaration made in local law number fifty-four for the year nineteen hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 12. Any towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner pursuant to section 10-145 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any right or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car driver's license pursuant to the provisions of sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

actions necessary for the administration of this local law.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section three of this local law which is in full force and effect on the effective date of this local law shall continue in full force and effect as if it constituted a license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets the requirements for issuance set forth in subdivision b of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulations promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a tow truck operator's license set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

be continued notwithstanding that certain functions, powers and duties of the police department or any officer thereof have by this local law been assigned or transferred to the department of consumer affairs; and such actions and proceedings may be prosecuted or defended by the commissioner of consumer affairs or the officer to which such functions, powers and duties have been assigned or transferred by this local law.

hundred sixty-five that the regulation of the towing of disabled vehicles is necessary to safeguard the public against fraudulent practices by tow truck operators.

The council finds that it has been a persistent and widespread practice of tow truck operators to monitor police radio transmissions to learn of accidents and then to race to accident sites with the intent of securing the towing and repair work. In so doing, speed limits and other traffic regulations are violated, often posing a substantial threat to life and property. The council finds that the most effective way to curb this practice is to authorize only such towing operators actually necessary to respond to an accident to do so. To this end, the provisions of this local law will empower the commissioner of consumer affairs to establish a program under which the police department will summon an authorized towing company to respond to the scene of an accident, where an owner or operator of a vehicle has not made arrangements for removal. The council finds further that in order to discourage tow truck operators from racing to accident sites, it is necessary to prohibit such operators from soliciting at the accident scene and from maintaining in the course of their business radios capable of receiving police signals or messages.

The council finds that the regulation of the towing industry is a more appropriate function for the department of consumer affairs than the police department. Moreover, the power vested in the department of consumer affairs to "padlock" unlicensed businesses and seize the devices used in the operation of those businesses has proven to be an effective deterrent to other unlicensed activities.

The council finds it appropriate at this time to strengthen existing towing laws and to create a more comprehensive regulatory scheme. The provisions of this local law will serve to regulate any towing performed in the city for consideration except where specifically exempted. The council finds that the provisions of this local law will afford greater protection to the public by requiring that, as a pre-requisite to licensing, towing companies furnish a surety bond to ensure payment of fines in the event of noncompliance with towing laws and obtain adequate liability insurance, and by authorizing under appropriate circumstances the immediate suspension of a tow truck operator's license.

code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

§ 13. Any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of the administrative code of the city of New York repealed by section seven of this local law who on the effective date of this local law is listed on a rotation list maintained by the police department pursuant to subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and continues to be so authorized shall on and after the effective date of this local law continue to be so authorized as if such person had been authorized by the commissioner of consumer affairs to participate in the rotation tow program pursuant to section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that such person files an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such person shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such person under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law or subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such person shall be authorized to remove vehicles pursuant to such section 20-519 of such code until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs disqualifies such person from participating in the rotation tow program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or denies such application for participation in such program. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen and abandoned unless such person meets all the requirements for participation in such program set forth in section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and regulations promulgated pursuant to such section 20-519. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall deny an application for participation in the rotation tow program submitted by any person authorized by the police commissioner to remove such vehicles if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such person has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for disqualification from participation in such program pursuant to subdivision f of section 20-519 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such person has, before the effective date of this local law engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for suspending or revoking authorization to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned pursuant to the regulations promulgated under subdivision 1 of section 14-140 of such code repealed by section seven of this local law. If a person authorized by the police commissioner to remove vehicles suspected of having been stolen or abandoned fails to file an application to participate in such rotation tow program with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such person's authorization by the police department shall become null and void and be of no further effect.

actions necessary for the administration of this local law.

engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to the provisions of section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, provided that the holder of such towing car license issued by the police commissioner files an application for a new license with the department of consumer affairs within thirty days after such effective date. Such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall, on and after the effective date of this local law, be subject to the provisions of section ten of this local law, notwithstanding any rights or privileges afforded to such holder under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law and, during the pendency of such application, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall remain in full force and effect until such time as the commissioner of consumer affairs either suspends or revokes such towing car license pursuant to the provisions of section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law, issues a new license or denies the application for such new license. The commissioner of consumer affairs shall refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license unless such holder meets all the requirements for issuance set forth in sections 20-498, 20-499, 20-500, 20-501, and 20-502 of such code as added by section ten of this local law and any regulation promulgated thereunder and any other requirements for the issuance of a license to engage in towing set forth in subchapter thirty-one of chapter two of title twenty of such code as added by section ten of this local law or in any regulations promulgated thereunder. The commissioner of consumer affairs may refuse to issue to any such holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in section 20-504 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any license to engage in towing issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner a new license if, after due notice and opportunity to be heard, he or she determines that such holder has, on or after the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which constitutes a basis for license suspension or revocation as set forth in sections 20-504 or 20-505 of such code as added by section ten of this local law or such holder has, before the effective date of this local law, engaged in conduct which would have constituted a basis for license suspension or revocation under section 10-145 of such code repealed by section three of this local law. If a holder of a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner fails to file an application for a new license with the commissioner of consumer affairs within thirty days after the effective date of this local law, such towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner shall become null and void and be of no further effect. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the license fee for any tow truck operator's license issued by the commissioner of consumer affairs pursuant to section 20-498 of such code as added by section ten of this local law to a person who holds a towing car driver's license issued by the police commissioner referred to above shall be reduced by an amount which is equal to the license fee paid to the police department prorated to the unexpired portion of the license term.

abated by the adoption of this local law or by anything contained herein; but all such actions or proceedings may be continued notwithstanding that certain functions, powers and duties of the police department or any officer thereof have by this local law been assigned or transferred to the department of consumer affairs; and such actions and proceedings may be prosecuted or defended by the commissioner of consumer affairs or the officer to which such functions, powers and duties have been assigned or transferred by this local law.

¶ 1. Commissioner of Licenses held to have been without authority to refuse to grant a license for operating a theatre on ground a theatre at the proposed location would bring increased traffic and create a traffic danger for travelers on the street, since no undefined general power could be conferred upon the Commissioner, and neither by express language nor fair implication has power been conferred upon him to withhold a license for a theatre from an applicant of good character where the proposed theatre would violate no provision of law nor rule or regulation of a department charged with protection of health or safety of the People. Code of Ordinances, ch. 3, § 33, providing for issuance of licenses by the Commissioner and requiring him to "pass upon the location of the theatre", did not confer such authority.-Small v. Moss, 279 N.Y. 288 [1938], aff'd, 255 App. Div. 1, 5 N.Y.S. 2d 432 [1938].

¶ 2. Revocation of petitioner's "Matron theatre license", which required, among other things, that unaccompanied children sit in a certain section of the theatre under supervision of a matron, held not to have been arbitrary, where police officers found children sitting in sections of the theatre other than that provided for them and unattended by an adult, and petitioner was thereafter convicted of violating P.L. § 484. A proper hearing was accorded petitioner, since at the hearings before the Commissioner of Licenses the police officers were present and one of them testified and was cross-examined by petitioner's attorney, petitioner also testified, and after such hearings petitioner's "matron theatre license" was revoked, but a license for the theatre was granted (Admin. Code, §§ B32-28.0, B32-29.0).-In re Levco Theatre Corp., 180 Misc. 335, 42 N.Y.S. 2d 30 [1943].

¶ 3. Considerations of public morals and good taste held not to prohibit erection of theatre near proposed synagogue where it appeared that foundation for synagogue had been laid over two years prior and that since that time no further work had been done, and no facts were presented to indicate when construction would go forward.-Matter of Cohen (Moss), 99 (28) N.Y.L.J. (2-3-38) 567, Col. 5 T.

¶ 4. Commissioner of Licenses had no right to deny application for a site approval to operate and maintain a motion picture theatre on the south-east corner of 59th Street and Park Avenue, Manhattan, on ground that there was pending before the City Planning Commission a resolution to rezone the area from a retail district, wherein maintenance of such a theatre was permitted, to a restricted retail district in which operation of such a theatre was prohibited. Hence, the Commissioner was directed to issue to petitioner a site approval notwithstanding thereafter the City Planning Commission actually adopted a zoning resolution so as to prohibit operation of motion picture theatres in such district. However, such rezoning would not become legally effective until the resolution of the Planning Commission was filed with the Board of Estimate and 30 days thereafter elapsed without adverse action by the Board.-In re Reade (Moss), 186 Misc. 156, 58 N.Y.S. 2d 390 [1945].

¶ 1. A bank ball game, which is a form of alley roll game, is not a common show within meaning of Administrative Code § B32-40.0.-Amusement Enterprises, Inc., v. Fielding, 189 Misc. 625, 64 N.Y.S. 2d 857 [1946], modified, 272 App. Div. 917, 71 N.Y.S. 2d 66 [1947].

¶ 2. Administrative Code § B32-40.0, defining "common show" as including certain specifically enumerated types of amusement "and all other shows of like character," did not mean to limit the terms "common show", but to state what they should be deemed to include, leaving many other performances and shows than those mentioned in the provisions of the Act.-People v. Lane-Marvey Corp., 203 Misc. 413, 114 N.Y.S. 2d 467 [1952].

¶ 3. Apparatus consisting of a mechanical pony, electrically operated by the insertion of a ten-cent piece in a slot box attached to the mechanism, which in operation produced a vibrating up and down motion for about two minutes in simulation or sensation of riding a real pony, held to constitute a "common show" within meaning of Administrative Code § B32-40.0, and defendant was therefore required to have a license for a mechanical pony located in its store, near the front, to which the public was invited.-Id.

¶ 4. The owner of a drive-in theatre which maintained a playground including power-driven equipment was required to be licensed as the operator of a "common show" within the meaning of the Code.-Whitestone Bridge Drive-In Theatre Inc. v. O'Connell, 14 A.D. 2d 51, 217 N.Y.S. 2d 371 [1961].

¶ 5. Intervenor which distributed and maintained electrically operated rocket space ships and similar devices on a fixed base with a seat intended for a single child who by insertion of a dime might obtain a one-minute ride, held to be operating a common show, subject to the licensing provisions of the Administrative Code. That the device might not be utilized by more than one child at any one time, was not determinative.-Lane-Marvey Corp., (Rocket Associates, Inc.) v. McCaffrey, 204 Misc. 166, 119 N.Y.S. 2d 830 [1953], aff'd, 282 App. Div. 1013, 126 N.Y.S. 2d 197 [1953].

¶ 6. Plaintiff, which was engaged in business of distributing and maintaining an electrically operated mechanical pony on a fixed base with a saddle, intended for a single child who upon insertion of a dime could obtain a ride for one minute, and which had been found guilty in the Magistrate's Court of violating Administrative Code § B32-41.0 in operating a common show without a license, from which judgment of conviction an appeal was now pending, held not entitled to maintain an action for a declaratory judgment that it was not operating a common show. A declaratory judgment is not available to correct an alleged error in respect of an adjudication which is subject to review by appeal.-Lane-Marvey Corp. (Rocket Associates, Inc.) v. McCaffrey, 204 Misc. 166, 119 N.Y.S. 2d 830 [1953], aff'd, 282 App. Div. 1013, 126 N.Y.S. 2d 197.

¶ 7. Notwithstanding contention of defendant City of New York that a declaratory judgment might not be utilized to prevent enforcement of a penal statute save in exceptional circumstances, intervenor which distributed and maintained electrically operated rocket space ships and similar devices on a fixed base, with the seat intended for a single child who by insertion of a dime might obtain a one-minute ride, held entitled to maintain an action for a declaratory judgment that it was not operating a common show and was therefore not subject to the license requirements of Administrative Code. In the instant case it did not appear that the dominant purpose of the action was to establish immunity from prosecution.-Id.

¶ 8. Section is constitutional as applied to common show games in the nature of pinball machines it being the use to which such devices are put rather than their inherent characteristics which led to their prohibition and this legislation is reasonably related to the "evils associated with gambling."-Albert Simon, Inc. v. Meyerson, 36 N.Y. 2d 300, 327 N.E. 2d 801, 367 N.Y.S. 2d 755 [1975].

¶ 9. Defendant who had two pinball machines and three other mechanical devices which he maintained for the purpose of promoting his music business came within the scope of the common game show arcade and the application for an injunction brought by the city and the consumers affairs department would be granted.-City of N.Y. v. 86th St. Music Center, Inc., 180 (98) N.Y.L.J. (11-22-78) 10, Col. 3B.

¶ 10. The game machines Penny Falls, Splashdown and Silver Falls are games of chance which eject something of value for which licenses may not properly be issued.-Sport & Fun, Inc. v. Ratner, 82 App. Div. 890 [1981].

¶ 11. Dept. of Consumer Affairs regulation which fixes 200 ft. boundary around certain schools within which video games are prohibited is not unconstitutionally vague nor without substantial relationship to legitimate purpose. Video games are also not a form of speech protected by the 1st Amend.-Tommy & Tina, Inc. v. Dept. of Consumer Affairs, 189(16) N.Y.L.J. (1-24-83) 6, Col. 3B.

¶ 12. Ct. upheld dept. decision that petitioner was operating arcade games without a license within defn. of a "common show" even though games were free of charge.-Beefsteak Charlie's Inc. v. Dept. of Consumer Affairs, 190(98) N.Y.L.J. (11-22-83) 6, Col. 3B.

¶ 1. In the exercise of its administrative powers the City of New York has a right to require that certain businesses, particularly those catering to the public, be licensed before they can operate.-People v. Lane-Marvey Corp., 203 Misc. 413, 114 N.Y.S. 2d 467 [1952].

¶ 2. A separate license must be obtained for each common show operated. Therefore when defendant, who was licensed to operate a shuffleboard machine, installed a pool machine without obtaining an additional license, he was guilty of violating the licensing statute.-People v. Bonanno, 5 Misc. 2d 304, 161 N.Y.S. 2d 282 [1956].

¶ 3. A licensed common show operator is permitted to operate any number of devices within the statutory definition. Hence, defendant was not guilty of violating this section where he operated a miniature pool table without a license where he also maintained a licensed electric shuffleboard.-People v. Corrigan, 4 N.Y. 2d 965, 177 N.Y.S. 2d 493, 152 N.E. 2d 520 [1958].

¶ 4. If Commissioner of Licenses might consider events which occurred subsequent to filing of application for license to operate "alley roll" and other games, petitioner was entitled to do the same thing and might present facts with respect to the resignation of the two officers whose integrity was attacked, even though such resignation occurred subsequent to filing of the application.-In re Fiftieth St. Fairway, Inc. (Moss), 101 (128) N.Y.L.J. (6-3-39) 2561, Col. 2 M, at 2 F.

¶ 5. That one of the officers of the corporation petitioning for common show licenses and a license to operate "alley roll" games had been charged with juvenile delinquency in 1913 and with disorderly conduct in 1916, and that another had pleaded guilty to petty larceny in 1920, held not to warrant denial of the licenses, particularly in view of fact that the corporation had caused the withdrawal of both of such officers from any connection with the corporation.-Id.

¶ 6. Action of Commissioner of Licenses in revoking license theretofore granted to petitioners for operation of "alley roll" games on vacant lot leased by them in theatrical district and in denying other applications for common show purposes, held invalid, and Commissioner was directed to rescind the revocation and to issue the licenses, since the enterprises for which the licenses were sought conformed with zoning and other regulations, and objections based upon proposition that an undesirable element might be attracted by the game merely dealt with conjectures that might be considered when they arose (279 N.Y. 288). Since no present rule of any department of government was violated by establishment of such an amusement center, Commissioner might not anticipate the possibility of such violations.-Id.

¶ 7. Where the License Commissioner, following a three months' temporary license, had refused to issue to petitioner a license for an "alley ball" game maintained in petitioner's restaurant and cafe, on ground that the game was one of chance and petitioner had misrepresented that the machine was an improved type of "alley ball" game, petitioner held entitled to an alternative order of mandamus, as petitioner's game was so similar to the regular alley ball game as to require a full development of the facts at a trial.-In re Geraghty (Moss), 115 (20) N.Y.L.J. (1-24-46) 317, Col. 5 M.

¶ 8. Manufacturer of Bank Ball Game, which is a type of alley roll game, held entitled to stay official action in the form of confiscation or destruction of its machines pending trial of action brought by it for a judgment declaring the game one of amusement and skill and not a gambling device, where it appeared that plaintiff's game had theretofore been licensed by the Commissioner of Licenses, the contention that the machine was a gambling device was based on the claim that it might be readily converted into a gambling device, and the authorities would make no arrests and the legality of the machine therefore could not be tested in a criminal proceeding.-Amusement Enterprises, Inc. v. Fielding, 63 N.Y.S. 2d 661 [1946].

¶ 9. Plaintiff's "Bank Ball" game, which was an alley roll game involving the rolling of nine balls in succession along a fifteen foot alley into various receptacles, with the course and distance of the ball in its flight being solely in the hands of the play and a properly directed ball always finding its target, held to be a game of amusement and skill and not a gambling machine. Furthermore, it was not "readily convertible" into a gambling machine within meaning of P.L. § 982, as evidenced by testimony of engineer that it would take twelve minutes to change the machine so that a player would receive one free game if he obtained a certain score, that another ten minutes would be required to complete the job by soldering, insulating and properly securing wires, and an additional five minutes for installation of a free play plug to make the game interchangeably a free play game and a normal game.-Amusement Enterprises, Inc. v. Fielding, 189 Misc. 625, 64 N.Y.S. 2d 857 [1946], modified, 272 App. Div. 917, 71 N.Y.S. 2d 66 [1947].

¶ 10. Manufacturer of "bank ball" game might not sue for a declaratory judgment that game was a "game of amusement and skill", that it was not readily convertible within meaning of P.L. § 982, and that no license was required under the Administrative Code for operation of the game.-Amusement Enterprises v. Fielding, 272 App. Div. 917, 71 N.Y.S. 2d 66 [1947], reversing on this point, 64 N.Y.S. 2d 857 [1946].

¶ 11. Refusal of Commissioner of Licenses to issue a license to operate a common show X-ray poker game was not arbitrary where there were two large high schools in the neighborhood.-In re Littwin (Moss), 107 (17) N.Y.L.J. (1-21-42) 308, Col. 5 M.

¶ 12. Motion for mandamus order directing Commissioner of Licenses to issue license to petitioner to operate a game known as "play ball" was denied, on ground that the facts shown by affidavits established that the Commissioner was correct in his ruling that the game was one of chance, illegal under the Penal Law. Moreover a certain person shown to be upon the premises under authority of petitioner had been convicted three times in 1941 of illegally operating a "pinball" machine on the premises.-Sherry v. Moss, 107 (133) N.Y.L.J. (6-9-42) 2445, Col. 5 F.

¶ 13. Refusal of Commissioner of Licenses to grant license for the proposed common shows held not to have been arbitrary where the proposed location of the shows was near a church and the Department of Licenses had made a comprehensive investigation and the Commissioner had personally visited the premises and the neighborhood.-Fargo Enterprises, Inc. v. Fielding, 74 N.Y.S. 2d 326 [1953].

¶ 14. Commissioner of Licenses held to have acted lawfully in refusing to grant a show license in a business zone where numerous individuals and civic organizations objected to the issuance thereof on the grounds that such shows would interfere with the City's youth program.-In re Joyland Center, Inc. (McCaffrey), 145 N.Y.S. 2d 891 [1955].

¶ 15. Plaintiff, distributor of electrically operated mechanical ponyrides, was found guilty of violating § B32-41.0 of the Administrative Code in operating a common show without a license. Declaratory judgment declaring code inapplicable is not available since appeal was pending from judgment of conviction.-Lane-Marvey Corp. v. McCaffrey, 204 Misc. 166, 119 N.Y.S. 2d 830 [1953], aff'd, 282 App. Div. 1013, 126 N.Y.S. 2d 197 [1953].

¶ 1. Commissioner of Licenses held to have been justified in refusing to renew license to operate a shooting gallery, on grounds the applicant did not carry workmen's compensation or liability insurance as required by regulations of Commissioner of Licenses, the shooting gallery was only 10 feet in length instead of the required 30 feet, and also lacked the required oblique metal protective flanges on the side walls, offering of prizes from fifty cents to $25 for a shooting fee of ten cents was so disproportionate as to induce gambling, and patrons had complained the previous year of improper manipulation of the equipment whereby they were deprived of prizes duly won.-Apel v. Moss, 256 App. Div. 607, 11 N.Y.S. 2d 122 [1939].

¶ 2. That the reasons given for revocation in 1938 of petitioner's license to conduct a shooting gallery and the refusal in 1939 to renew his license were possibly the same, and that no appeal had been taken from the order directing restoration in 1938, did not require an affirmance of an order directing issuance of a renewal in 1939.-Id.

SUBCHAPTER 9 PUBLIC CARTS AND CARTERS [Repealed]

¶ 1. Trucking company which operated a fleet of interstate motor trucks and maintained in New York City a freight terminal at which it loaded and unloaded merchandise and by means of small delivery trucks distributed the merchandise at points within the City to various consignees, and also picked up goods from such consignees for transportation to the terminal, held, as respects its small delivery trucks, not to come within scope of ordinance imposing a license fee for operation of public carts within the City, and defining as a public cart every vehicle kept for hire or used to carry merchandise within the City for pay. Such ordinance applies only to a common carrier engaged in the business of carrying merchandise generally for all who desire his services, whereas, although the trucking company was a common rather than a private contract carrier, it did not undertake to carry goods within the City for anyone who so desired, but only for those who contracted with it to ship goods in interstate commerce, and the ordinance did not attempt to cover a contract between shipper and carrier where State lines were to be crossed (Admin. Code §§ B32-92.0 to B32-95.0).-People v. Horton Motor Lines, Inc., 281 N.Y. 196, 22 N.E. 2d 338 [1939], rev'g, 170 Misc. 507, 10 N.Y.S. 2d 580 [1938].

¶ 2. Ordinance imposing a license fee for operation of public carts within the City would be an unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce if it were intended to apply to small delivery trucks which trucking company, operating a fleet of interstate motor trucks, maintained to distribute merchandise within the City from its freight terminal in the City and to pick up merchandise from consignees for transportation to the terminal, since the delivery trucks were available only to those shipping in interstate commerce pursuant to a single contract for interstate commerce. The ordinance attempted to license the occupation of public cartmen, and the State might not require a license as a condition precedent to the pursuing of activities in interstate commerce. However, even if the ordinance were designed solely as a revenue measure it is doubtful whether it could apply to the delivery trucks.-Id.

¶ 3. Administrative Code, ch. 32, Art. 15, is a legislative grant of power by the State to the City to regulate public cartmen as to rate of transportation, number of men to be engaged, and disputes as to compensation, and to license public carts therefor. It is not a grant of power to insure public safety and convenience or to compel contribution to cost of constructing and maintaining highways. It purports to regulate intrastate business and by its very nature is inapplicable to interstate commerce.-People (Conklin) v. Madden, 169 Misc. 745, 9 N.Y.S. 2d 64 [1939].

¶ 4. Defendant who employed his truck exclusively either in collecting merchandise from consignors in City of New York and delivering it to railroad terminal from which it was shipped out of state, or in receiving merchandise at the terminal and delivering it to consignees within the City, and who carried no intracity or intrastate shipments and performed no cartage service for the general public and had no relations as principal with the consignor or consignee but was paid directly by a forwarding company with which he was under contract, held to be engaged exclusively in interstate commerce, and hence was not subject to Administrative Code § B32-93.0, requiring a license for operation of public carts. That the truck was owned by an independent company and not by the forwarding company, was immaterial.-Id.

¶ 5. Defendant who ran a livery stable business and owned several wagons and horses which were not licensed and which he hired only on a daily, weekly or monthly basis, held to be a "public cartman" within meaning of Administrative Code § B32-92.0, and guilty of a violation thereof when on the occasion in question he had hired out a wagon for use by another person for purposes of moving furniture.-People v. Englander, 170 Misc. 518, 10 N.Y.S. 2d 464 [1939].

¶ 6. Defendant which was engaged in business of leasing motor trucks to business houses in New York City to be used for purpose of delivering and collecting the lessee's merchandise only, the particular truck in question having been used by the merchant to which it was leased for purpose of making free delivery of merchandise to its customers, held not to be a "public cartman" within meaning of Administrative Code § B32-92.0, and hence defendant was not required to have a public cartman's license, since the truck was not available for use by the general public but was available only for purpose of making the lessee's deliveries. Fact that the chauffeurs for the trucks were supplied under contract between lessee and a wholly-owned subsidiary of defendant was immaterial.-People v. S & E. Motor Hire Corp., 29 N.Y.S. 2d 105 [1941], rev'g, 175 Misc. 347, 22 N.Y.S. 2d 845 [1940].

¶ 7. Although § B32-92.0 may be violated either by keeping the vehicle for hire or by using it to carry goods for pay, the use of such vehicle must be general, and not exclusive.-Id.

¶ 8. That defendant did not possess a public cartman's license as required by Administrative Code §§ B32-92.0 to 95.0 would not render void a limitation of liability clause in his contract of carriage. Since it was plaintiff who sought to enforce the responsibility of a common carrier upon defendant, defendant should have the benefit of the entire contract even though unlicensed at the time it was made.-Grayson-Robinson Stores, Inc. v. Courtney, 125 (121) N.Y.L.J. (6-22-51) 2324, Col. 2 T.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION 20-249

¶ 1. The denial of a public cart license to petitioner corporation merely because one of the two stockholders had been convicted many years ago for disorderly conduct was arbitrary.-Wearing Apparel Trucking Co. v. O'Connell, 139 (100) N.Y.L.J. (5-22-58) 6, Col. 6 F.

¶ 2. The petitioner sought a license to engage in trucking in the garment industry. The license was denied because the treasurer of the petitioner was found to be personally unfit, having been convicted of extortion in connection with garment trucking racketeering, and having served a sentence of from 5 to 10 years. Held: The Commissioner did not abuse his discretion. The conviction was not for criminal activities remote from the licensed business but was linked to the very industry in which the petitioner sought a license-an industry which, as both courts below emphasized, has been infiltrated by criminal elements.-Matter of Barton Trucking Corporation, 7 N.Y. 2d 299, 197 N.Y.S. 2d 138, 165 N.E. 2d 163 [1959].

¶ 3. Article 15 of Chapter 32 is invalid since State has undertaken the regulation of carriers of household goods within the city and there is no real distinction between conditions in the city and elsewhere in the State which would allow the city to adopt its own regulations in this area.-Kindermann Fireproof Storage Warehouse Inc. v. City of N.Y., 39 A.D. 2d 266, 333 N.Y.S. 2d 854 [1972], aff'd, 36 N.Y. 2d 831, 334 N.E. 2d 685, 370 N.Y.S. 2d 906 [1975].

SUBCHAPTER 10 JUNK DEALERS [Repealed]

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION 20-253

¶ 1. Defendants who were engaged in the business of grading and sorting new and used wool material which they sold in bulk lots to wool mills, held to be engaged in the business of purchasing or selling rags within the statutory definition of a junk dealer (Admin. Code § B32-113.0), and were required to have a junk dealer's license, inasmuch as the preponderance of their purchased wool material was purchased from wholesale junk dealers, the materials in which they dealt were of a character which provided a ready market for stolen property so that regulation thereof was necessary and reasonable, and the commodities in which they dealt were included within the term "rags".-People v. American Wool Stock Corp., 286 N.Y. 77, 35 N.E. 2d 905 [1941], rev'g, 174 Misc. 758, 21 N.Y.S. 2d 781 [1940].

¶ 2. Defendant was held to be a junk dealer within the purview of § B32-113.0 of the Administrative Code even though he dealt in waste clippings from new woolen material.-People v. Sobel, 198 Misc. 891, 104 S. 2d 162 [1950].

¶ 1. Refusal of New York City Commissioner of Licenses to grant license to petitioner for operation of certain premises as a junk shop on ground the previous licensee and owner of the premises was convicted of a conspiracy to purchase junk from minors and that the operation of a junk shop on the premises would tend to induce visits by minors who had previously patronized the place, held not to have been arbitrary or unreasonable, notwithstanding petitioner was of good character.-In re Saladino (Moss), 28 N.Y.S. 2d 75 [1941].

¶ 2. That petitioner's husband's license to act as a junk dealer had been revoked because of his failure to disclose the existence of a partnership with a person who was not licensed as a junk dealer, held not to warrant denial of a junk dealer license to petitioner, even though she might wish to employ or be assisted by her husband, who had no criminal record.-In re Novi (Moss), 184 Misc, 773, 54 N.Y.S. 2d 852 [1945].

¶ 3. Without a hearing Commissioner denied appellant's application for a license as a junk dealer upon the grounds that (1) a prior application by her husband had been refused because of protests by neighbors and (2) the neighborhood had not changed sufficiently to warrant further consideration. The premises were in an unrestricted district. The Commissioner's objections were not based upon any statutory provisions, and he is without power to prescribe new qualifications for an applicant. The matter was remitted to him for a hearing and reconsideration based upon proof to be adduced thereat. At that time he could consider whether appellant had actually been operating a junk business before procuring a license herefore.-Matter of Savage v. Commissioner of Licenses, 3 A.D. 2d 717, 159 N.Y.S. 2d 456 [1957].

¶ 4. Petitioner was held entitled to an order directing that a junk shop license be issued to him, where it appeared that actually petitioner had no criminal record whatever and that the criminal record upon which the refusal to grant a license was based was apparently that of another person with a similar name.-In re De Gregorio (Moss), 113 (127) N.Y.L.J. (6-1-45) 2099, Col. 1 T.

¶ 5. Where charges against petitioner for larceny and rape had been dismissed and he had had a clean record for 16 years since the date of the last arrest, a denial of his application for a license for junk cart was arbitrary.-Matter of Pinto (O'Connell), 142 (85) N.Y.L.J. (10-29-59) 13, Col. 8 M.

¶ 6. The Commissioner of Licenses rejected the application of a junk dealer at a particular location because of the harm the business might work on the residential area involved. Held: In the light of the history and purpose of the regulation of junk dealers, it is obvious that a license is required in order to eliminate, or at least curtail, the readily available market for stolen property which this business affords. The clear implication, therefor, is that delegated discretion was intended, in this instance, to be limited to this specific subject, i.e., to the prevention of the distribution of stolen goods. Therefore, the refusal of the Commissioner to grant the license because of the mere objections of the residents (as to possible adverse affect upon the area) was arbitrary and in excess of authority conferred.-Matter of Mologno, 7 N.Y. 2d 155, 196 N.Y.S. 2d 90, 164 N.E. 2d 389 [1959].

¶ 7. Defendant who was engaged in the business of buying and collecting from knitting mills leftover pieces of salvaging, sorting and bailing the wool, known as wool clips, and in materials which it would then sell to knitting mills to reprocess into yarn and resell to manufacturers, held not to be a junk dealer within meaning of Admin. Code § B32-114.0 making it unlawful to act as a junk dealer without a license therefor. Defendant dealt only with new materials and purchased them direct from the manufacturer. Such new wool clips were not "rags" within meaning of the statute.-People (Meltzer) v. Nierman, 190 Misc. 149, 71 N.Y.S. 2d 598 [1947].

¶ 8. Defendant who was engaged in the business of purchasing woolen clippings from clothing manufacturers, which he then sorted, bailed and sold to other dealers in woolen clippings, which such dealers in turn sold to mills, with the clippings eventually finding their way back into bolts of cloth as reprocessed wool, held to be a junk dealer within meaning of Admin. Code § B32-114.0, requiring him to procure a license. Clippings from the manufacturer of new garments are waste or discarded material and therefore "rags" within purview of § B32-113.0.-People (Meltzer) v.

¶ 9. The business of junk dealer, which business provides a likely market for stolen property, is of a character which warrants regulation in the exercise of police power, and the licensing statute embodied in Administrative Code §§ B32-113.0 to B32-125.0 was a valid exercise of such police power.-People v. American Wool Stock Corp., 286 N.Y. 77, 35 N.E. 2d 905 [1941], rev'g, 174 Misc. 758, 21 N.Y.S. 2d 781 [1940]

¶ 10. The basic reason for regulation of junk dealers is the desire of the law making body to minimize the opportunity for theft on the part of persons who have access to the household belongings of others and the opportunity to dispose of such belongings in such a manner as to destroy their original form.-People (Meltzer) v. Nierman, 190 Misc. 149, 71 N.Y.S. 2d 598 [1947].

¶ 11. Suspension of petitioner's license was not arbitrary where evidence showed (1) petitioner carried on junk business in his home and used license address as storeroom and (2) operated junk cart without license.-Zucherman v. Moss, 184 Misc. 232, 56 N.Y.S. 2d 90 [1945].

¶ 1. Commissioner's suspension of petitioner's license to operate a junk shop, held not to have been arbitrary, where the license authorized him to maintain a junk shop at 327 East 102nd Street, where he used such premises only as a storeroom and operated his business from his home at 1711 Davidson Avenue, Bronx, thus violating Administrative Code § B32-120.0 making it unlawful for a junk dealer to carry on his business at any other place than that designated in his license. Also, there was evidence that petitioner had operated a junk cart without the license required by § B32-114.0.-In re Zuckerman (Moss), 184 Misc. 232, 56 N.Y.S. 2d 90 [1945].

¶ 1. Commissioner's suspension of petitioner's license to operate as a junk dealer, held not to have been arbitrary where petitioner failed to keep any books or records, in violation of Administrative Code § B32-123.0.-Wolf v. Moss, 113 (50) N.Y.L.J. (3-2-45) 808, Col. 6 F.

¶ 2. Where petitioner had purchased junk scrap metal without making or keeping the required record thereof and had violated the Administrative Code on a prior occasion, determination of Commissioner of Licenses suspending petitioner's license to sell junk for thirty days and fining it $25 for each violation of this section was not arbitrary.-A Zinzi & Sons Inc. v. Tyler, 158 (7) N.Y.L.J. (7-12-67) 10, Col. 6 F.

¶ 3. Where police officers came to junkyard to inspect book recording purchases and sales and when it was not produced began to roam area not more than 12 feet from office shed and noticed that vehicle identification numbers on automobile parts had been obliterated after which defendants were arrested and parts seized the search was upheld since premises were open for business and accessible to public and objects were in open view.-People v. Ruggieri, 85 Misc. 2d 141, 379 N.Y.S. 2d 333 [1976].

¶ 1. The City License Commissioner could not revoke the petitioners' license to carry on garbage removal without a proper notice and without giving licensees information as to the purpose of a hearing. Petitioner's license was a property right and hence, where the revocation comes about as a result of a determination by an administrative officer or body, the act is of a judicial nature and to be valid must be in accord with due process of law.-Rosetti v. O'Connell, 10 Misc. 2d 453, 172 N.Y.S. 2d 716 [1958].

¶ 1. Temporary rate adjustments made on an emergency basis should be recalculated under the formal procedures of § 20-335(b). Minor rate adjustment in question regarded an "additional toll expense" which became a substantial amount over time. (Presidents Council of Trade Waste Assoc. v. Koch, 143 Misc.2d 607, 1989)

A regulation requiring commercial rubbish collectors to make written contracts with their customers and file the same with the Department of Licenses is a reasonable one, calculated to insure the proper observance of maximum price regulations.-P. & A. CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION insufficient, inasmuch as no ultimate facts were pleaded constituting the legal grievance of plaintiffs, no names, times or other details were given nor damage shown, there was no allegation that any of the plaintiffs were accused of a violation of Administrative Code § 833-16.0, and even if violation charges were made against them there was no allegation why relief could not be obtained in the actions brought. There were merely conclusory allegations that defendants' actions tended to injure plaintiffs' good reputation and cause irreparable injury to their "property rights," that the corporate plaintiff had attempted in vain to have defendants desist, and that plaintiffs had no adequate remedy at law. Furthermore, it did not appear that the corporate plaintiff had sustained any damage, or that it was entitled to sue on behalf of anyone other than itself.-Boro Wide Food Dealers Ass'n. v. LaGuardia, 44 N.Y.S. 2d 160 [1943].

¶ 1. Complaint, in action by individual grocers and dealers in eggs and dairy products, and by a corporate organization of grocers, to restrain New York City officials from enforcing price regulations of the OPA, held

¶ 2. Where contract providing for sale of United States choice steers provided that weight of goods when packed governed all sales and no allowance would be made for natural shrinkage, and when shipment arrived from Omaha there was difference of 185 pounds in weight due to natural shrinkage, there was no violation of § 193 of Agriculture and Markets Law or § 833-16.0 of Administrative Code of City of New York.-Emerald Packing Corporation v. Hygrade Food Products Corporation, 23 Misc. 2d 915, 200 N.Y.S. 2d 534 [1960].

¶ 3. Civil Court had no jurisdiction of an action to recover a $100 penalty from the defendant who allegedly sold a bag of candy which was two ounces less than the marked weight. Such a penalty may be recovered only in a trial before a magistrate.-City of New York v. Alkanna, 148 (109) N.Y.L.J. (12-7-62) 17, Col. 1 T.

¶ 4. The power given to the Commissioner of Department of Markets to enforce laws in relation to weights and measures authorized him to adopt a regulation requiring the grinding of meats in a place open to the public.-Matter of Jackel, 35 Misc. 2d 358, 229 N.Y.S. 2d 57 [1962].

¶ 5. Where containers of milk bearing the date and name of the packer were selected at random from other similarly marked containers maintained by a milk wholesaler and distributor and were determined to be improperly labeled a prima facie case was made out to prove that these containers were being offered for sale within the meaning of this section and the defendant must then prove that these containers were not offered for sale.-City of N.Y. v. Dairylea Corp., 73 Misc. 2d 864, 342 N.Y.S. 2d 760 [1973].

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. Section forbidding gasoline retail station proprietors from maintaining on the station premises any signs advertising the price of gasoline other than those permitted by the statute, which limited signs to placards on the individual pumps which should be between 7 and 12 inches in height, and 8 and 12 inches in width, held not unconstitutional as depriving defendant proprietor of its property without due process, since the restrictions as to signs were not more drastic than was reasonable to accomplish the purpose of preventing fraud in the retail sale of gasoline.-People v. Arlen Service Stations, Inc., 284 N.Y. 340, 31 N.E. 2d 184 [1940], rev'g, 175 Misc. 30, 21 N.Y.S. 2d 1006 [1940].

¶ 2. That fraud was neither charged nor proved against the defendant-proprietor was immaterial, since a business, however honest in itself, may be the subject of governmental regulation if it may become a medium of fraud. Neither might the court extend its inquiry into the realm of expediency where legislative judgment alone dictated the necessity for statutory regulation and its wisdom.-Id.

¶ 3. Likewise, defendant-proprietor was not deprived of the equal protection of the laws, inasmuch as the law affected alike all retail dealers in motor fuel and called for the uniform enforcement of the act itself.-Id.

¶ 4. Corporate defendant which operated a gasoline service station under its name "Sav-4-On Gallon, Inc.", maintaining over its office and service station a sign reading "Sav-4-On Gallon" in large letters, with the words "owned and operated by" and "Inc." being in smaller letters, and which also maintained two similar signs attached to the sides of a truck standing in an adjacent lot, held guilty of violation of Administrative Code § B36-103.0 prohibiting other certain size signs on gasoline stations referring to the price of gasoline. Contentions of defendant that such ruling nullified the use of its corporate title and prevented compliance with P.L. § 440-a requiring it to display its name upon the premises, were overruled.-People v. Save-4-On Gallon, Inc., 204 Misc. 708, 125 N.Y.S. 2d 5 [1953].

¶ 4.1. A complaint charging the maintenance of a sign on gasoline pumps measuring 5 x $3\frac{1}{2}$ feet, reading "Owned and Operated by 25 Stations, Inc.", with the red numerals "25" being 36" in height, while the other letters were not over 6 inches in height, presented a triable question of fact for the magistrate's court.-People v. 25 Stations, Inc., 3 N.Y. 2d 488, 168 N.Y.S. 2d 962, 146 N.E. 2d 691 [1957].

¶ 5. Gas station proprietor who maintained on premises adjacent to his gasoline station a sign 5 feet in height and 16 inches in width, advertising the sale of a particular brand of gasoline at a stated price, held not to have violated section prohibiting the maintenance "on the premises on which said gasoline is sold or offered for sale", a sign larger than 12 inches in height and 12 inches in width.-People v. Pearl, 173 Misc. 467, 17 N.Y.S. 2d 825 [1940].

¶ 6. Proprietor of retail gasoline station held not entitled to temporary injunction restraining enforcement against him of section forbidding gasoline retail station proprietors from maintaining on the station premises any signs advertising the price of gasoline other than those permitted by such statute, which limited signs to placards on the individual pumps which should be between 7 and 12 inches in height and 8 and 12 inches in width. The proprietor failed to show any right to the extraordinary relief sought by the injunction, and furthermore, court was of the belief that the statute was constitutional as being salutary inasmuch as it eradicated an evil and applied with equal force to all dealers.-Mestichelli v. Valentine, 173 Misc. 539, 18 N.Y.S. 2d 405 [1939].

¶ 7. This statute does not confer a right of action on a person damaged by a violation and its manifest intent is the protection of the buying public from fraud in the retail sale of gasoline. Action by one gas station operator to recover damages from another operator who had advertised in a manner prohibited by this section was dismissed.-Brody v. Saveway Northern Boulevard, Inc., 14 N.Y. 2d 576 [1964], rev'g, 19 App. Div. 2d 714, 242 N.Y.S. 2d 422 [1963].

¶ 8. This statute does not prohibit signs advertising that trading stamps are given with every purchase of gasoline.-People v. Carillo, 42 Misc. 2d 74, 246 N.Y.S. 2d 692 [1964].

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION

¶ 1. This statute does not confer a right of action on a person damaged by a violation and its manifest intent is the protection of the buying public from fraud in the retail sale of gasoline. Action by one gas station operator to recover damages from another operator who had advertised in a manner prohibited by this section was dismissed.-Brody v. CHAPTER 4 REGULATION OF COMMODITIES AND SERVICES*99

SUBCHAPTER 5 SALES OF PETROLEUM PRODUCTS*102

§ 20-673.1 Sale of unleaded gasoline.

a. Definitions. For purposes of this section, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

1. "Distributor" shall mean any person who transports or stores or causes the transportation or storage of gasoline at any point between any plant at which gasoline is produced and any retail outlet or facility of a wholesale purchaser-consumer.

2. "Gasoline" shall mean any fuel sold for use in motor vehicles and motor vehicle engines, and commonly or commercially known or sold as gasoline.

3. "Lead additive" shall mean any substance containing lead or lead compounds.

4. "Leaded gasoline" shall mean gasoline which is produced with the use of any lead additive or which contains more than five one hundredths of a gram of lead per gallon or more than five one thousandths of a gram of phosphorus per gallon.

5. "Refiner" shall mean any person who owns, leases, operates, controls or supervises a plant at which gasoline is produced.

6. "Reseller" shall mean any person who purchases gasoline identified by the corporate, trade or brand name of a refiner from such refiner or a distributor and resells or transfers it to retailers or wholesale purchaser-consumers displaying the refiner's brand, and whose assets or facilities are not substantially owned, leased or controlled by such refiner.

7. "Retail outlet" shall mean any establishment at which gasoline is sold or offered for sale for use in motor vehicles.

8. "Retailer" shall mean any person who owns, leases, operates, controls, or supervises a retail outlet.

9. "Unleaded gasoline" shall mean gasoline which is produced without the use of any lead additive and which contains not more than five one hundredths of a gram of lead per gallon and not more than five one thousandths of a gram of phosphorus per gallon.

10. "Wholesale purchaser-consumer" shall mean any organization that is an ultimate consumer of gasoline and which purchases or obtains gasoline from a supplier for use in motor vehicles and receives delivery of that product into a storage tank of at least five hundred fifty gallon capacity substantially under the control of that organization.

b. No distributor shall sell or transfer to any other distributor, retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer any gasoline which is represented to be unleaded unless such gasoline meets the defined requirements for unleaded gasoline set forth in subdivision a of this section.

c. No retailer or employee or agent of a retailer, and no wholesale purchaser-consumer or employee or agent of a wholesale purchaser-consumer, shall sell, dispense or offer for sale gasoline represented to be unleaded unless such gasoline meets the defined requirements for unleaded gasoline set forth in subdivision a of this section.

d. Every retailer and wholesale purchaser-consumer shall affix to each gasoline pump stand in a location so as to be readily visible to the employees of such retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer and to person*103 operating motor vehicles into which gasoline is to be dispensed a permanent legible label as follows: (i) for gasoline pump stands containing pumps for introduction of unleaded gasoline into motor vehicles, the label shall state: "Unleaded gasoline"; and (ii) for gasoline pump stands containing pumps for introduction of leaded gasoline into motor vehicles, the label shall state: "Contains lead anti-knock compounds"; provided, however, that where more than one grade of unleaded gasoline is offered for sale at a retail outlet, compliance with this subdivision is required for only one grade.

e. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law to the contrary, in any proceeding to adjudicate a violation of subdivision d of this section, a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer may be found not to be liable for violation thereof where it is shown that more than one grade of gasoline is dispensed from a gasoline pump or pump stand and it is demonstrated to the satisfaction of the commissioner that an alternative system of labeling furthers the objectives of such subdivision.

f. Any violation of subdivision c of this section by a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer shall also be deemed a violation by: (1) the reseller, if any, and the refiner, where the corporate, trade or brand name of such refiner or any of its marketing subsidiaries appears on the pump stand or is displayed at the retail outlet or wholesale purchaser-consumer facility from which the gasoline was sold, dispensed or offered for sale. Except as provided in subdivision g of this section, the refiner shall be deemed in violation of subdivision c of this section irrespective of whether any other refiner, distributor, retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer may have caused or permitted the violation; or

(2) the distributor who sold such retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer gasoline contained in the storage tank which supplied the pump from which the gasoline was sold, dispensed or offered for sale which gave rise to the violation, where the corporate, trade or brand name of a refiner or any of its marketing subsidiaries does not appear on the pump stand and is not displayed at the retail outlet or wholesale purchaser-consumer facility from which the gasoline was sold, dispensed or offered for sale.

g. (1) In any case in which a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer and any refiner or distributor would be in violation or be deemed in violation of subdivision c of this section, the retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer shall not be liable if he or she can demonstrate that the violation was not caused by such retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer or his or her employee or agent.

(2) In any case in which a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer would be in violation of subdivision c of this section, and a reseller, if any, and any refiner would be deemed in violation under paragraph one of subdivision f of this section, the refiner shall not be deemed in violation if he or she can demonstrate:

(a) that the violation was not caused by such refiner or his or her employee or agent, and

(b) that the violation was caused by an act in violation of any law, other than the provisions of this section, or an act of sabotage, vandalism, or deliberate commingling of leaded and unleaded gasoline, whether or not such acts are violations of law in the jurisdiction where the violation of the requirements of this section occurred, or

(c) that the violation was caused by the action of a reseller or a retailer supplied by such reseller, in violation of a contractual undertaking imposed by the refiner on such reseller designed to prevent such action, and despite reasonable efforts by the refiner to insure compliance with such contractual obligation, such as periodic sampling, or

(d) that the violation was caused by the action of a retailer who is supplied directly by the refiner and not by a reseller, in violation of a contractual undertaking imposed by the refiner on such retailer designed to prevent such action, and despite reasonable efforts by the refiner to insure compliance with such contractual obligation, such as periodic sampling, or

(e) that the violation was caused by the action of a distributor subject to a contract with the refiner for transportation of gasoline from a terminal to a distributor, retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer, in violation of a contractual undertaking imposed by the refiner on such distributor designed to prevent such action, and despite reasonable efforts by the refiner to insure compliance with such contractual obligation, such as periodic sampling, or

(f) that the violation was caused by a distributor (such as a common carrier) not subject to a contract with the refiner but engaged by him or her for transportation of gasoline from a terminal to a distributor, retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer, despite reasonable efforts by the refiner to prevent such action, such as specification or inspection of equipment, or

(g) that the violation occurred at a wholesale purchaser-consumer facility; provided, however, that if such wholesale purchaser-consumer was supplied by a reseller, the refiner must demonstrate that the violation could not have been prevented by such reseller's compliance with a contractual undertaking imposed by the refiner on such reseller as provided in subparagraph c of this paragraph.

(h) For purposes of subparagraphs (b) through (f) of this paragraph, the term "was caused" means that the refiner must demonstrate by reasonably specific showings by direct or circumstantial evidence that the violation was caused or must have been caused by another.

(3) In any case in which a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer would be in violation of subdivision c of this section, and a reseller and any refiner would be deemed in violation under paragraph one of subdivision f of this section, the reseller shall not be deemed in violation if he or she can demonstrate that the violation was not caused by such reseller or his or her employee or agent.

(4) In any case in which a retailer or wholesale purchaser-consumer would be in violation of subdivision c of this section, and any distributor would be deemed in violation under paragraph two of subdivision f of this section, the distributor will not be deemed in violation if he or she can demonstrate that the violation was not caused by such distributor or his or her employee or agent.

6. "Refiner" shall mean any person engaged in the refining of crude oil to produce gasoline or the importation of gasoline.

7. "Research octane number" and "motor octane number" shall have the meaning given such terms in the specifications of the American Society for Testing and Materials (ASTM) entitled "Standard Specifications for Automotive Gasoline" designated D 439 and, with respect to any grade or type of gasoline, are determined in accordance with test methods set forth in ASTM standard test methods designated D 2699 and D 2700, or such other meaning given such terms in any regulations promulgated by the federal trade commission pursuant to section twenty-eight hundred twenty-three of title fifteen of the United States code.

8. "Ultimate purchaser" shall mean, with respect to any item, the first person who purchases such item for purposes other than resale.

b. Each refiner who distributes gasoline shall:

(1) determine the octane rating of any such gasoline; and

(2) if such refiner distributes such gasoline to any person other than the ultimate purchaser, certify, consistent with the determination made under paragraph one of this subdivision, the octane rating of such gasoline.

c. Each distributor who receives gasoline, the octane rating of which is certified to the distributor under this section, and distributes such gasoline to another person other than the ultimate purchaser shall certify to such other person the octane rating of such gasoline consistent with:

(1) the octane rating of such gasoline certified to such distributor; or

(2) if such distributor elects, in accordance with the regulations of the federal trade commission, the octane rating of such gasoline determined by such distributor.

d. Each retailer shall display at the point of sale to ultimate purchasers of gasoline, the octane rating of such gasoline, in accordance with the posting requirements and label specifications to be prescribed by the commissioner by regulation. Such octane rating shall be consistent with:

(1) the octane rating of such gasoline certified to such retailer under paragraph two of subdivision b of this section or under subdivision c of this section;

(2) if such retailer elects, in accordance with the regulations of the federal trade commission, the octane rating of such gasoline determined by such retailer for such gasoline; or

(3) if such retailer is a refiner, the octane rating of such gasoline determined under paragraph one of subdivision b of this section.

e. No person who distributes gasoline may make any representation respecting the anti-knock characteristics of such gasoline unless such representation fairly discloses the octane rating of such gasoline consistent with such gasoline's octane rating as certified to, or determined by, such person under the foregoing subdivisions of this section.

f. For purposes of this section, the octane rating of any gasoline shall be considered to be certified, displayed or represented by any person consistent with the rating certified to, or determined by, such person:

(1) in the case of gasoline which consists of a blend of two or more quantities of gasoline of differing octane ratings, only if the rating certified, displayed or represented by such person is the average of the octane ratings of such quantities, weighted by volume; or

(2) in the case of gasoline which does not consist of such a blend, only if the octane rating such person certifies, displays or represents is the same as the octane rating of such gasoline certified to, or determined by, such person.

It shall be unlawful for any owner, manager, or supervisor of a retail store or any independently operated department within, to sell or offer or expose for sale, at retail any prepackaged unprocessed or untreated fresh or frozen meat unless at least one of the sides with the greatest surface area of the package is colorless and transparent, exclusive of labeling; which labeling shall not occupy more than ten percent of that side of the package, or six and one quarter (6.25) square inches, whichever is greater. This section shall be applicable solely in those cases where the packaging is performed on the premises of the sale. This section shall not apply to the sale of ground meat.

b. A sign shall be posted at the point of display of any prepackaged unprocessed or untreated fresh or frozen meat, the packaging of which is colorless and transparent on only one side in accordance with the provisions of subdivision a of this section, stating that the retailer shall accept the return of such prepackaged meat found to be unsatisfactory upon the request of a consumer who provides proof of purchase and further stating that the retailer shall either refund the full purchase price or provide a satisfactory replacement for such purchase. SUBCHAPTER 8 PERISHABLE FOODS

The council finds that consumers cannot be certain that food offered for sale is fresh or that it will remain fresh for a reasonable period of time after it is purchased. The council particularly recognizes consumer concern with the freshness of foods including, but not limited to, meat, poultry, fish, dairy products, eggs, fruit, vegetables and baked goods. The council further finds that the food industry's practice of controlling food freshness through coded dates has proven inadequate for protection of the public. The council has concluded that a mandatory system of clear and legible dating accompanied by a statement of recommended conditions of storage is the best way to assure consumers of the freshness of the foods that they buy in stores.

Mercury that has spilled and not been adequately cleaned up can have adverse effects on the inhabitants of buildings. As there are now viable alternatives to gauges that use mercury, and the risk of mercury contamination can be eliminated by banning its use for this purpose, the Council finds there is a compelling reason to ban the use of gauges that utilize mercury for gas pipe testing and to eliminate the use of such gauges for the testing of drainage and vent systems. Further, the Council finds that consistent with this ban on the use, is a ban on the sale, of gauges that utilize mercury for gas pipe testing and on the sale of replacement mercury for these gauges.

b. "Fish or wildlife" shall mean any member of the animal kingdom, including without limitation any mammal, fish, bird, amphibian, reptile, mollusk, crustacean, arthropod or other invertebrate, and includes any part, product, egg, or offspring thereof, or the dead body or parts thereof.

Section 1. Declaration of Legislative Findings and Intent. Illegal trade poses a major threat to endangered wildlife throughout the world and must be curtailed in order to ensure the continued survival of these species in the wild. Examples of illegal trade can be found in a variety of sectors, including the trades in exotic pets, fine furs and leathers, tourist curios, game meats, and traditional medicines. Despite numerous state, national, and international laws prohibiting or regulating much of this trade, the illegal wildlife trade thrives. To gauge one small sector of this trade, TRAFFIC North America, the wildlife trade monitoring program of World Wildlife Fund, conducted a market survey in New York City's Chinatown in the spring of 2003 to determine if, and how frequently, illegal or regulated wildlife products were being sold in traditional medicine shops. Of the 27 shops surveyed, 12 displayed medicines containing, or claiming to contain, tiger bone or rhino horn. In addition, all of the stores were found to be selling products containing bear bile, musk (derived from musk deer) and leopard bone. These are just a sampling of products made from threatened and endangered species that can be found for sale in a variety of shops not only in New York City's Chinatown, but throughout the city and in various other communities throughout the United States.

It is illegal under federal and state law to sell or offer to sell many of the products uncovered in TRAFFIC's 2003 survey. These products, however, often go unnoticed, as authorities do not have the time or resources to regularly scour the shelves of stores in New York City. When offenders are caught, it is often difficult to prosecute them-in many instances, in order to prove a case, law enforcement personnel must employ expensive and often inconclusive DNA testing in an effort to demonstrate that a given product contains or is a part of an endangered species. For these reasons, not only are endangered and threatened species sold in New York City, but they are also sold openly, often with packaging that advertises their contents.

The Council finds that the advertising of an illegal product, such as a product that contains an endangered or threatened species, flouts and undermines respect for the law and that the purveyors of such products should not be permitted to act with such impunity. The Council further finds that the necessity of proving that a product advertised as containing an endangered or threatened species actually contains such species strains law enforcement resources. The Council therefore finds it imperative that New York City impose additional penalties on the sale or purchase of products claiming to be or to contain ingredients derived from an endangered or threatened species.

. . . . . §3. This local law shall take effect 90 days after its enactment, except that the commissioner of consumer affairs shall take all actions necessary to implement this local law on or before the dates upon which the provisions of this local law shall take effect.

§ 20-699.1 Publication of endangered and threatened species list.

No later than April 1, 2005, and at least annually thereafter, the commissioner shall publish a list using the department's website for the purpose of ensuring compliance by merchants with the provisions of this subchapter. Such list shall include guidance regarding the identification of any fish or wildlife family, genus, species, subspecies or population designated by or pursuant to New York law as endangered or threatened and shall also separately specify whether all populations of any family or genus so identified are designated as endangered or threatened by or pursuant to New York law. Such list shall be published in English and Chinese.

Section 1. Declaration of Legislative Findings and Intent. Illegal trade poses a major threat to endangered wildlife throughout the world and must be curtailed in order to ensure the continued survival of these species in the wild. Examples of illegal trade can be found in a variety of sectors, including the trades in exotic pets, fine furs and leathers, tourist curios, game meats, and traditional medicines. Despite numerous state, national, and international laws prohibiting or regulating much of this trade, the illegal wildlife trade thrives. To gauge one small sector of this trade, TRAFFIC North America, the wildlife trade monitoring program of World Wildlife Fund, conducted a market survey in New York City's Chinatown in the spring of 2003 to determine if, and how frequently, illegal or regulated wildlife products were being sold in traditional medicine shops. Of the 27 shops surveyed, 12 displayed medicines containing, or claiming to contain, tiger bone or rhino horn. In addition, all of the stores were found to be selling products containing bear bile, musk (derived from musk deer) and leopard bone. These are just a sampling of products made from threatened and endangered species that can be found for sale in a variety of shops not only in New York City's Chinatown, but throughout the city and in various other communities throughout the United States.

It is illegal under federal and state law to sell or offer to sell many of the products uncovered in TRAFFIC's 2003 survey. These products, however, often go unnoticed, as authorities do not have the time or resources to regularly scour the shelves of stores in New York City. When offenders are caught, it is often difficult to prosecute them-in many instances, in order to prove a case, law enforcement personnel must employ expensive and often inconclusive DNA testing in an effort to demonstrate that a given product contains or is a part of an endangered species. For these reasons, not only are endangered and threatened species sold in New York City, but they are also sold openly, often with packaging that advertises their contents.

The Council finds that the advertising of an illegal product, such as a product that contains an endangered or threatened species, flouts and undermines respect for the law and that the purveyors of such products should not be permitted to act with such impunity. The Council further finds that the necessity of proving that a product advertised as containing an endangered or threatened species actually contains such species strains law enforcement resources. The Council therefore finds it imperative that New York City impose additional penalties on the sale or purchase of products claiming to be or to contain ingredients derived from an endangered or threatened species.

¶ 1. Evidence, consisting of testimony of two inspectors, held to sustain conviction of defendant for selling and delivering 17,675 pounds of coal on the representation that it weighed 20,000 pounds, as against contention of defendants that the figures 20,000 on the delivery ticket were changed to 17,000 before the coal left the yard (Admin. Code § B36-23.0).-People (Weisent) v. Mishkin, 170 Misc. 889, 11 N.Y.S. 2d 77 [1939], aff'd, 281 N.Y. 765, 24 N.E. 2d 22 [1939].

¶ 2. Complaint, alleging that defendants "did unlawfully sell and deliver" coal of less weight then represented, was sufficient to sustain a charge under Administrative Code § B36-23.0, without an allegation that defendants "knowingly" did so.-Id.

¶ 3. Language of Administrative Code § B36-23.0 is sufficient to cover an attempt to sell or deliver less than the represented weight, and consequently it was not necessary to prove that defendants actually delivered a quantity less than represented.-Id.

¶ 4. If the acts specified in Administrative Code § B36-23.0 are regarded as merely mala prohibita, intent or knowledge are not an element of proof.-Id.

¶ 5. Coal dealer which had hired a truck and driver from an independent truckman and had given the driver a ticket to purchase nine tons of coal at a certain yard for delivery at a certain address, held not liable for a violation of Administrative Code § B36-23.0 where the driver had delivered only eight tons at the address given so that he might convert the retained ton to his own use. The dealer had actually sold and started out to deliver nine tons of coal as ordered by the purchaser and therefor was not guilty of a violation of the first part of the statute. The second part of the statute, involving the person who knowingly delivers less than the quantity he represents he is selling or delivering, was applicable, but this required knowledge on the dealer's part of the delivery of a lesser amount than represented.-People v. J.T. Reynolds Corp., 178 Misc. 138, 33 N.Y.S. 2d 314 [1942], aff'd without opinion, 289 N.Y. 58, 43 N.E. 2d 830 [1942].

¶ 6. A defendant's guilt may be predicated upon either or both parts of Administrative Code § B36-23.0, depending upon the facts.-Id.

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-29.0, subd. b, requiring a license for operation of a vehicle for transportation of solid fuel, held not unconstitutional as an unlawful interference with interstate commerce, since the statute was intended to protect the public interest by preventing fraud and imposition upon coal consumers in the City of New York, by protecting honest coal dealers against unlawful competition arising from sale of stolen coal on a wholesale basis, and by aiding the police and the Department of Markets in detecting crime and cheating in the coal industry. Interstate commerce was only incidentally involved, there was no federal legislation covering the subject matter of the statute, and the presumptions favor the constitutionality of statutes.-People (Marquardt) v. Adduci, 176 Misc. 697, 28 N.Y.S. 2d 511 [1941], rev'd, 33 N.Y.S. 2d 873 [1942] on authority of People (Curry) v. Adduci, 178 Misc. 269, 33 N.Y.S. 2d 869 [1942].

¶ 2. Section B36-29.0, subd. b, was not unconstitutional as in violation of Vehicle and Traffic Law § 54 which prohibits a municipality from legislating on the same subject to the same end, since the statute was essentially an inspection law that did not forbid the operation on the public highways of trucks carrying coal, but merely prescribed an owner's plate for identification purposes to carry out the legitimate object of the statute.-Id.

¶ 3. Defendant who in his employment as a truck driver by a Long Island coal dealer made daily trips to truck coal from a mine in Pennsylvania through New York City to the Long Island yards of his employer, was not required to possess a coal truck license by Administrative Code § B36-29.0 (b), since chapter 36 provides merely for the licensing of local coal dealers operating in and within the City, and for the identifying, by means of the certificate of origin, of those engaged in transporting coal from outside the state, either for sale or delivery within the state, or transporting coal through the City for sale and delivery outside the City.-People (Curry) v. Adduci, 178 Misc. 269, 33 N.Y.S. 2d 869 [1942].

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION 20-622

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-33.0, requiring the weight and poundage of the contents of the vehicle to be imprinted on the side of the truck, held inapplicable to dealer who was transporting a truckload of anthracite from Pennsylvania to his own yard in the City, inasmuch as such transaction should be considered the same as a cargo delivery, which is excepted from such requirement under Administrative Code § B36-42.0.-Marquardt v. Castoro, 68 N.Y.S. 2d 327 [1947].

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-34.0, providing that all types of solid fuel, "other than coke, soft coal, anthracite, buckwheat, rice, barley, or dust," must be sold or delivered in quantities of one ton or multiples thereof, and imposing certain other regulations, held not to exclude all types of anthracite, since clearly insertion of comma after word "anthracite" was a palpable error, inasmuch as the comma did not appear in the Code of ordinances provision which had otherwise been adopted without change. Administrative Code § 982-1.0, expressed the legislative intent not to change the law in substance, and if the comma were given effect it would defeat the intent of the legislature to adopt the Code of ordinances, provision unchanged.-People (Lifton) v. Capital Fuels of Queens, Inc., 170 Misc. 763, 11 N.Y.S. 2d 22 [1939], aff'g, 168 Misc. 912, 6 N.Y.S. 2d 243 [1938], aff'd without opinion, 281 N.Y. 728, 23 N.E. 2d 547 [1939].

¶ 2. Administrative Code § B36-34.0, regulating the sale of solid fuel and imposing such requirements as sale by weight, weighing by licensed weighmaster, vendors' permits, transportation in licensed vehicles, and sale in multiples of one ton, held not unconstitutional as an arbitrary interference with rights of citizens, since it constituted a carefully worked out plan to protect the public and promote the general welfare by guarding the householder against fraud or mistake in an essential commodity.-Id.

¶ 3. Such statute was not unconstitutional on ground it was discriminatory because it exempted the County of Richmond from its application, inasmuch as the exempted area comprised an entire county somewhat remotely separated from the other four boroughs, less densely populated, and presumably not as yet in need of the regulations.-Id.

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-37.0, subd. c, requiring each fuel delivery ticket to be issued in triplicate and serially numbered in each yard or branch and used only in consecutive order, is carefully drawn and designed to prevent fraud and should be sustained unless the hardship is out of proportion to the public welfare sought to be conserved.-People (Spencer) v. Capital Fuels of Queens, Inc., 170 Misc. 769, 11 N.Y.S. 2d 26 [1939].

¶ 2. Prosecution of retail coal dealer for violation of § B36-37.0, subd. c, requiring delivery tickets to be numbered serially and used in consecutive order, was properly instituted in Kings County where the coal was delivered therein, even though the delivery tickets were made out in Queens County.-Id.

¶ 3. Coal dealer which used at the same yard two machines for issuing delivery tickets and on the day in question had issued one ticket bearing number A1652 and another ticket from the other machine bearing number A4521 for delivery of two quantities of coal to the same address, held to have violated Administrative Code § B36-37.0, subd. c, requiring delivery tickets to be serially numbered in each yard and to be used only in consecutive order, and it was immaterial that the tickets were issued serially as applied to each machine, or that the use of two or more machines in a single yard was more convenient.-Id.

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-38.0, requiring that each load of solid fuel transported must be accompanied by delivery tickets, held inapplicable to a dealer who was transporting a truckload of coal from Pennsylvania to his own yard in the City and was not making a delivery to a consumer.-Marquardt v. Castoro, 68 N.Y.S. 2d 327 [1947].

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION 20-645

¶ 1. On conviction of defendants for violation of Administrative Code § B36-23.0, court was justified in imposing a more severe sentence upon the defendant who was a licensed weighmaster.-People (Weisent) v. Mishkin, 170 Misc.

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-59.0, requiring a certificate of origin with respect to anthracite coal brought into the City by motor vehicle from outside the State, excepting, however, the anthracite sold and delivered in the City from places located outside the City and State but within a five-mile area immediately adjoining, held unconstitutional, as discriminatory because it applied only to the transportation of coal into the City by motor vehicle and not to the bringing in of coal by boat, railroad or other conveyance, because it permitted the bringing in of coal from yards within five miles from the City, and because, under Administrative Code § B36-42.0, purchasers of an entire load might accept the weight on a bill of loading where the truck carried a sign marked "cargo" without the necessity of a certificate of origin. In the instant case the defendant was transporting coal from Pennsylvania to his own yard for his own purposes and was not delivering or selling it to a consumer.-Marquardt v. Castoro, 68 N.Y.S. 2d 327 [1947].

¶ 2. Administrative Code § B36-59.0, requiring a certificate of origin with respect to anthracite coal brought into the City by motor vehicle from outside the state, excepting, however, anthracite sold and delivered in the City from places located outside the City and state but within a five-mile area immediately adjoining the City boundary, held unconstitutional as being discriminatory and class legislation, since the ordinance applied only to anthracite coal, and only to anthracite transported by motor truck, and moreover excepted a five-mile area, which exception was capricious, arbitrary and discriminatory.-People v. Marcello, 25 N.Y.S. 2d 533 [1941].

¶ 3. Administrative Code § B36-59.0, also violated the Commerce Clause of the Federal Constitution, inasmuch as a person engaged in interstate commerce was required to expend additional moneys for mere privilege of doing interstate business. The ordinance might not be sustained on theory it was an inspection law, as the ordinance was not enacted to prevent the spread of disease, and furthermore required inspection of anthracite coal only.-Id.

¶ 4. Administrative Code § B36-61.0, providing for issuance of certificates of origin upon proof satisfactory to the Commissioner of Weights and Measures that the anthracite produced by such person was not stolen and had been legally acquired at its source, states in its practical effect, that all anthracite coal brought into the City from without the state by motor truck has been stolen, unless the driver of the truck can prove otherwise by displaying to the inspector a satisfactory certificate of origin, and thus violates the elementary principle that a person is presumed to be innocent until proved guilty, and moreover substitutes the discretion or fancy of the Commissioner for a trial by the court.-Id.

¶ 5. Section B36-59.0 violates Vehicle and Traffic Law § 10, which make the Vehicle and Traffic Law exclusively controlling as to the use of motor vehicles on the public highways, and § 54, which forbids local authorities from requiring permits or fees for use of public highways.-Id.

¶ 6. Even if, as claimed, five per cent of the total anthracite output of the State of Pennsylvania were stolen and bootlegged into New York State, the court would not be inclined to feel that the amount involved was sufficient to cause enactment of legislation of such a drastic nature as that involved in § B36-59.0.-Id.

¶ 7. In view of holding in People v. Marcello, 25 N.Y.S. 2d 533, that Administrative Code § B36-59.0 is unconstitutional as discriminatory, and the statement of the Director of the Bureau of Weights and Measures of the Department of Markets that he would nevertheless enforce the law so long as it remained on the books, plaintiff, who was the employer of the defendant in People v. Marcello, was granted a temporary order restraining the City authorities from enforcing the statute as against it provided an undertaking of $500 was furnished and proceedings were immediately brought for a final determination of the action presently before the court.-Castoro v. Schultz, 116 (78) N.Y.L.J. (10-11-46) 853, Col. 6 T.

CASE NOTES FROM FORMER SECTION 20-654

¶ 1. Administrative Code § B36-65.0, requiring drivers of motor vehicles bringing anthracite into the City from outside the State to have the anthracite weighed at the nearest available official scales upon entering the City, held inapplicable to a dealer who was transporting a truckload of anthracite in a motor vehicle from Pennsylvania for delivery to his own yard in the City.-Marquardt v. Castoro, 68 N.Y.S. 2d 327 [1947].

¶ 2. Where § B36-65.0 of the Administrative Code was complied with and there was no evidence of an attempted sale of coal defendant was hauling through New York City and coal was allegedly in transit from Pennsylvania to Long Island, judgment convicting defendant of violation of § B36-29 was reversed.-People (Curry) v. Cedducci, 178 Misc. 269, 33 N.Y.S. 2d 873 [1942], rev'g, 176 Misc. 697, 28 N.Y.S. 2d 511 [1941].

¶ 1. Revocation of the corporate petitioner's license as a solid fuel dealer, held void for failure to accord petitioner a fair and proper hearing, and because it was not held by the Commissioner of Markets or his deputy, but without authority was held by the Director of the Bureau of Weights and Measures who had conducted the pre-investigation and had prejudged the case, taking into serious consideration the testimony and evidence of an enemy of petitioner which he had collected prior to the hearing, in the absence of petitioner and without its knowledge and without it ever having had the right of confrontation or cross-examination.-New York Southern Coal Terminal Corp. v. Woolley, 35 N.Y.S. 2d 443 [1942].

CASE NOTES

¶ 1. Defendant, an attorney, was properly enjoined from continuing advertisements in various newspapers which stated "Divorce, low fee, possible 10 days, Green Card" finding that a showing had been made that the advertisement was deceptive within the NY City Consumer Protection Law (See Ad Code § 20-700 et seq). ¶ 2. An employer fee paid employment agency may not be compelled to disclose in classified ads their names or that they are employment agencies. This is covered by State law not the Consumer Protection Law, §20-700 et seq. Consultants Assn. v. Green, 153 Misc. 2d 156 [1992].

¶ 3. The offering of rental housing is a legitimate area of interest for consumer protection against deceptive advertising and misrepresentation. A residential lease is a purchase of services from the landlord. An apartment dweller is viewed as a consumer of housing services. ¶ 4. The fact that the legislature has delegated to the Appellate Division the authority to regulate the conduct of attorneys does not preclude the City from proscribing deceptive advertising by attorneys. Aponte v. Raychuk, 160 A.D.2d 636, 559 N.Y.S.2d 255 (1st Dept. 1990).

¶ 5. CHAPTER 5 UNFAIR TRADE PRACTICES

SUBCHAPTER 1 CONSUMER PROTECTION LAW

a. Deceptive trade practice. Any false, falsely disparaging, or misleading oral or written statement, visual description or other representation of any kind made in connection with the sale, lease, rental or loan or in connection with the offering for sale, lease, rental, or loan of consumer goods or services, or in the extension of consumer credit or in the collection of consumer debts, which has the capacity, tendency or effect of deceiving or misleading consumers. Deceptive trade practices include but are not limited to: (1) representations that goods or services have sponsorship, approval, accessories, characteristics, ingredients, uses, benefits, or quantities that they do not have; the supplier has a sponsorship, approval, status, affiliation, or connection that he or she does not have; goods are original or new if they are deteriorated, altered, reconditioned, reclaimed, or secondhand; or, goods or services are of a particular standard, quality, grade, style or model, if they are of another; (2) the use, in any oral or written representation, of exaggeration, innuendo or ambiguity as to a material fact or failure to state a material fact if such use deceives or tends to deceive; (3) disparaging the goods, services, or business of another by false or misleading representations of material facts; (4) offering goods or services with intent not to sell them as offered; (5) offering goods or services with intent not to supply reasonable expectable public demand, unless the offer discloses to limitation of quantity; and (6) making false or misleading representations of fact concerning the reasons for, existence of, or amounts of price reductions, or price in comparison to prices of competitors or one's own price at a past or future time; (7) stating that a consumer transaction involves consumer rights, remedies or obligations that it does not involve; (8) stating that services, replacements or repairs are needed if they are not; and (9) falsely stating the reasons for offering or supplying goods or services at scale

b. Unconscionable trade practice. Any act or practice in connection with the sale, lease, rental or loan or in connection with the offering for sale, lease, rental or loan of any consumer goods or services, or in the extension of consumer credit, or in the collection of consumer debts which unfairly takes advantage of the lack of knowledge, ability, experience or capacity of a consumer; or results in a gross disparity between the value received by a consumer and the price paid, to the consumer's detriment; provided that no act or practice shall be deemed unconscionable under this subchapter unless declared unconscionable and described with reasonable particularity in a local law, or in a rule or regulation promulgated by the commissioner. In promulgating such rules and regulations the commissioner shall consider among other factors: (1) knowledge by merchants engaging in the act or practice of the inability of consumers to receive properly anticipated benefits from the goods or services involved; (2) gross disparity between the price of goods or services and their value measured by the price at which similar goods or services are readily obtained by other consumers; (3) the fact that the acts or practices may enable merchants to take advantage of the inability of consumers reasonably to protect their interests by reason of physical or mental infirmities, illiteracy or inability to understand the language of the agreement, ignorance or lack of education, or similar factors; (4) the degree to which terms of the transaction require consumers to waive legal rights; (5) the degree to which terms of the transaction require consumers to jeopardize money or property beyond the money or property immediately at issue in the transaction; and (6) definitions of unconscionability in statutes, regulations, rulings and decisions of legislative, or judicial bodies in this state or elsewhere.

c. Consumer goods, services, credit and debts. As used in section 20-700 of this subchapter and subdivisions a and b of this section, goods, services, credit and debts which are primarily for personal, household or family purposes.

d. Consumer. A purchaser or lessee or prospective purchaser or lessee of the consumer goods or services or consumer credit, including a co-obligor or surety.

e. Merchant. A seller, lessor, or creditor or any other person who makes available either directly or indirectly, goods, services or credit, to consumers. "Merchant" shall include manufacturers, wholesalers and others who are responsible for any act or practice prohibited by this subchapter.

a. The violation of any provision of this subchapter or of any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder, shall be punishable upon proof thereof, by the payment of a civil penalty in the sum of fifty dollars to three hundred and fifty dollars, to be recovered in a civil action.

b. The knowing violation of any provision of this subchapter or of any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder, shall be punishable upon conviction thereof, by the payment of a civil penalty in the sum of five hundred dollars, or as a violation for which a fine in the sum of five hundred dollars shall be imposed, or both.

c. Upon a finding by the commissioner of repeated, multiple or persistent violation of any provision of this subchapter or of any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder, the city may, except as hereinafter provided, bring an action to compel the defendant or defendants in such action to pay in court all monies, property or other things, or proceeds thereof, received as a result of such violations; to direct that the amount of money or the property or other things recovered be paid into an account established pursuant to section two thousand six hundred one of the civil practice law and rules from which shall be paid over to any and all persons who purchased the goods or services during the period of violation such sum as was paid by them in a transaction involving the prohibited acts or practices, plus any costs incurred by such claimants in making and pursuing their complaints; provided that if such claims exceed the sum recovered into the account, the awards to consumers shall be prorated according to the value of each claim proved; to direct the defendant or defendants, upon conviction, to pay to the city the costs, and disbursements of the action and pay to the city for the use of the commissioner the costs of his or her investigation leading to the judgment; or if not recovered from defendants, such costs are to be deducted by the city from the grand recovery before distribution to the consumers; and to direct that any money, property, or other things in the account and unclaimed by any persons with such claims within one year from creation of the account, be paid to the city, to be used by the commissioner for further consumer law enforcement activities. Consumers making claims against an account established pursuant to this subdivision shall prove their claims to the commissioner in a manner and subject to procedures established by the commissioner for that purpose. The procedures established in each case for proving claims shall not be employed until approved by the court, which shall also establish by order the minimum means by which the commissioner shall notify potential claimants of the creation of the account. Restitution pursuant to a judgment in an action under this subdivision shall bar, pro tanto, the recovery of any damages in any other action against the same defendant or defendants on account of the same acts or practices which were the basis for such judgment, up to the time of the judgment, by any person to whom such restitution is made. Restitution under this subdivision shall not apply to transactions entered into more than five years prior to commencement of an action by the commissioner. Before instituting an action under this subdivision, the commissioner shall give the prospective defendant written notice of the possible action, and an opportunity to demonstrate in writing within five days, that no repeated, multiple, or persistent violations have occurred.

d. Whenever any person has engaged in any acts or practices which constitute violations of any provision of this subchapter or of any rule or regulation promulgated thereunder, the city may make application to the supreme court for an order enjoining such acts or practices and for an order granting a temporary or permanent injunction, restraining order, or other order enjoining such acts or practices.

e. To establish a cause of action under this section it need not be shown that consumers are being or were actually injured.

¶ 1. Preliminary injunction restraining defendants who sold vacuum cleaners through door-to-door salesmen from visiting prospective customers homes without disclosing at the outset that they were selling vacuum cleaners denied where it was not established that injury results from such practice. Grant v. Compact Electra Corp., 165 (60) N.Y.L.J. (3-30-71) 18, Col. 6 F.

¶ 2. Temporary injunction prohibiting defendants, charged with an unlawful scheme aimed at forcing customers to pay high television repair bills for work which has not been performed, from engaging in certain business activities was denied where defendants denied these allegations and thereby created issues of fact to be resolved at trial even though defendants admitted to false advertising in the telephone directory. Meyerson v. Phillips Television, Inc., 165 (92) N.Y.L.J. (5-13-71) 2, Col. 6 T.

¶ 3. Action for a permanent injunction to enjoin unfair and deceptive trade practices could not be dismissed on ground that complaint was defective for failure to allege that there was no adequate remedy at law since the law provides several remedies for violation of its provisions without making any one exclusive and such an allegation would frustrate the purpose of the statute which permits the plaintiff to choose an appropriate remedy.-Id.

¶ 1. Advertising by attorneys is subject to restraint per § 20-703 restricting false or misleading advertisements by including attorney services within the meaning of trade practices the department of consumer affairs may regulate. Injunction issued regarding the attorney's ability to secure a divorce within 10 days. Aponte v. Raychuk, 140 Misc. 2d 864 [1988].

¶ 2. A used car salesman was fined on two occasions for deceptive advertising including failure to disclose license number, unauthorized "construction sale", nondisclosure of limitations in financing and use of undersized type. A sweeping reduction in civil penalties, essentially treating all of the separate violations charged on each occasion as a single offense, was error. Respondent could lawfully impose a fine of up to $500 for each of 15 violations in the second case. To deny respondent authority to penalize each specification individually would tend to trivialize a violation to the level of an acceptable cost of doing business. Van Cortlandt Park Dodge, Inc. v. Consumer Affs. Dep't, 178 AD2d 234, 577 N.Y.S.2d 274 (1st Dept. 1991).

a. In lieu of instituting or continuing an action pursuant to this subchapter, the commissioner may accept written assurance of discontinuance of any act or practice in violation of this subchapter from the person or persons who have engaged in such acts or practices. Such assurance may include a stipulation for voluntary payment by the violator of the costs of investigation by the commissioner and may also include a stipulation for the restitution by the violator to consumers, of money, property or other things received from them in connection with a violation of this subchapter, including money necessarily expended in the course of making and pursuing a complaint to the commissioner. All settlements shall be made a matter of public record. If such stipulation applies to consumers who have been affected by the violator's practices but have not yet complained to the commissioner, the assurance must be approved by the court, which shall direct the minimum means by which potential claimants shall be notified of the stipulation. A consumer need not accept restitution pursuant to such a stipulation; his or her acceptance shall bar recovery of any other damages in any action by him or her against the defendant or defendants on account of the same acts or practices.

b. Violation of an assurance entered into pursuant to this section shall be treated as a violation of this subchapter and shall be subject to all the penalties provided therefor.

For the purposes of this subchapter, drugs, medicines and cosmetics shall not be considered consumer commodities.

(b) "Price per measure" shall be defined as the retail price of a consumer commodity expressed in terms of the retail price of such commodity per such unit of weight, standard measure or standard number of units as the commissioner shall designate by regulation.

SUBCHAPTER 2 TRUTH-IN-PRICING LAW

§ 20-708.1 Item pricing.

a. Definitions. The following terms shall have the following meanings for the purpose of this section:

1. "Stock keeping unit", known in the industry as "SKU", shall mean each group of items offered for sale of the same brand name, quantity of contents, retail price, and variety within the following categories:

(a) Food, including all material, solid, liquid or mixed, whether simple or compound, used or intended for consumption by human beings or domestic animals normally kept as household pets and all substances or ingredients to be added thereto for any purpose;

(b) Napkins, facial tissues, toilet tissues, paper towelling and any disposable wrapping or container for the storage, handling, serving, or disposal of food;

(c) Detergents, soaps and other cleansing agents; and

(d) Non-prescription drugs, feminine hygiene products and health and beauty aids.

2. "Stock keeping item" shall mean each individual item of a stock keeping unit offered for sale. This shall include two or more pieces packaged for sale together.

3. "Retail store" shall mean a store engaged in selling stock keeping units at retail. A store which is not open to the general public but is reserved for use by its members shall come within the provisions of this definition unless the members must pay a direct fee to the store to qualify for membership and the store is not required to collect sales tax on transactions with members. A retail store shall not include any store which:

(a) Has as its only full-time employee the owner thereof, or the parent, spouse, domestic partner or child of the owner, and in addition thereto not more than two full-time employees; or

(b) Had annual gross sales of stock keeping items in the previous calendar year of less than two million dollars, unless the retail store is part of a network of subsidiaries, affiliates or other member stores, under direct or indirect common control, which, as a group, had annual gross sales of stock keeping items in the previous calendar year of two million dollars or more; or

(c) Engages primarily in the sale of food for consumption on the premises or in a specialty trade which the commissioner determines, by rule, would be inappropriate for item pricing.

4. "Item price" shall mean the tag, stamp or mark affixed to a stock keeping item which sets forth, in arabic numerals, the retail price thereof.

5. "Advertised price" shall mean the price of a stock keeping unit which a retail store has caused to be disseminated by means of promotional methods such as an in-store sign, or newspaper, circular, television or radio advertising.

6. "Shelf price" shall mean the tag or sign placed at each point of display of a stock keeping unit, which clearly sets forth the retail price of the stock keeping items within that stock keeping unit.

7. "Computer-assisted checkout system" shall mean any electronic device, computer system or machine which indicates the selling price of a stock keeping item by interpreting its universal product code, or an in-house product code, or by use of its price look-up function.

8. "Price look-up function" shall mean the capability of any checkout system to determine the retail price of a stock keeping item by way of the manual entry into the system of a code number assigned to that particular stock keeping unit by the retail store or by way of the checkout operator's consultation of a file maintained at the point of sale.

9. "Inspector" shall mean the commissioner or his or her designee.

b. Item pricing required. Except as provided in subdivision c of this section, every person, firm, partnership, corporation or association which sells, offers for sale or exposes for sale in a retail store, a stock keeping unit, shall disclose to the consumer the item price of each stock keeping item, by causing the item price to be conspicuously, clearly and plainly marked, stamped, tagged or affixed thereto.

c. Certain items exempted. The following stock keeping items need not be item priced as provided in subdivision b of this section provided that a shelf price and a price look-up function are maintained for such stock keeping items:

1. Milk.

2. Stock keeping items which are under three cubic inches in size, and weigh less than three ounces, and are priced under one dollar.

3. Eggs.

4. Fresh produce not packaged for final retail sale.

5. Products sold through a vending machine.

6. Food sold for consumption on the premises.

7. Snack foods such as cakes, gum, candies, chips and nuts offered for sale in single packages and weighing five ounces or less.

8. Cigarettes, cigars, tobacco and tobacco products.

9. Food offered for sale in bulk.

10. Frozen juice.

11. Ice cream.

12. Frozen foods packaged for final retail sale in plastic bags.

13. Stock keeping items on sale for one week or less, where such stock keeping items are not otherwise item priced, are located in a segregated display at the end of an aisle, and the sale period, the name of the product and the advertised price are clearly and conspicuously posted on a sign at the point of display. Failure to display this information shall be deemed a deceptive practice under section 20-701 of this code.

14. Baby food packaged in jars.

d. Scanner accuracy. In a retail store with a laser scanning or other computer-assisted checkout system, an inspector shall be permitted to compare the disclosed retail price of any one stock keeping item within any stock keeping unit sold in the retail store, whether or not exempt under subdivision c of this section, not to exceed five hundred stock keeping items at any one inspection, with the programmed computer price. The retail store shall provide such access to the computer as is necessary for the inspector to make the determination. The inspector shall also make note of undercharges on the inspection report. In the event that the programmed computer price exceeds the lowest price a retail store is permitted to charge for a stock keeping item under subdivision e of this section, this shall be deemed a deceptive practice under section 20-701 of this code.

e. Price accuracy. No retail store shall charge a retail price for any stock keeping item, whether or not exempt under subdivision c of this section, which exceeds the lower of any item, shelf, sale or advertised price of such stock keeping item.

f. Enforcement, penalties. 1. Upon the request of an inspector, the retail store representatives shall afford the inspector access to the test mode of the checkout system in use at that retail store or to a comparable function of such system and to the retail price information contained in a price look-up function. No more than one inspection shall be conducted in any twenty-four hour period.

2. In addition to the enforcement powers prescribed in sections 20-703 and 20-704 of this code, the commissioner may, upon due notice, hold hearings to determine whether violations of the provisions of this section have occurred. Such notice shall contain a concise statement of the facts constituting the alleged violation and shall set forth the date, time and place of the hearing. Upon a finding of a violation of the provisions of this section, the commissioner shall be authorized to impose a civil penalty as follows:

(a) upon a first inspection, up to twenty-five dollars for the first twenty violations and up to fifty dollars for the twenty-first and successive violations, total violations not to exceed two thousand dollars.

(b) upon a second or subsequent inspection within a two week period, up to fifty dollars for the first twenty continued violations, and up to one hundred dollars for the twenty-first and successive continued violations, total violations issued not to exceed eight thousand dollars.

3. Each failure to comply with subdivision b of this section with respect to any one stock keeping unit shall constitute a separate violation, provided, however, that no violation shall be found where less than five stock keeping items of a particular stock keeping unit lack clearly readable item prices. Following an initial inspection, each inspection that finds a continuing violation with respect to a particular stock keeping unit cited within the previous fourteen days shall constitute a separate continued violation.

g. Rules. The commissioner may promulgate such rules as he or she may deem necessary or appropriate to effectuate the purposes of this section.

Subd. f par 2 amended L.L. 70/2005 § 1, eff. Sept. 18, 2005, provided that the commissioner may take any actions necessary prior to such effective date for the implementation of this local law including, but not limited to, the adoption of any necessary rules.

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The Council finds that the failure of the state legislature to extend the state item pricing law has left consumers without assurance that they will be able to easily ascertain prices of basic consumer necessities such as groceries, paper good, detergents, and health and beauty aids. Item pricing is uniquely useful in comparison shopping within a store, in keeping track of the total cost of items being purchased, and in discovering erroneous charges at the cash register. The Council finds, therefore, that the city's law concerning truth in pricing must be amended to add a new section on item pricing.

SUBCHAPTER 4 INFORMATION WITH RESPECT TO ROOM AIR CONDITIONERS*108

§ 20-716 Legislative findings.

The council hereby finds that the demand for electricity in the city has been steadily growing; that the supply of electricity has on frequent occasions been inadequate fully to meet the demand therefor; that the distribution system of the public utility company serving most of the city has frequently been disrupted by heavy loads; that major brownouts and blackouts in various sections of the city have frequently resulted from such conditions, particularly in the summer; that there is no present basis for concluding that such conditions will not continue for the foreseeable future; that fifty percent of the annual summer growth in demand for electricity in the city is due to air conditioning, that forty percent of the peak summer demand for electricity in the city is attributable to air conditioning; that room air conditioners use a significant part of the electricity used for air conditioning in the city; that the amount of electricity used by room air conditioners of comparable cooling capacity varies widely; that most sellers of room air conditioners do not presently advertise, display or otherwise provide prospective purchasers information as to the amount or cost of electricity required to operate the various models of room air conditioners; that such information, if provided, would lead consumers to purchase more efficient models; that the growth in demand for electricity in the city, particularly in summer months, would thereby be slowed and there would be an amelioration of some of the conditions which lead to brownouts and blackouts.

The council also finds that an adequate supply of electricity is vital to the health, safety and welfare of all persons in the city.

Accordingly, the council further finds that, in order to conserve electricity, there is a need to provide prospective purchasers of room air conditioners with information with respect to the efficiency and cost of operation of such units.

(2) "Approved credit counselor" shall mean a credit counselor listed in the directory of authorized nonprofit budget and credit counseling service providers promulgated pursuant to the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005.

ii. that to be approved by the United States Trustee and added to the directory of approved credit counselors, a credit counselor must satisfactorily demonstrate compliance with the requirements of the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005;

iii. that such credit counselor is not approved to offer bankruptcy counseling services pursuant to the Bankruptcy Abuse Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005;

Section added L.L. 34/2006 § 2, eff. Dec. 21, 2006. [See Note 1]

1. Provisions of L.L. 34/2006:

Section 1. Of increasing regularity, indebted city residents have been the victims of a fraudulent scheme presented under the guise of financial assistance. Under this unscrupulous plan, numerous dishonest lenders have begun offering "credit counseling" services. However, instead of devising a realistic management plan to reduce debt, these businesses frequently take advantage of their customers' dire financial situations. Often, the counselor will recommend that the consumer borrow funds to satisfy outstanding balances and consolidate payments. The counseling agency will then arrange such loan against the consumer's assets, often a real estate interest.

However, many victims of this scam report that the loan interest rates are so high that they are regularly in a worse fiscal position than before they sought counseling. Ultimately, the business that advertised its ability to help these consumers owns an interest in their customer's property and earns exorbitant interest on the funds loaned. When the consumer is unable to meet his or her monthly obligation, the lender may simply foreclose and sell the real estate.

Section 106 of the newly enacted Bankruptcy Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 prohibits an individual from filing for personal bankruptcy protection unless such person has received credit counseling from an approved nonprofit budget and credit counseling service prior to filing a bankruptcy petition. The U.S. Trustee may waive this requirement only if an applicant can establish that the district in which he or she resides does not provide adequate services.

Chapter 1 of the Bankruptcy and Consumer Protection Act of 2005 specifies the requirements that a services provider must satisfy to obtain federal approval, including, but not limited to, staffing, organizational structure and counseling topic areas. Determinations must be reviewed annually and approval may be revoked at any time. Further, the Chief Bankruptcy Clerk must maintain a list, available to the public, of all approved credit counselors. Presently, there are thirteen counselors approved for residents of the Southern District of New York State, which includes the city of New York, and fourteen for residents of the Eastern District.

To thwart unscrupulous lenders from taking advantage of consumers in financial crisis, and to ensure that each New Yorker receives the best counseling possible, the Council finds it necessary to require businesses that offer credit counseling services to inform individuals that the business, if not approved, has not been certified pursuant to the Bankruptcy Prevention and Consumer Protection Act of 2005.

§ 3. This local law shall take effect one hundred twenty days after it shall have been enacted into law [Dec. 21, 2006]; provided, however, that the commissioner shall take any actions necessary prior to such effective date for the implementation of this local law including, but not limited to, establishing guidelines and promulgating rules.

SUBCHAPTER 8 INCOME TAX PREPARERS*109

a. No later than the fifteenth of October of each year, the department shall produce and publish in the city record a one page informational flier regarding consumers' rights and laws concerning tax preparers to be called a "consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers". The flier shall be in a form which is easily reproducible by photocopy machine and shall contain information including, but not limited to, the following:

1. Postings required by local, state and federal laws, such as price posting, posting of qualifications, and any licenses and permits required for the operation of the business; and

2. Explanations of some of the commonly offered services and industry jargon, such as preparation of short and long federal forms, refund, electronic filing, express mail, direct deposit, refund anticipation loan, "quick," "instant," "rapid," "fast," fee, and interest; and

3. Basic information on what a tax preparer is and is not required to do for a consumer, such as the preparer's responsibility to sign a return, that a tax preparer may not be required to accompany a consumer to an audit but the company may have a voluntary policy to accompany consumers to audits; and

4. The telephone numbers of the department for information and complaints; and

5. A statement that the consumer has the right to receive the following information from the tax preparer prior to becoming obligated to compensate such tax preparer for services rendered in connection with filing such consumer's income tax return with the appropriate governmental agencies: (a) A written list of the refund and tax preparation services offered by the tax preparer;

(b) A written estimate of the total costs to the consumer for each refund and tax preparation service offered by the tax preparer. Such an estimate shall include basic filing fees, interest rates, refund anticipation loan processing fees, and any other related fees or charges;

(c) A written interest rate estimation for a refund anticipation loan or any other loan services offered by the tax preparer; and

(d) For each refund and tax preparation service offered by the tax preparer, a written estimate of the period of time the consumer can reasonably expect to wait for his or her tax refund.

b. The department shall publicize the availability of the flier. The department shall provide a copy of the consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers to any requesting individuals or businesses within fourteen days of such a request and shall, no later than November 1 of each year, send the consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers to each tax preparer who has been found to be in violation of this subchapter or any other provision of this chapter within the previous calendar year. In addition, each tax preparer subject to this subchapter shall obtain a current consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers from the department and shall reproduce it so that it is clear and legible. As of January 1 of each year, each such tax preparer shall give to each consumer, free of charge, a current, legible copy of the consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers prior to any discussion with the consumer. Each such tax preparer shall also verbally direct the consumer to review the consumer bill of rights regarding tax preparers and shall answer any questions the consumer may have about its contents.

1. Provisions of 41/1991 § 1:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. Over the past two years, oversight of tax preparers has revealed a number of problems for consumers. Not all of these problems are capable of resolution by specific legislation, which might, as well, unnecessarily burden the industry. Therefore, the Council finds that it is important to provide consumers as much information as possible about how to protect their rights when patronizing tax preparers.

2. Provisions in City Record Nov. 1, 2004:

CONSUMER BILL OF RIGHTS REGARDING

TAX PREPARERS

The tax preparer is required by law to give each customer a free, current, and legible copy of this "Consumer Bill of Rights Regarding Tax Preparers" before any discussions with a consumer.

If You Are Hiring A Tax Preparer, You Have a Right to Know:

o The individual tax preparer's qualifications. A notice of a tax preparer's qualifications must be posted in the office, and a preparer must maintain records showing the qualifications are real, including whether the preparer is an accountant or an attorney.

o How fees are calculated, including minimum charges and any additional charges. You must be given a receipt which states the charges for each tax return. The receipt must list the address and phone number where the tax preparer may be contacted during the year.

o Whether or not the tax preparer will represent the taxpayer at a government audit. Failure to make this disclosure shall mean that the tax preparer agrees to represent the tax payer or to provide representation.

Information about Refund Anticipation Loans (RALs)

o A Refund Anticipation Loan (RAL) is not a tax refund, but is in fact a high-interest loan against an anticipated tax refund.

o Any advertisement for an RAL must conspicuously identify it as a loan and that a fee or interest will be charged by the lender, and it must identify the lender.

o Before entering into a RAL, a tax preparer must disclose in writing in English and Spanish:

o - that a taxpayer is not required to take out a RAL;

o - the gross amount of the refund a consumer is eligible to receive without taking out a RAL;

o - the fees to be paid for taking out such a loan;

o - the approximate loan amount the tax payer will receive;

o - the estimated annual percentage rate to be paid for the loan based on the amount of time the loan will be outstanding;

o - the approximate date by which a tax payer who takes out a loan can expect to receive the loan amount or the approximate date by which a taxpayer who does not take out a RAL can expect to receive his or her tax refund.

o If a tax payer does not understand English or Spanish, a tax preparer must orally explain the information about a RAL in a language the tax payer understands.

o Earned Income Tax Credit ("EITC") eligible consumers and other taxpayers entitled to tax refunds should ask tax preparers about electronic and other filing options that will speed up payment of refunds without the high cost of using RALs.

You are also entitled to:

o Receive all personal papers upon request, when the original tax return is given to the taxpayer for filing (unless the tax preparer is specifically permitted to retain such papers under state law).

o Receive a copy of every tax return prepared, at the time the original is given to the taxpayer for filing.

o Have the tax preparer sign every tax return.

A Tax Preparer Cannot:

o Ask a taxpayer to sign a blank or incomplete tax return.

- Misrepresent his or her qualifications.

- Reveal any information appearing on, or related to, a tax return to any person or business other than the taxpayer, or his or her authorized designee.

- Induce or attempt to induce a taxpayer to violate any governmental law, rule or regulation.

- Use the word "accountant" in any advertisement unless at least one Certified Public Accountant or Public Accountant is present at each tax preparation location during all business hours, and controls all tax returns prepared at the location.

- Use any term describing a specialty or expertise in an advertisement, unless the tax preparer's relevant education or experience is also disclosed in the advertisement.

- Change a tax return after it has been signed by the taxpayer, without the taxpayer's written consent.

- Charge a fee based upon the amount of tax owed or refund due.

- Guarantee a tax refund, or guarantee that the taxpayer will not be audited by any government tax agency.

- Request a taxpayer to assign to the preparer any portion of the refund due.

- Use the tax preparer's addresses on a tax return as the place to which a refund should be mailed, unless the taxpayer has signed a power of attorney containing such authorization.

- Claim tell a taxpayer that a refund anticipation loan is a tax refund and not a loan.

Consumers may complain to the New York City Department of Consumer Affairs, 42 Broadway, New York, NY 10004, (212) 3-1-1 or www.nyc.gov/consumers>.

2. In the event that the taxpayer does not understand English or Spanish, the tax preparer shall also provide a point-by-point oral explanation of the following required disclosure in a language understood by the tax payer:

o YOU ARE NOT REQUIRED TO ENTER INTO THIS REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN AGREEMENT MERELY BECAUSE YOU HAVE RECEIVED THIS INFORMATION.

o IF YOU DO SIGN A CONTRACT FOR A REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN, YOU WILL BE TAKING OUT A LOAN. YOU WILL BE RESPONSIBLE FOR REPAYMENT OF THE ENTIRE LOAN AMOUNT AND ALL RELATED COSTS AND FEES, REGARDLESS OF HOW MUCH MONEY YOU ACTUALLY RECEIVE IN YOUR TAX REFUND.

o IF YOU DO TAKE OUT THIS REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN, YOU WILL BE RESPONSIBLE TO PAY $ [insert amount] IN FEES FOR THE LOAN. AFTER THESE FEES ARE PAID, YOU WILL RECEIVE APPROXIMATELY $ [insert amount] AS YOUR LOAN.

o THE ESTIMATED ANNUAL PERCENTAGE RATE OF YOUR REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN IS [insert amount]%. THIS IS BASED ON THE ACTUAL AMOUNT OF TIME YOU WILL BE LENT MONEY THROUGH THIS REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN.

o IF YOU DO TAKE OUT THIS REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN, YOU CAN EXPECT TO RECEIVE YOUR LOAN WITHIN APPROXIMATELY TWO BUSINESS DAYS OF [insert date].

o IF YOU DO NOT TAKE OUT THIS REFUND ANTICIPATION LOAN, YOU CAN STILL RECEIVE YOUR TAX REFUND QUICKLY. IF YOU FILE YOUR TAX RETURN ELECTRONICALLY AND RECEIVE YOUR TAX REFUND THROUGH THE MAIL, YOU CAN EXPECT TO RECEIVE YOUR REFUND WITHIN APPROXIMATELY TWO BUSINESS DAYS OF [insert date]. IF YOU FILE YOUR TAX RETURN ELECTRONICALLY AND HAVE YOUR TAX REFUND DIRECTLY DEPOSITED INTO A BANK ACCOUNT, YOU CAN EXPECT TO RECEIVE YOUR REFUND WITHIN APPROXIMATELY TWO BUSINESS DAYS OF [insert date].

It shall be the obligation of the tax preparer to complete the required disclosure accurately with all relevant information for each taxpayer, to provide the required point-by-point oral explanation when necessary, and to ensure that the completed disclosure form is signed by the taxpayer before he or she enters into a refund anticipation loan.

SUBCHAPTER 14*129 IMMIGRATION ASSISTANCE SERVICES

§ 20-772 Written Agreement.

No immigration assistance services shall be provided until the customer has executed a written contract with the provider who will provide such services. The contract shall be in a language understood by the customer, either alone or with the assistance of an available interpreter, and, if that language is not English, an English language version of the contract must also be provided. A copy of the contract shall be provided to the customer upon the customer's execution of the contract. The customer has the right to cancel the contract within three business days after his or her execution of the contract, without fee or penalty. The right to cancel the contract within three days without payment of any fee may be waived when services must be provided immediately to avoid a forfeiture of eligibility or other loss of rights or privileges, and the customer furnishes the provider with a separate dated and signed statement, by the customer or his or her representative, describing the need for services to be provided within three days and expressly acknowledging and waiving the right to cancel the contract within three days. The contract may be cancelled at any time after execution. If the contract is cancelled after three days, or within three days if the right to cancel without fee has been waived, the provider may retain fees for services rendered, and any additional amounts actually expended on behalf of the customer. All other amounts must be returned to the customer within fifteen days after cancellation. The written contract shall be in plain language, in at least twelve point type and shall include the following:

1. The name, address and telephone number of the provider.

2. Itemization of all services to be provided to the customer, as well as the fees and costs to be charged to the customer.

3. A statement that original documents required to be submitted in connection with an application made to the federal bureau of citizenship and immigration services or for other certifications, benefits or services provided by government may not be retained by the provider for any reason, including payment of fees or costs.

4. A statement that the provider shall give the customer a copy of each document filed with a governmental entity.

5. A statement that the customer is not required to obtain supporting documents through the provider, but may obtain such documents himself or herself.

6. The statement: "You have three (3) business days to cancel this contract. Notice of cancellation must be in writing, signed by you and mailed by registered or certified United States mail to (specify address). If you cancel this contract within three days, you will get back your documents and any fees that you paid."

7. A statement that the provider has financial surety in effect for the benefit of any customer in the event that the customer is owed a refund, or is damaged by the actions of the provider, together with the name, address and telephone number of the surety.

8. The statement: "The individual providing assistance to you under this contract is not an attorney licensed to practice law or accredited by the board of immigration appeals to provide representation to you before the bureau of citizenship and immigration services, the department of labor, the department of state or any immigration authorities and may not give legal advice or accept fees for legal advice."

9. The statement: "The individual providing assistance to you under this contract is prohibited from disclosing any information or filing any forms or documents with immigration or other authorities without your knowledge and consent."

10. The statement: "A copy of all forms completed and documents accompanying the forms shall be kept by the service provider for three years. A copy of the customer's file shall be provided to the client on demand and without fee."

Section 1. Declaration of legislative findings and intent. Persons who assist individuals with immigration matters have a significant impact on the ability of their clients to live and work within the United States and to establish and maintain stable families and business relationships. Given the size of New York City's immigrant community, providers of immigration assistance services have a significant impact on cultural, social and economic life in this city. Presently, minimal regulation of persons who provide immigration assistance services leaves persons who require assistance with immigration matters vulnerable to abuse and unscrupulous practices. The purpose of this legislation is to give immigrants a clear understanding of the work to be performed by providers of immigration assistance services and to promote honesty and fair dealing among providers of immigration assistance services.

a. "Person"133 shall mean any individual, firm, partnership, trust, association, corporation or other legal entity. b. "Payday loan," also known as, among other terms, "deferred deposit advances," "cash on demand" or "cash advance," shall mean any transaction in which funds are provided to a consumer for a limited time period in exchange for (i) a consumer's personal check or share draft, in the amount of the funds provided to the consumer plus a fee, where presentment or negotiation of such check or share draft is deferred by agreement of the parties until a designated future date; or (ii) a consumer's authorization to debit the consumer's transaction account, in the amount of the funds provided to the consumer plus a fee, where such account will be debited on or after a designated future date.

Section 1. Legislative declaration. The Council finds that certain payday lenders may be unfairly taking advantage of New Yorkers throughout the City. These lenders, which can conduct business as storefront establishments, by mail, electronic, the Internet, or telephonic means, often charge high interest rates and fees for short-term loans. Accordingly, low-income New Yorkers may become trapped in burdensome high-interest loans.

State law and federal regulations, including provisions of the U.S.C.A. and C.F.R., extensively govern the operating procedures and lending requirements of state and federally chartered lending institutions. Further, federal regulations enable state and federally chartered banks to export their home usury caps, if any, to states in which those institutions issue loans.

Without limiting in any manner the scope of this subchapter, the Council declares that it is the general intent of this subchapter to reiterate that in the city of New York, some of the practices in activities commonly referred to as payday lending, deferred deposit advances, cash on demand, or cash advance services and other similar activities are currently illegal, subject to the exemption of certain entities by federal law, and to strengthen the penalties for those engaging in such activities.

The Council finds that companies not subject to state and federal regulatory policies that elect to engage in the practice of payday lending must clearly disclose the terms of their loans to otherwise uninformed consumers. Accordingly, the Council intends to take action where permissible and require lenders to provide a disclosure notice to each would-be borrower so that he or she has a clear sense of the lender's operations and intentions. In addition, the Council is requiring such payday lenders to provide both the Department of Consumer Affairs and the Council with demographic information on the individuals taking out payday loans to ensure better tracking and public education in the future.

o IF YOU DO TAKE OUT THIS PAYDAY LOAN, YOU WILL BE RESPONSIBLE TO PAY $ [insert amount] IN FINANCE CHARGES FOR THE LOAN. AFTER THESE FINANCE CHARGES ARE PAID, YOU WILL RECEIVE APPROXIMATELY $ [insert amount] AS YOUR LOAN.

These lenders, which can conduct business as storefront establishments, by mail, electronic, the Internet, or telephonic means, often charge high interest rates and fees for short-term loans. Accordingly, low-income New Yorkers may become trapped in burdensome high-interest loans.

State law and federal regulations, including provisions of the U.S.C.A. and C.F.R., extensively govern the operating procedures and lending requirements of state and federally chartered lending institutions. Further, federal regulations enable state and federally chartered banks to export their home usury caps, if any, to states in which those institutions issue loans.

Without limiting in any manner the scope of this subchapter, the Council declares that it is the general intent of this subchapter to reiterate that in the city of New York, some of the practices in activities commonly referred to as payday lending, deferred deposit advances, cash on demand, or cash advance services and other similar activities are currently illegal, subject to the exemption of certain entities by federal law, and to strengthen the penalties for those engaging in such activities.

The Council finds that companies not subject to state and federal regulatory policies that elect to engage in the practice of payday lending must clearly disclose the terms of their loans to otherwise uninformed consumers. Accordingly, the Council intends to take action where permissible and require lenders to provide a disclosure notice to each would-be borrower so that he or she has a clear sense of the lender's operations and intentions. In addition, the Council is requiring such payday lenders to provide both the Department of Consumer Affairs and the Council with demographic information on the individuals taking out payday loans to ensure better tracking and public education in the future.

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the department shall be authorized upon due notice and hearing, to impose civil penalties for the violation of any provision of this subchapter. Section 1. Legislative declaration. The Council finds that certain payday lenders may be unfairly taking advantage of New Yorkers throughout the City. These lenders, which can conduct business as storefront establishments, by mail, electronic, the Internet, or telephonic means, often charge high interest rates and fees for short-term loans. Accordingly, low-income New Yorkers may become trapped in burdensome high-interest loans.

2. 11. "Owner" shall mean any owner, manager, operator or other person or persons having control of a clinic and any authorized agent thereof.

12. Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The Council finds that fraud in the State's no-fault automobile insurance system is a significant and costly problem. According to a 2000 report of the Insurance Information Institute, no-fault automobile insurance medical claims are filed in New York State at a rate that is 30% higher than the nationwide no-fault median, and the State's average cost per claim is greater than twice the no-fault median. Recent changes in New York State law, which reduced the time in which a no-fault medical claim or accident may be reported, have resulted in a decrease in the number of claims and the average cost per claim.

However, such changes in the law did not help identify and monitor the perpetrators of no-fault motor vehicle insurance fraud, or prohibit activities, such as the hiring of "runners," that enable such fraudulent activities to continue.

The Council finds that abuse of the no-fault automobile insurance system has led to higher automobile insurance costs in New York City, particularly in Brooklyn. According to an October 2004 report issued by a task force established by the Brooklyn Borough President's Office, it is generally accepted that Brooklyn experiences among the highest automobile insurance rates in the country. The Council finds that medical clinics that are primarily established for the purpose of engaging in fraudulent activity with respect to no-fault motor vehicle insurance are an essential element in perpetrating the fraudulent scheme and contributing to the high automobile insurance costs in New York City. The Council therefore finds that medical clinics that bill high amounts of no-fault insurance medical treatment claims should be monitored through periodic reporting requirements and prohibited from engaging "runners" to procure additional patients.

. . . . . § 3. Severability. If any subdivision, sentence, clause, phrase or other portion of the local law that added this chapter is, for any reason, declared unconstitutional or invalid, in whole or in part, by any court of competent jurisdiction, such portion shall be deemed severable and such unconstitutionality or invalidity shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of the local law that added this chapter, which remaining portions shall remain in full force and effect.

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The Council finds that fraud in the State's no-fault automobile insurance system is a significant and costly problem. According to a 2000 report of the Insurance Information Institute, no-fault automobile insurance medical claims are filed in New York State at a rate that is 30% higher than the nationwide no-fault median, and the State's average cost per claim is greater than twice the no-fault median. Recent changes in New York State law, which reduced the time in which a no-fault medical claim or accident may be reported, have resulted in a decrease in the number of claims and the average cost per claim. However, such changes in the law did not help identify and monitor the perpetrators of no-fault motor vehicle insurance fraud, or prohibit activities, such as the hiring of "runners," that enable such fraudulent activities to continue.

The Council finds that abuse of the no-fault automobile insurance system has led to higher automobile insurance costs in New York City, particularly in Brooklyn. According to an October 2004 report issued by a task force established by the Brooklyn Borough President's Office, it is generally accepted that Brooklyn experiences among the highest automobile insurance rates in the country. The Council finds that medical clinics that are primarily established for the purpose of engaging in fraudulent activity with respect to no-fault motor vehicle insurance are an essential element in perpetrating the fraudulent scheme and contributing to the high automobile insurance costs in New York City. The Council therefore finds that medical clinics that bill high amounts of no-fault insurance medical treatment claims should be monitored through periodic reporting requirements and prohibited from engaging "runners" to procure additional patients.

1. Provisions of L.L. 38/2008:

Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The Council finds that it is the public policy of the City of New York to conserve energy, reduce peak power demands during hot weather periods and limit environmental pollution and local contributions to global warming. Prohibiting commercial establishments from leaving their doors ajar while air conditioners or central cooling systems are on is a sensible energy conservation measure. According to the Long Island Power Authority, the practice of leaving open doors while air conditioners or central cooling systems are operating can increase the amount of electricity used by establishments by 20 to 25 percent. The Council finds that such practices increase power plant related pollution and place heightened energy demands on local utilities during hot summer months, when excessive energy consumption can lead to power shortages.

The job categories specified in such rule shall not include categories of employees, without limitation, such as kitchen personnel, food and beverage servers or vessel's crew, that are not involved in gambling operations.

i. "Key employee or agent" shall mean a person employed in a shipboard gambling business in a supervisory or managerial capacity or empowered to make discretionary decisions regarding such business, including, but not limited to, pit bosses, shift bosses, credit executives, casino cashier supervisors, casino facility managers and assistant managers and managers or supervisors of gambling employees or agents. For the purposes of this chapter: (1) an individual shall be considered to hold stock in a corporation where such individual participates in the operation of or has a beneficial interest in such corporation and such stock is owned directly or indirectly by or for (i) such individual, (ii) the spouse or domestic partner of such individual (other than a spouse who is legally separated from such individual pursuant to a judicial decree or an agreement cognizable under the laws of the state in which such individual is domiciled), (iii) the children, grandchildren and parents of such individual or (iv) a corporation in which any of such individual, the spouse, domestic partner, children, grandchildren or parents of such individual in the aggregate own fifty percent or more in value of the stock of such corporation; (2) a partnership shall be considered to hold stock in a corporation where such stock is owned, directly or indirectly, by or for a partner in such partnership; and (3) a corporation shall be considered to hold stock in a corporation that is an applicant as defined in this section where such corporation holds fifty percent or more in value of the stock of a third corporation that holds stock in the applicant corporation. Notwithstanding any other provision of this subdivision, where there is reasonable cause to believe that any owner, officer or director of a business entity with an interest in an applicant business not otherwise within the scope of this subdivision lacks good character, honesty and integrity, the commission may designate such person as a principal for the purposes of sections 20-954, 20-955, 20-956 and 20-959 of this chapter.

m. "Registrant" shall mean a service employee or agent or an auxiliary vendor who has registered with the commission pursuant to the provisions of this chapter.

o. "Shipboard gambling business" shall mean a business in which passengers are transported for the purpose of participating in gambling outside the territorial waters of the United States from a location within New York city and returned to a location within such city; provided that a business shall not be deemed a shipboard gambling business for purposes of this chapter where the gambling cruises or the gambling activities aboard such cruises operated by or on behalf of such business are conducted or proposed to be conducted no more than two times a year or every cruise operated by such business during which gambling activities occur is of at least seventy-two hours duration or where the commission determines, in its discretion, that the gambling offered aboard a vessel owned or operated by such business does not constitute a primary activity conducted aboard such vessel. In reaching a determination that gambling does not constitute a primary activity, the commission shall consider, without limitation, factors including: the passenger capacity of the vessel in relation to the number of gaming positions in the areas in which gambling will occur; the percentage of space devoted to public accommodation in which gambling will occur; the number of hours during which gambling will take place in relation to the total time of the cruise; and the nature of the advertising and other customer solicitation engaged in by the business.

p. "Subsidiary" shall mean any business that is managed by another business entity or any business in which fifty percent or more of the business is owned or in which fifty percent or more of the business is subject to a power or right of control or held with power to vote by another business entity.

"Key vendor" shall mean a vendor, in a category identified by rule of the commission, that furnishes goods or services related to the security operations, gambling operations, gambling equipment, the hiring, supervision or training of gambling employees or agents, the provision of alcoholic beverages, and the provision of food or food services the cost of which exceeds an amount to be set forth by rule of the commission. "Auxiliary vendor" shall mean a vendor, other than a key vendor, that furnishes goods or services to a shipboard gambling business, the cost of which goods or services exceeds an amount to be established for each category of such vendor by rule of the commission, related to maintenance of a vessel or facilities or equipment aboard a vessel, food or non-alcoholic beverages, entertainment or such other activity for which the commission determines by rule that registration is necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of this chapter, provided that the commission may by rule determine that registration of a specific category of auxiliary vendor is unnecessary to achieve the purposes of this chapter. The commission shall by rule list the categories of goods and services and/or the amount of sales of such goods and services that do not require obtaining a key vendor license or an auxiliary vendor registration and may also, in its discretion, waive a requirement for a key vendor license or auxiliary vendor registration upon a determination that such license or registration is unnecessary to achieve the purposes of this chapter. In addition, the commission shall establish, by rule, a procedure whereby a shipboard gambling business may obtain temporary permission, on an expedited basis, to purchase goods or services from an unlicensed or unregistered vendor in a situation where such purchase is necessary to the operation of such business. The commission shall make provision for the issuance of licenses pursuant to sections 20-954 and 20-956 of this chapter to key vendors who furnish goods or services to shipboard gambling licensees and for the registration pursuant to section 29-955 of auxiliary vendors who furnish goods or services to shipboard gambling licensees. The commission shall maintain a list of all licensed and registered vendors and those vendors to whom a waiver has been granted and shall make such list available upon request.

¶ 1. Although federal law (specifically the Gambling Ship Act, 18 USC Sec. 1081 et seq., and the Johnson Act, 15 U.S.C 1171 et seq.) would pre-empt the field so as to prevent New York City from prohibiting shipboard gambling altogether, the federal laws do not prevent the City from establishing a regulation scheme which does not conflict with federal law. The City has a legitimate police power interest in ensuring that gambling is conducted in an honest fashion. Padavan v. City of New York, N.Y.L.J., June 16, 1998, page 27, col. 2 (Sup.Ct. An applicant may submit any additional information that the applicant believes demonstrates the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity, including a licensing determination from another jurisdiction. Notwithstanding any provision of this subdivision, an applicant for a certificate of approval shall not be required to submit information described in subparagraphs (a) and (m) of this paragraph or any other information the commission determines is not necessary or appropriate. An applicant may also submit to the commission any material or explanation which the applicant believes demonstrates that any information submitted pursuant to this paragraph does not reflect adversely upon the applicant's good character, honesty and integrity. The commission may require that applicants pay fees to cover the expenses of fingerprinting and background investigations provided for in this subdivision.

iii. In the case of a shipboard gambling business, the commission may also require that an applicant submit any or all of the information required by this paragraph with respect to any affiliate or subsidiary of the applicant that owns or operates a business in any jurisdiction.

iv. Notwithstanding any provision of this chapter, for purposes of this section in the case of an applicant shipboard gambling business that has a parent business entity: (A) fingerprinting and disclosure under this section shall be required of any person acting for or on behalf of the parent business who has direct management or supervisory responsibility for the operations or performance of the applicant; (B) the chief executive officer, chief operating officer and chief financial officer, or any other person exercising comparable responsibilities and functions, of any subsidiary or affiliate of such parent business entity over which any person subject to fingerprinting and disclosure under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph exercises similar responsibilities shall be fingerprinted and shall submit the information required pursuant to subparagraphs (f) and (g) of paragraph ii of this subdivision, as well as such additional information pursuant to this paragraph as the commission may find necessary; and (C) the listing specified under subparagraph (i) of paragraph ii of this subdivision shall also be provided for any subsidiary or affiliate of the parent business entity for which fingerprinting and disclosure by principals thereof is made pursuant to (B) of this paragraph.

v. The chief executive officer, chief operating officer and chief financial officer, or any other person exercising comparable responsibilities and functions, of and subsidiary or affiliate of a shipboard gambling business shall be fingerprinted and shall submit the information required pursuant to subparagraphs (f), (g) and (i) of paragraph ii of this subdivision, as well as such other information pursuant to this paragraph that the commission may find necessary.

c. A business required to be licensed pursuant to this chapter shall inform the commission, within a reasonable time, of any changes in the ownership composition of such business, the addition or deletion of any principal at any time subsequent to the issuance of the license, the arrest or criminal conviction of any principal of the business, or any other material change in the information submitted on the application for a license. A business required to be licensed shall provide the commission with notice of at least ten business days of the proposed addition of a new principal to such business. The commission may waive or shorten such period upon a showing that there exists a bona fide business requirement therefor. Except where the commission determines within such period, based upon information available to it, that the addition of such new principal may have a result inimical to the purposes of this chapter, the licensee may add such new principal pending the completion of review by the commission. The licensee shall be afforded an opportunity to demonstrate to the commission that the addition of such new principal pending completion of such review would not have a result inimical to the purposes of this chapter. If upon the completion of such review, the commission determines that such principal has not demonstrated that he or she possesses good character, honesty and integrity, the license shall cease to be valid unless such principal divests his or her interest, or discontinues his or her involvement in the business of such licensee, as the case may be, within a reasonable time period prescribed by the commission.

d. Each applicant business shall provide the commission with a business address in New York city where notices may be delivered and legal process served and shall designate a person of suitable age and discretion at such address who shall be an agent for service of process.

a. An applicant for registration or renewal pursuant to this chapter shall submit an application on a form prescribed by the commission and containing such information as the commission determines will adequately identify and establish the background of such applicant. The commission may refuse to register or to renew the registration of an applicant who has knowingly failed to provide the information and/or documentation required by such form, or who has knowingly provided false information or documentation, required by this chapter or any rule promulgated pursuant hereto.

b. CHAPTER 1 SHIPBOARD GAMBLING

a. The commission shall refuse to issue or to renew a license to an applicant who has not demonstrated to the commission that he or she possesses good character, honesty and integrity. In determining that an applicant has not met his or her burden to demonstrate good character, honesty and integrity, the commission may consider, but is not limited to: (i) knowing failure by such applicant to provide truthful or complete information in connection with the application; (ii) a pending indictment or criminal action against such applicant for a crime which under this subdivision would provide a basis for the refusal to issue such license or certificate of approval, or a pending civil or administrative action to which such applicant is a party and which directly relates to the fitness to conduct the business or perform the work for which the license or certificate of approval is sought, in which case the commission may defer consideration of an application until a decision has been reached by the court or administrative tribunal before which such action is pending; (iii) conviction of such applicant for a crime which, considering the factors set forth in section seven hundred fifty-three of the correction law, would provide a basis under such law for the refusal of such license or certificate of approval; (iv) a finding of liability in a civil or administrative action that bears a direct relationship to the fitness of the applicant to conduct the business or to perform the employment for which the license or certificate of approval is sought; (v) commission of a racketeering activity or knowing association with a person who has been convicted for a racketeering activity when the applicant knew or should have known of such conviction, including but not limited to the offenses listed in subdivision one of section nineteen hundred sixty-one of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations statute (18 U.S.C. §1961 et seq.) or of an offense listed in subdivision one of section 460.10 of the penal law, as such statutes may be amended from time to time, or the equivalent offense under the laws of any other jurisdiction; (vi) conviction of a gambling offense under 18 U.S.C. §1081 et seq., 18 U.S.C. §§1953 through 1955, article 225 of the penal law or the equivalent offense under the laws of any other jurisdiction; (vii) association with any member or associate of an organized crime group as identified by a federal, state or city law enforcement or investigative agency when the applicant knew or should have known of the organized crime associations of such person; (viii) in the case of an applicant business, failure to pay any tax, fine, penalty, fee related to the applicant's business for which liability has been admitted by the person liable therefor, or for which judgment has been entered by a court or administrative tribunal of competent jurisdiction and such judgment has not been stayed; and (ix) denial of a license or other permission to operate a gambling business or activity in another jurisdiction. For purposes of determining the good character, honesty and integrity of applicants for registration or registrants pursuant to section 20-955 of this chapter, the term "applicant" as used herein shall be deemed to apply to such applicants for registration or registrants.

b. The commission may refuse to issue or to renew a certificate of approval to an applicant who has not demonstrated that he or she possesses good character, honesty and integrity. In reaching such a determination, the commission may consider, but is not limited to, the factors set forth in paragraphs (i) through (ix) of subdivision a of this section.

c. The commission may refuse to issue or to renew a license or certificate of approval to an applicant who has knowingly failed to provide the information and/or documentation required in the form prescribed by the commission pursuant to section 20-954 of this chapter, who has knowingly provided false information or documentation required by the commission pursuant to this chapter or any rules promulgated pursuant hereto.

d. The commission may refuse to issue or to renew a license or certificate of approval to an applicant when such applicant: (i) was previously issued a license or certificate of approval pursuant to this chapter and such license or certificate of approval was revoked pursuant to the provisions of this chapter; or (ii) has been determined to have committed any of the acts which would be a basis for the suspension or revocation of a license or certificate of approval pursuant to this chapter or any rules promulgated hereto.

e. The commission may refuse to issue or to renew a license pursuant to this chapter to an applicant business where such applicant business or any of the principals of such applicant business have been principals of a licensee whose license has been revoked pursuant to subdivision a of section 20-959 of this chapter.

a. Such contract, the cost of which shall be paid by the licensee, shall provide that the auditor investigate the activities of the licensee with respect to the licensee's compliance with the provisions of this chapter, other applicable federal, state and local laws and such other matters as the commission shall determine by rule. The contract shall provide further that the auditor report the findings of such monitoring and investigation to the commission on a periodic basis.

a. In addition to the penalties provided in section 20-960 of this chapter, the commission may, after notice and opportunity to be heard, revoke or suspend a license, certificate of approval or registration issued pursuant to the provisions of this chapter when the licensee or a principal, employee or agent of a licensee, a holder of a certificate of approval or a registrant: (i) has been found to be in violation of this chapter or any rules promulgated hereunder; (ii) has repeatedly failed to obey the lawful orders of any person authorized to enforce the provisions of this chapter; (iii) has failed to pay, within the time specified by a court, the commission or an administrative tribunal of competent jurisdiction, any fines or civil penalties imposed pursuant to this chapter or the rules promulgated pursuant hereto; (iv) whenever, in relation to an investigation conducted pursuant to this chapter, the commission determines, after consideration of the factors set forth in subdivision a of section 20-956 of this chapter, that the licensee, holder of a certificate of approval or registrant lacks good character, honesty and integrity or lacks the financial capacity to maintain and operate the business responsibly in a manner that will ensure the immediate payment to patrons; (v) whenever there has knowingly been any false statement or any misrepresentation as to a material fact in the application or accompanying papers upon which the issuance of such license, certificate of approval or registration was based; or (vi) whenever a licensee has failed to notify the commission as required by subdivision c of section 20-954 of this chapter of any change in the ownership interest of the business or any other material change in the information required on the application for such license, or of the arrest or criminal conviction of a principal of such licensee or any of its employees or agents of which the licensee had knowledge or should have known.

b. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter or rules promulgated thereto, the commission may, upon a determination that the operation of a shipboard gambling business or the conduct of an employee of such business creates an imminent danger to life or property, immediately suspend the license of such business or the certificate of approval or registration of such employee without a prior hearing, provided that provision shall be made for an immediate appeal of such suspension to the chair of the commission who shall determine such appeal forthwith. NOTE

Provisions of L.L. 57/1997 eff. July 14, 1997:

Section 1. Legislative findings. The council hereby finds that city regulation of gambling "cruises to nowhere" that operate from locations within New York city is necessary to ensure public confidence and trust in such activities and to safeguard the security of the public who participate in them. Gambling activities are particularly susceptible to criminal activity and have historical associations with organized crime control. Like the legislatures in other jurisdictions, such as New Jersey and Nevada, which have acted to protect consumers from fraudulent practices and to prevent gambling from providing new opportunities for organized crime, the council finds that public confidence and trust can only be achieved and sustained by a regulatory system that ensures that such gambling operations will not be controlled or influenced by persons with criminal records and associations or associations with organized crime. The council therefore finds that it is necessary to require that businesses that operate gambling "cruises to nowhere" using vessels embarking from New York city, and their employees and suppliers, be licensed by the city and that the standards for the issuance of such licenses allow for the denial of licenses to entities and individuals unable to demonstrate that they possess good character, honesty and integrity. The council finds further that in order to provide for effective regulation to ensure the lawful operation of gambling on vessels operating from New York city, it is necessary to establish a gambling control commission that shall be responsible for the licensing and regulation of businesses that conduct shipboard gambling.

§ 3. The provisions of this local law shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision or section of this local law, or the applicability thereof to any person or circumstance, shall be held invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction, the remainder of this local law and the application thereof shall not be affected thereby.

§ 4. The New York city gambling control commission is hereby authorized, immediately upon the effective date of this local law, to develop application and disclosure forms for the purposes of applications for licenses, certificates of approval and registrations pursuant to sections 20-954 and 20-955 of the administrative code of the city of New York, as added by section 2 of this local law, to establish fees for such applications and for background investigations, and to require the submission of such application and disclosure forms and fees within thirty days of having made such forms available by shipboard gambling businesses in operation as of such date, by persons employed as of such date by such businesses and, within sixty days, by vendors that would be subject to the provisions of sections 20-954 or 20-955 of the administrative code of the city of New York as added by section 2 of this local law. The commission shall, before the date on which application and disclosure forms are made available to vendors pursuant to this section, develop and make available a list of categories of vendors and/or amounts of sales of such goods or services that do not require obtaining a license as a key vendor or registration as an auxiliary vendor and may waive the requirement for a license or registration when, in its discretion, such license or registration is unnecessary to achieve the purposes of this local law. In addition, the chair of the commission may grant permission to a shipboard gambling business authorized to operate pursuant to section 5 of this local law to purchase goods or services on an expedited basis from an unlicensed or unregistered vendor when such purchase is necessary for the operation of such business. The commission shall, in addition, establish a procedure for the preliminary review of applications submitted by shipboard gambling business operating in New York city on or before one hundred and eighty days following the effective date of this local law and for provisional authorization for such businesses to operate following such preliminary review, pending completion of full review. At any time during or following such preliminary review that the commission finds reasonable cause to believe that an applicant lacks good character, honesty and integrity or that there are other reasons that may lead to the denial of a shipboard gambling license pursuant to section 20-956 of the administrative code of the city of New York, as added by section 2 of this local law, the commission may, in its sole discretion, refuse to issue a provisional authorization or revoke such an authorization. A provisional authorization to operate a shipboard gambling business granted by the commission pursuant to this section shall be deemed void upon the issuance or denial of an application for a shipboard gambling license.

¶ 1. The respondent, the Jewish Child Care Association of New York, in conjunction with the Commissioner of Welfare of the City of New York, is vested by the authority of this section and the Social Welfare Law § 383 with the right to the custody of an infant who was boarded out by the respondent to the appellant. Hence, a writ of habeas corpus directing the appellants to return the infant to the custody of the respondent was proper. Appellants had no legal right with respect to the infant's custody and had no standing to contest the determination of the Special Term that return to the custody of the respondent would be in the infant's best interest, merely because of their affection for the infant and her affection for them and the devoted care which they had given her while she was in their home.-Matter of Jewish Child Care Assoc. of New York, 6 A.D. 2d 698, 174 N.Y.S. 2d 335 [1958], aff'd 5 N.Y. 2d 222, 183 N.Y.S. 2d 65, 156 N.E. 2d 700 [1959].

The commissioner shall commit such child only to an institution which the state board of social welfare has certified as having complied with the rules and regulations as established by such board for such institutions, pursuant to section one of article eight of the state constitution. § 21-106 Payments to private institutions.

Payments shall not be made by the city to any charitable, eleemosynary or reformatory institutions wholly or partly under private control, for the care, support, secular education or maintenance of any destitute, neglected or delinquent child therein, except upon the certificate of the commissioner that such child has been received and is retained by such institution pursuant to the rules and regulations established by the state board of social welfare. Moneys paid by the city to any such institution for the care, support, secular education or maintenance of its inmates shall not be expended for any other purpose. Whenever the commissioner shall decide, after reasonable notice to such institution and a hearing, that any such child who is received and retained in such institution is not a proper charge against the public, and written notice of such decision is given by the commissioner to such institution, thereupon all right on the part of such institution to receive compensation from the city for the further retention of the child shall cease. The commissioner shall file in the office of the department a statement of the reasons for his or her decision and of the facts upon which it is founded, and shall furnish a copy to such institution where the child is detained. The commissioner's decision may be reviewed on certiorari by the supreme court.

No money shall be paid out of any appropriation to any charitable, eleemosynary or reformatory institution which shall deny or limit admission to any destitute, neglected or delinquent children duly committed by the commissioner or a court of appropriate jurisdiction, because of the race, color or religion of such children, provided, however, that no institution of a particular religious faith shall be required to accept children adhering to a religious faith other than its own.

The commission on foster care of children shall have the power and continuing duty to investigate and determine, upon complaint made and shall have the power on its own initiative to investigate and determine whether any institution is practicing discrimination in violation of the provisions of the preceding paragraph. The commission may direct that such investigation shall be conducted by one or more of its members or by its secretary or assistant secretary. Whenever in the judgment of the commission, such investigation discloses that there is reason to believe that an institution is practicing discrimination, the commission shall cause a hearing to be held before the commission or before two or more of its members, as it may direct, upon reasonable notice to such institution. The commission shall dismiss the proceedings if it finds upon the basis of such hearing, that such institution is not practicing discrimination. In the event the commission shall find on the basis of such hearing, that such institution is practicing discrimination, it shall certify to the commissioner its findings of fact, together with its determination of the period of time, not to exceed one year, within which the institution shall be permitted to amend its practices and comply with said provisions. The commissioner shall thereupon serve notice of such certification on such institution. All right on the part of such institution to receive moneys from the city shall cease upon the date specified in said certification unless, prior to the expiration thereof, such institution shall have submitted to the commission proof that it has ceased to engage in said violations and the commission shall have found and certified to the commissioner that said institution has complied with said provisions. The institution shall not be deprived of payments for services rendered prior to the date specified in the certification. The determination of the commission that an institution is practicing discrimination, or having been ordered to cease said discrimination has failed to cease, may be reviewed by the supreme court, which may, for good cause shown, during the pendency of such review, stay the termination of the right of such institution to receive moneys from the city. The commission, or any of its members authorized by it to conduct a hearing, may, at any such hearing, compel the attendance of witnesses, administer oaths, take the testimony of any person under oath and require the production of any evidence relating to the matter in question at the hearing. The department and the corporation counsel are authorized upon request by the commission, to make members of their respective staffs available, upon a temporary basis, to the commission, to assist it in conducting the investigations and hearings provided by this section.

a. The spouse or parent of a recipient of public assistance or care or of a person liable to become in need thereof shall, if of sufficient ability, be responsible for the support of such person, provided that a parent shall be responsible only for the support of his or her minor child. Step-parents shall in a like manner be responsible for the support of minor step-children.

b. If a sufficiently able relative of a poor person fails to support him or her, as in this section provided, and such person is being cared for or is about to be cared for by the commissioner, such commissioner may apply to the family court for an order to compel him or her to pay the reasonable charge determined by such commissioner for the care of such relative during his or her stay in the public or private institution, or home where the commissioner has placed him or her. The proceedings to be taken to make such order and to enforce the same shall be in the name of and conducted by the commissioner. The determination of such commissioner as to the reasonableness of such charges may at any time be reviewed in the family court.

c. Evidence that the poor person mentioned in this section is without adequate means of support shall be presumptive proof of the possibility of his or her becoming a public charge. The relative against whom proceedings are begun for the support of a poor person shall be taken to be of sufficient ability to contribute to the support, unless the contrary shall affirmatively appear to the satisfaction of the court or a judge or justice thereof.

d. Instead of bringing legal proceedings as in this section specified, the commissioner can directly enter into an agreement with a relative for the payment of the charges determined by such commissioner to be the reasonable charge for the care of the person maintained or about to be maintained by such commissioner as a public charge.

¶ 1. Cause of action by Commissioner of Welfare under Social Welfare Law § 104 and Administrative Code § 603-9.0 to recover cost of public assistance granted to defendant and his family, held to have accrued upon plaintiff's discovery that defendant was possessed of property. The Statute of Limitations against the right of plaintiff to bring the action began to run at that time and not when the public assistance was granted.-Rhatigan v. Curry, 191 Misc. 3, 76 N.Y.S. 2d 428 [1947], 275 App. Div. 691, 87 N.Y.S. 2d 429 [1949].

On November 18, 1955, the Commissioner of Hospitals ascertained that the decedent had left an estate. He filed an action to vacate the order of distribution. Held: (1) The proper form of action by the Commissioner would have been against the known distributees rather than to vacate the order of distribution. (2) The action was barred by the statute of limitations, since the limitation on action against the estate of a deceased person starts to run on the date of his death.-Matter of Gottheimer, 9 Misc. 2d 489, 169 N.Y.S. 2d 854 [1958].

¶ 6. The Commissioner of Hospitals could maintain an action against the husband and adult children of a patient to recover the cost of hospital services rendered to her. He was not required to sue the husband before commencing an action against the children. It shall be unlawful for any person, organization, society, association or corporation or their agents or representatives to solicit money, donations of money or property, or financial assistance of any kind upon the streets, in office or business buildings, by house to house canvass, or in public places in the city, except upon a license issued by the commissioner and an identification card issued by the chairperson or district chairperson of any charitable drive and any such regulations as hereinafter provided.

b. Application to solicit funds for any cause whatever as provided for in this section shall be addressed to the commissioner and such application shall contain the following information:

1. Name and purpose of the cause for which permission is sought.

2. Names and addresses of the officers and directors of the organization.

3. Time for which permission is sought and localities and places of solicitation.

4. Whether or not any commissions, fees, wages or emoluments are to be expended in connection with such solicitation.

5. Such other information as the commissioner shall require.

c. It shall be the duty of the commissioner, before granting permission to solicit funds or donations as provided for in this section, to compel the applicant to file with him or her a signed statement of all moneys collected in the

d. The commissioner may establish such regulations as he or she may deem necessary in effectuating the purposes and objects of this section.

e. In addition, where the solicitation of funds is by appeal in person and where the solicitor receives no compensation for such solicitation, the box or container shall bear on it the word "volunteer" in a conspicuous place. Any solicitor receiving compensation for such solicitation who uses a box or container bearing the word "volunteer" shall be subject to a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars or to imprisonment for a period not to exceed thirty days or both.

f. Any person or persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this section, upon conviction thereof, shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment not exceeding ninety days, or by both.

The administration shall not continue to subsidize through any mechanism the child care of children in such home until such time as the administration has determined that such child care provider can provide such safe and suitable care.

f. In drafting a plan or amendments to any existing plan as required by subdivision d of this section, the administration shall include such other provisions as are necessary to implement the requirements of this section.

g. In the event that any portion of the plan or any of the proposed amendments to an existing plan submitted pursuant to subdivision d of this section is not approved, that disapproval shall not affect any other provision of such plan or amendment and each provision shall be implemented and enforced to the extent approved by the state.

h. § 21-120.2 Home care services.

Not later than January 1, 1993, pursuant to social services law section 367-n(3), the commissioner of social services shall submit to the state departments of social services and health a request for a waiver, in lieu of a delegation plan, from the requirement of social services law section 367-n(2).

Provisions of L.L. 99/1992:

Section 1. Declaration of intent. The Council finds that the case-management model is the preferred way in which to deliver social services to the people of the City of New York. This is particularly true of the Community Alternatives System Agency (CASA) because, while the Council strongly supports a proper mix of private and public delivery of social services, a case-management model, as exemplified by CASA, provides a desirable system for monitoring the delivery of social services by private vendors so as to ensure that public monies are being properly expended and that needed services are being efficiently delivered.

The report shall make specific recommendations with respect to the areas listed below and shall include an assessment of the fiscal implications of such recommendations:

1. The role of childhood and child caring programs in education; 2. The role of childhood and child caring programs in providing support to families;

3. The role of childhood and child caring programs in community development;

4. The role of childhood and child caring programs for children with special needs, including, but not limited to, children with mental and physical disabilities, homeless children and children in need of preventive services;

5. The role of childhood and child caring programs in welfare reform;

6. The role of employers in the public and private sectors in providing childhood and child caring programs;

Provisions of L.L. 16/1990 § 1.

Section 1. Legislative findings. The council finds that the future of our city and of society at large rests with our children and that their education and care are therefore of paramount importance. The council finds that programs of education and care of children may improve the quality of the life of children, their parents and guardians. Such programs can play a significant role in improving the performance of children in schools, in providing support to families, in strengthening the community, in assisting children with special needs, such as disabled or homeless children, and in creating effective forms of public assistance. The council finds that employers in both the public and private sectors have a responsibility to the children of our city and should respond to incentives to provide childhood and child caring programs. It is therefore desirable to establish a temporary commission, the members of which are to be selected from such diverse groups as the business community, organized labor, the clergy, and the fields of education, science and the social sciences, for the purpose of conducting research and reporting to the mayor and the council on the status of day care and early childhood educational programs in the city and ways in which such programs may be improved, expanded and coordinated.

§ 21-124 Prohibiting the use of Tier I shelters.

a. The city shall not establish henceforth any Tier I shelters as defined in 18 NYCRR § 900.2 through § 900.18. After September 30, 1991, the city of New York shall not operate any Tier I shelters.

b. 1. No homeless family shelter shall be established which does not provide a bathroom, a refrigerator and cooking facilities and an adequate sleeping area within each unit within the shelter and which otherwise complies with state and local laws. All Tier II shelter units shall be such that they may be converted to be used for permanent housing with a minimum of structural change.

2. The following units are exempted or partially exempted from the provisions of paragraph one of this subdivision: (i) the Tier II units presently in operation shall be exempt; (ii) the 2,450 units of Tier II shelter housing currently in the construction pipeline shall be exempt; and (iii) units in facilities for battered women or substance and alcohol abusers which meet all state requirements for such programs may provide congregate dining and bathing arrangements.

3. The requirements of this subdivision shall not apply in cases where the provisions of § 21-121(3) are invoked.

c. Until June 30, 1992, notwithstanding any provision of this section, the mayor may authorize homeless families to be sheltered in any facility approved by the appropriate state authority for such purpose upon a finding by the commissioner that the city has more homeless families in need of shelter than the system can accommodate, for the following reasons:

(1) the pattern of length of stay of families entering the system each month shows that the length of stay is increasing over time;

(2) the city has experienced unexpected impediments to the construction or rehabilitation of permanent or transitional housing units, including, but not limited to work stoppages, natural disasters, unanticipated site conditions relating to such matters as soil conditions, contractor delays, availability of sewers, or the presence of asbestos which requires remedial action;

(3) the city has not obtained necessary approval for sites selected for facilities to shelter homeless families;

(4) construction or rehabilitation of permanent or transitional housing for homeless families has been and continues to be enjoined by court order;

(5) an emergency such as a flood, earthquake or fire, or a medical emergency as certified by the commissioner of health, has rendered existing shelters unsuitable for use to house homeless families;

(6) the number of homeless families requesting emergency housing exceeds the capacity of the system at any point in time; or

(7) any other emergency circumstance. Such finding shall be made in writing and shall specify the time the commissioner anticipates will be needed for the city to meet the requirements of subdivisions a and b. Such finding shall be delivered promptly, and, when practicable, prior to the use of facilities pursuant to this subdivision, to the mayor, the speaker of the council, any council member in whose district families are to be sheltered pursuant to this subdivision, and to the families who receive shelter in facilities not meeting the requirements of subdivisions a and b. Within fifteen days of having made such finding, and at such other times as the council may request, the mayor shall report to the council on the plans to meet the requirements of subdivisions a and b and the progress that has been made in implementing such plans. The commissioner shall insure that the social service and medical needs of families sheltered pursuant to this subdivision shall be met in accordance with state regulations in 18 NYCRR § 900.2 through § 900.18 for Tier II shelters. Notwithstanding any provision of this paragraph, between September 30, 1991 and June 30, 1992, the shelters located at 282 East 3rd Street and 151 East 151st Street may be used for families except for homeless families with children.

d. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, on and after July 1, 1992, the commissioner of social services, after consultation with the speaker of the council, may certify that an emergency exists, pursuant to the criteria expressed in subdivision c, that requires the use of tier I shelters to meet legal mandates to provide shelter for homeless persons and, upon transmission of such certification for publication in the City Record together with a statement of the reasons therefor, which shall include a statement and documentation that there is no other alternative form of shelter available that complies with state and local regulations including invoking the powers under § 21-121(3), may direct the use of such tier I shelters which are consistent with state and local laws as are necessary to meet the emergency; provided, however, that the commissioner of social services may not utilize a tier I shelter for more than forty-five days unless a local law shall be enacted permitting such use for the shelter.

Such list of advocacy resources shall be updated semi-annually. Within thirty days following the preparation of such draft policy and procedures manual and prior to the preparation of a final policy and procedures manual, the commissioner shall distribute such draft policy and procedure manual to all social service agencies and organizations that contract with the department to provide HIV-related services and to all others whom the commissioner deems appropriate, and hold no fewer than one noticed public hearing at a site accessible to the disabled, at which advocates, service providers, persons who have tested positive for HIV, and any other member of the public shall be given an opportunity to comment on such draft policy and procedures manual. The commissioner shall prepare a final policy and procedures manual within thirty days after the conclusion of such hearing and shall thereafter review and where appropriate, revise such policy and procedures manual on an annual basis. The commissioner shall provide for semi-annual training, using such policy and procedures manual, for all division staff.

Such draft bill of rights shall include, but not be limited to, an explanation of the benefits and services for which persons with clinical/symptomatic HIV illness or with AIDS may be eligible; timetables within which such benefits and services shall be provided to eligible persons; an explanation of an applicant's and recipient's right to examine his or her file and the procedure for disputing any information contained therein; an explanation of an applicant's and recipient's right to a home or hospital visit for the purpose of applying for or maintaining benefits or services; an explanation of the process for requesting a division conference or New York state fair hearing; and a summary of the rights and remedies for the redress of discrimination as provided for in title eight of this code. Within sixty days following the publication of such proposed rule, and prior to the publication of a final rule, the commissioner shall hold no fewer than one noticed public hearing at a site accessible to the disabled at which advocates, service providers, persons who have tested positive for HIV, and any other member of the public shall be given an opportunity to comment on such draft bill of rights. The commissioner shall publish a final rule within thirty days after the conclusion of such hearing and shall thereafter review, and where appropriate, revise such bill of rights on an annual basis. Such bill of rights shall be conspicuously posted in all division offices that are open to the public and shall be available for distribution to the public in English, Spanish and any other languages that the commissioner deems appropriate.

i. Not later than ninety days from the effective date of the local law that added this section, the commissioner shall establish a policy or procedure for overseeing and monitoring the delivery of services required pursuant to this section to persons with clinical/symptomatic HIV illness or with AIDS which shall include, but not be limited to, quality assurance measurements. The commissioner shall submit such policy or procedure to the mayor and the council in writing within ten days from the date such policy or procedure is established.

j. The commissioner shall submit written, quarterly reports to the mayor and the council that shall, at a minimum, provide the following information:

1. Provisions of L.L. 32/2005:

Section 1. Declaration of legislative findings and intent. The Council hereby finds and declares that people with clinical/symptomatic HIV disease and AIDS who seek assistance from the department of AIDS services and income support or its legal or functional equivalent (the "division"), have particularly acute needs for the timely receipt of benefits and services, intensive case management, and safe, clean housing to keep them healthy. The Council further finds that having accurate information regarding the division's success in providing timely access to benefits and services, intensive case management and safe housing is critical to accomplishing its charter mandated oversight role with respect to the division. The Council hereby aims to ensure the gathering and reporting of information crucial to determining compliance with the legal mandates imposed on the division.

2. Provisions of L.L. 50/2005:

Section 1. Declaration of legislative findings and intent. The Council hereby finds and declares that people with clinical/symptomatic HIV disease and AIDS who seek assistance from New York City's Human Resources Administration ("HRA") have particularly acute needs for safe, clean housing to keep them healthy. The Council further finds that homeless clients of the department of AIDS services/HIV and AIDS Services Administration often spend long periods of time in emergency housing while they wait for medically appropriate, non-emergency housing. The goal of this legislation is to facilitate the application and referral process for medically appropriate, non-emergency housing for New Yorkers living with HIV and AIDS.

3. Provisions of L.L. 51/2005:

Section 1. Declaration of legislative findings and intent. The Council hereby finds and declares that people with clinical/symptomatic HIV disease and AIDS who seek assistance from New York City's Human Resources Administration ("HRA") have particularly acute needs for safe, clean non-emergency housing to keep them healthy. The Council further finds that the lack of a comprehensive housing referral and tracking system creates greater challenges for providing non-emergency housing of the quality HRA's clients with clinical/symptomatic HIV disease and AIDS require. The Council hereby aims to ensure higher quality housing for all HRA clients with clinical/symptomatic HIV disease and AIDS.

¶ 1. Housing that is not habitable due to vermin, filth, lack of furnishings or lack of accessibility is not "suitable" housing within the meaning of the statute. The housing units must have adequate refrigerators; otherwise, medications and nutritional supplements, which are essential to the survival of AIDS patients, would spoil. Bathrooms must be clean, because AIDS patients are easily susceptible to infection. Moreover, since many AIDS patients have limited mobility, it is not appropriate to place them on high floors in buildings which do not have elevators. Winds v. Turner, N.Y.L.J., Sept. 18, 2002, page 19, col. 2 (Sup.Ct. New York Co.).

2. the number of personnel in administrative positions and the proportion of time spent on administrative functions.

C. Contract categories. The department shall assign to each contract a category from one of the following:

1. BEACON programs;

2. youth development programs;

2. the allocation of funds by community services block grants and other federal, city, state and private funding sources, respec- tively.

E. Performance goals and actual performance reporting requirements with respect to individual programs. For every program it coordinates the department shall submit to the city council the following indicators:

[Footnote 115]: * There are two Chapters 5. This Chapter 5 added L.L. 13/2000 eff. Mar. 29, 2000.

Note provisions of L.L. 13/2000: Section 1. Declaration of Legislative Findings and Intent. The Council finds that certain recipients of public subsidies under the Family Assistance and Safety Net Assistance programs assigned by the city of New York to its Work Experience Program ("WEP") are required to work a specified number of hours each week in order to maintain their eligibility for continued public assistance. The Council further finds that WEP participants have not consistently been provided with appropriate terms and conditions of work. For example, participants have not consistently been provided with proper equipment and appropriate gear, such as, but not limited to: gloves, safety goggles, and proper clothing to protect them from the elements. In addition, participants have not consistently been given the opportunity to informally resolve disputes with the sponsoring agency prior to the reporting of alleged failure or refusal to comply with program requirements to the local social services district. The Council therefore believes that a grievance procedure must be codified to ensure that WEP participants are permitted to address grievances that may arise out of their work assignments and to provide the opportunity to have these grievances resolved within the sponsoring agency in an expeditious and just manner.

The Council finds that the conciliation provision of New York State Social Services Law and its implementing regulations do not address efforts by participants and sponsoring agencies to resolve disputes at the level of the sponsoring agency prior to involvement of the social services district. The Council further finds that the State Social Services Law expresses no need for state-wide uniformity in the administration of local Public Assistance Employment Programs. Rather, by omitting direct regulation of local sponsoring agencies, the State Legislature recognized the strong local interest in designing alternatives not specifically provided by state law, in order to meet the needs of the local community. The purpose of this local law is therefore to meet the legitimate local interest of the city of New York in providing a mechanism for its residents who are participants in WEP to informally resolve disputes that may arise with local sponsoring agencies, prior to the involvement of the local social services district.

The Council recognizes that, pursuant to New York State Social Services Law §341, the New York City Human Resources Administration ("HRA") has established a conciliation procedure for individuals who are alleged to have violated work activities requirements and a procedure to resolve other disputes related to participation in work activities. However, the Council finds that the state-mandated procedure for individuals who are alleged to have violated work activities requirements does not provide a means for participants and sponsoring agencies to resolve such disputes at the level of the sponsoring agency prior to involvement of the social services district. The Council further finds that the HRA procedure to resolve disputes related to participation in work activities, to the extent it provides for sponsoring agency participation, is not enforceable by participants, and was not established pursuant to any powers or duties assigned or delegated to the HRA by the State of New York. Thus, the grievance procedure established by this local law neither overlaps with nor directly affects the procedures established by HRA pursuant to New York State law and regulations.

For all the foregoing reasons, the Council finds that the grievance procedure established by this local law is well within the powers of the Council under New York State Municipal Home Rule Law and the Charter of the City of New York.

CHAPTER 5 WORK EXPERIENCE PROGRAM GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE*115

a. The118 following procedure shall be established in order to allow for the timely resolution of grievances. A participant may elect to pursue a grievance pursuant to this chapter prior to the initiation of conciliation under §341 of New York State social services law. The sponsoring agency shall notify each participant orally and in writing at the start of each work assignment of the participant's rights and responsibilities under this procedure, including the right to resolve grievances under such procedure prior to the initiation of conciliation under §341 of New York State social services law, and of the name, work address, telephone number of and locations to submit a grievance to the participant's Step 1 supervisor and the sponsoring agency WEP coordinator. The sponsoring agency shall not notify the office of employment services ("OES") or any other designee of the local social services district of an alleged failure to comply with program or work activities requirements by the participant unless and until the Step 1 supervisor or a higher-level supervisor first notifies the participant orally and in writing that the gency intends to do so and why, and then only after completion of the procedure set forth in Steps 1 and 2. In the event there is an alleged failure by a participant to comply with a program or work activity requirement and no grievance is submitted during the time period set forth below, then the sponsoring agency may notify OES. Nothing herein shall limit the authority of the sponsoring agencies except as provided herein.

b. General Procedure.

i. Step 1. A participant's grievance shall be made verbally or in writing to his or her step 1 supervisor not later than five (5) working days after the act or omission complained of. Discussion and consideration of the grievance may be assisted by a higher level supervisor(s), who may be called in to help with the resolution process. The participant and the supervisor(s) shall work together to resolve the dispute to the satisfaction of both the participant and the sponsoring agency. The grievance shall be considered and passed upon in writing within five (5) working days after it has been presented to the participant's step 1 supervisor. A copy of the written decision shall be given to the participant.

ii. Step 2. If a grievance is not resolved at step 1 to the satisfaction of the participant, within seven (7) working days after the participant has received a copy of the written decision rendered in step 1, the participant may appeal the initial decision verbally or in writing by requesting a discussion of the grievance with the sponsoring agency WEP coordinator. The participant and the sponsoring agency WEP coordinator shall work jointly for a mutually satisfactory resolution of the grievance. The appeal shall be considered and passed upon in writing within three (3) working days after the appeal has been made. A copy of the determination of the appeal shall be given to the participant.

iii. Step 3. If a grievance is not resolved at step 2 to the satisfaction of the participant, the participant may appeal the decision verbally or in writing to the social services district pursuant to social services law §341.

c. A participant grieving a work assignment or working conditions shall continue to work at their assigned sponsoring agency. Note provisions of L.L. 13/2000: Section 1. Declaration of Legislative Findings and Intent. The Council finds that certain recipients of public subsidies under the Family Assistance and Safety Net Assistance programs assigned by the city of New York to its Work Experience Program ("WEP") are required to work a specified number of hours each week in order to maintain their eligibility for continued public assistance. The Council further finds that WEP participants have not consistently been provided with appropriate terms and conditions of work. For example, participants have not consistently been provided with proper equipment and appropriate gear, such as, but not limited to: gloves, safety goggles, and proper clothing to protect them from the elements. In addition, participants have not consistently been given the opportunity to informally resolve disputes with the sponsoring agency prior to the reporting of alleged failure or refusal to comply with program requirements to the local social services district. The Council therefore believes that a grievance procedure must be codified to ensure that WEP participants are permitted to address grievances that may arise out of their work assignments and to provide the opportunity to have these grievances resolved within the sponsoring agency in an expeditious and just manner.

The Council finds that the conciliation provision of New York State Social Services Law and its implementing regulations do not address efforts by participants and sponsoring agencies to resolve disputes at the level of the sponsoring agency prior to involvement of the social services district. The Council further finds that the State Social Services Law expresses no need for state-wide uniformity in the administration of local Public Assistance Employment Programs. Rather, by omitting direct regulation of local sponsoring agencies, the State Legislature recognized the strong local interest in designing alternatives not specifically provided by state law, in order to meet the needs of the local community. The purpose of this local law is therefore to meet the legitimate local interest of the city of New York in providing a mechanism for its residents who are participants in WEP to informally resolve disputes that may arise with local sponsoring agencies, prior to the involvement of the local social services district.

The Council recognizes that, pursuant to New York State Social Services Law §341, the New York City Human Resources Administration ("HRA") has established a conciliation procedure for individuals who are alleged to have violated work activities requirements and a procedure to resolve other disputes related to participation in work activities. However, the Council finds that the state-mandated procedure for individuals who are alleged to have violated work activities requirements does not provide a means for participants and sponsoring agencies to resolve such disputes at the level of the sponsoring agency prior to involvement of the social services district. The Council further finds that the HRA procedure to resolve disputes related to participation in work activities, to the extent it provides for sponsoring agency participation, is not enforceable by participants, and was not established pursuant to any powers or duties assigned or delegated to the HRA by the State of New York. Thus, the grievance procedure established by this local law neither overlaps with nor directly affects the procedures established by HRA pursuant to New York State law and regulations.

For all the foregoing reasons, the Council finds that the grievance procedure established by this local law is well within the powers of the Council under New York State Municipal Home Rule Law and the Charter of the City of New York.

Such services shall include, but shall not be limited to, providing education and training, career counseling, and childcare. i. "Transitional jobs program" shall mean a program designed to create temporary employment in the public sector and in community-based organizations, and to provide the participants of such program with education and training, career counseling, and related services, to enhance their ability to secure permanent employment after their participation in such program.

Note provisions of chap 14/2000: Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The City Council finds and declares that in the aftermath of federal welfare reform, thousands of new jobs are needed in New York City in order to employ those welfare recipients now required to work. Since New York City has a large number of people seeking new jobs, and since the City's communities need additional services that these job-seekers can provide, a welfare-to-work program that will create new, temporary jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations, and provide individuals with education and training, career counseling, and related services will represent both an investment in human capital and in the vitality of this City.

Many individuals who need to make the transition from welfare to the work force face serious barriers to securing and maintaining successful employment, including a lack of marketable skills, education, work experience, and affordable childcare. A welfare-to-work program that offers a real work experience, pays a living wage, and provides health and childcare benefits, along with meaningful education and training, can be instrumental in successfully moving people from welfare to the work force in a manner that increases their long-term employability and self-sufficiency.

Accordingly, the City Council finds that a welfare-to-work program known as the transitional jobs program should be established in New York City. The transitional jobs program will create temporary jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations, and will provide participants of the program with education and training, career counseling, and related services. The provision of support services will significantly increase a participant's chances of securing and maintaining permanent employment after his or her participation in the program. In addition, the creation of new jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations will help address the unmet needs of many communities throughout the City.

CHAPTER 5 DEPARTMENT OF EMPLOYMENT*120 Transitional Jobs Program

a. The122 mayor shall direct the commissioner to establish a transitional jobs program, which shall consist of a total of two thousand five hundred temporary jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations, at least two-thirds of which shall be created within local government agencies in the public sector. Such total number of two thousand five hundred temporary jobs shall exist for a period of thirty-six months, commencing on January first, two thousand one; provided, however, that each participant in the transitional jobs program shall only be employed by a sponsoring or affiliated organization for a period not to exceed twelve months, and that each specific job created pursuant to the transitional jobs program shall be retained for at least twelve months. An initial group of two thousand five hundred participants shall commence employment on January first, two thousand one. A second group of two thousand five hundred participants shall commence employment on January first, two thousand two, and a final group of two thousand five hundred participants shall commence employment on January first, two thousand three.

b. The jobs created in local government agencies pursuant to this chapter shall, consistent with applicable collective bargaining laws and agreements, be accreted to appropriate existing collective bargaining units.

c. In implementing the transitional jobs program, the mayor shall direct the commissioner to select which local government agencies shall be sponsoring organizations. In making such determination, the commissioner may work in cooperation with the commissioners of other local government agencies and may, consistent with obligations under collective bargaining laws and agreements, consult with the heads of collective bargaining organizations, and may consider each prospective agency's prior experience hiring welfare recipients and the unemployed, its prior experience assisting such individuals in finding jobs, its prior experience providing education and training, career counseling, and related services to its employees, its plans to address or fulfill the needs of communities throughout the city of New York, its plans to employ or facilitate the employment of certified individuals, its plans to provide case management to participants, and its plans to assist in the permanent placement of participants following their participation in the transitional jobs program.

d. In meeting the goal of placing participants in community based organizations pursuant to this chapter, the mayor may direct the commissioner to issue a request for proposals or to utilize any other procurement method that he or she deems necessary to select community-based organizations to become sponsoring organizations. To determine which community-based organizations shall become sponsoring organizations, the commissioner may consider an organization's prior experience hiring welfare recipients and the unemployed, its prior experience assisting such individuals in finding jobs, its prior experience providing education and training, career counseling, and related services to its employees, its plans to address or fulfill the needs of communities throughout the city of New York, its plans to employ or facilitate the employment of certified individuals, its plans to provide case management to participants, and its plans to assist in the permanent placement of participants following their participation in the transitional jobs program. Where the employees of a community-based organization that has been selected to become a sponsoring or affiliated organization are members of a collective bargaining unit, such collective bargaining unit shall, consistent with applicable collective bargaining laws and agreements, have the opportunity to comment on such selection. The commissioner shall respond to such comments within fifteen days of their receipt.

e. Each sponsoring or affiliated organization may employ any certified individual, and employment with a sponsoring or affiliated organization shall be for a period not to exceed twelve months.

f. The sponsoring organizations shall provide each participant with the necessary case management to enable the participant to succeed in the transitional jobs program, build his or her job skills, and enhance his or her chances of securing permanent employment after participating in the transitional jobs program.

Notwithstanding such minimum salary requirement, a participant may not be compensated at a rate of pay that is less than that of other employees of the sponsoring or affiliated organization employing such participant, who are performing the same or comparable work.

c. A participant who is not a member of a collective bargaining unit shall be entitled to the same paid holidays and benefits permissible by law as other employees of the sponsoring or affiliated organization employing such participant, who are performing the same or comparable work.

d. f. Note provisions of chap 14/2000: Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The City Council finds and declares that in the aftermath of federal welfare reform, thousands of new jobs are needed in New York City in order to employ those welfare recipients now required to work. Since New York City has a large number of people seeking new jobs, and since the City's communities need additional services that these job-seekers can provide, a welfare-to-work program that will create new, temporary jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations, and provide individuals with education and training, career counseling, and related services will represent both an investment in human capital and in the vitality of this City.

Many individuals who need to make the transition from welfare to the work force face serious barriers to securing and maintaining successful employment, including a lack of marketable skills, education, work experience, and affordable childcare. A welfare-to-work program that offers a real work experience, pays a living wage, and provides health and childcare benefits, along with meaningful education and training, can be instrumental in successfully moving people from welfare to the work force in a manner that increases their long-term employability and self-sufficiency.

Accordingly, the City Council finds that a welfare-to-work program known as the transitional jobs program should be established in New York City. The transitional jobs program will create temporary jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations, and will provide participants of the program with education and training, career counseling, and related services. The provision of support services will significantly increase a participant's chances of securing and maintaining permanent employment after his or her participation in the program. In addition, the creation of new jobs in the public sector and in community-based organizations will help address the unmet needs of many communities throughout the City.

The commissioner shall establish and maintain a grievance procedure for the filing and resolution of complaints by participants who are not members of a collective bargaining unit. Such grievance procedure shall provide for a hearing within twenty business days after the filing of a participant's complaint. The commissioner shall notify the participant of the date, time, and place of the hearing within five business days after the filing of such complaint. The commissioner may attempt to informally resolve any complaint prior to the hearing, but any such attempt shall not delay the date of the hearing, unless a participant specifically consents in writing to a postponement of such hearing. A written decision shall be issued within ten business days after the hearing. Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the right of any participant, including a participant who is a member of a collective bargaining unit or a participant represented by a designated employee spokesperson, from pursuing other available remedies under any applicable collective bargaining agreement, or any federal, state or local law.

Section 1. Declaration of legislative findings and intent. The Council finds that advances in educational attainment, from basic literacy to college, enhance an individual's ability to secure employment, employment longevity and level of earnings. Detailed and persuasive studies indicate that education levels play a major role in determining whether workers will become dislocated and, if dislocated, how successful they will be in securing new jobs and recovering lost earning power. Education and training, including adult education, English classes, vocational training and rehabilitation, and college education, are proven means of helping public assistance recipients move off welfare and into living wage jobs that allow them to achieve lasting self-sufficiency. Moreover, the State Department of Labor reports that 75% of New York City's major employers require college degrees or training beyond high school for entry level jobs.

Education and training are essential components of the next step for welfare reform in New York City, which will better enable people to move from welfare into living wage jobs. Moreover, any removal of a recipient from dependency on tax funded assistance dollars is a service to the community. Therefore, any education or training engaged in to that end serves the community's interest. As a matter of policy, the city should administer its welfare programs so that participation in education and training programs is available to the maximum extent permitted by federal and state law. Treating education and training as an integral part of work requirements would enable staff of the Human Resources Administration, working with public assistance recipients, to craft a plan that maximizes the opportunity for each individual to move into long-term employment at a living wage. The Council adopts this local law to expand public assistance recipients' access to education and training programs so that they may gain independence and become truly and permanently self-sufficient.

a. During a period of no more than 45 days within the assessment period, the agency shall conduct and complete an assessment of employability and shall develop a written employability plan, pursuant to sections 335 and 335-a of the social services law, for each applicant or recipient, provided that the agency is not required to complete an assessment for applicants for and recipients of food stamps only who are already engaged in unsubsidized employment. Prior to the assessment, the agency may not assign an individual to any work activity. During the assessment, the agency may not assign an individual to any work activity, except for job search activity.

b. The agency shall provide each participant with a copy of such participant's employability plan upon completion of such employability plan.

c. If an applicant who expresses an interest in or preference for participating in training or education is found not to be eligible for training and education as set forth in section 21-703, the reasons shall be specified in the employability plan.

d. The agency will conduct a reassessment of employability for a participant who expresses an interest in discontinuing a work activity to which that individual has been assigned and enrolling in an education or training program if the participant has been engaged in the work activity for six months or more, or the participant's assignment to a work activity ends and the agency seeks to reassign the participant to another work activity.
